† Before the Assembly met, Dudley, perceiving that the deputies chosen were likely not to reflect those councillors who had shown subserviency to the orders of the home government concerning rebuilding the fort at Pemaquid, and in regard to settling a fixed salary upon the governor, informed the Lords of Trade of his apprehension in a letter dated Sept. 15, 1703, in which he declared, "It is every day more apparent that nothing will proceed well here 'till her majesty will please to name her own Council. The best men in the province can have no share in the civil government 'till then."—New England, Board of Trade, vol. 34, p. 197, in Public Record Office.

At the opening of the General Court, the new House of Deputies, in response to the Governor's message to proceed in the election of councillors, returned a message in which they declared that each councillor elected should have the votes of a majority of the electors, and moved that this course be adopted this year and for the future as "most agreeable to the charter." In this motion the Council concurred, but the Governor dissented on the ground that the proposed course was contrary to all former usage, and that it might result in a failure to elect the full board of councillors required by the charter; therefore agreeably to his direction the election proceeded "after the former manner and usage."

Upon counting the votes it was found that the following members of the former Board were not elected; viz., John Pynchon, Nathaniel Thomas, Barnabas Lothrop, John Appleton, and Nathaniel Byfield; and the five following were elected in their stead: Thomas Oakes, Edward Bromfield, John Saffin, John Bradford, and Samuel Hayman. The Governor negatived five of the councillors chosen; viz., Elisba Cooke and Peter Sergeant, of the old Board, and Thomas Oakes, John Saffin, and John Bradford, newly elected. These vacancies were filled on the twenty-eighth, by the election of Samuel Legg, Ephraim Hunt, Samuel Appleton, Nathaniel Paine, and Isaac Winslow, all of whom were approved by the Governor. Sewall records that the election was "not finished 'till about 9 or 10 at night," and adds, that the Governor in his speech to the Assembly alleged as his reason for negativing the five councillors, that some were "poor, one superannuated; some might have served the Queen better than they did." Compare pp. 47, 48, and 64 of Whitmore's Civil List; and see Palfrey's History of New England, vol. IV., pp. 254, 255, and Sewall's Diary, vol. II., pp. 78 and 79, and the Editors' notes.

* This brief memorandum of the first reading of this message from the House is supplemented by the following entry in the Executive Records of the Council, which gives to the whole proceeding such a character as entitles it to a place with the concurrent resolves of the Assembly — the “article” referred to by the Governor being a repetition of the above suggestion as to reducing the garrison, contained in the declaration of grievances or “particulars to be redressed” sent up by the House December 2, 1703: —

“As to the article of reducing the number of souldiers at the Castle to thirty with officers, until the middle of March next, his Excellen<sup>r</sup> intimated that he would consider to make the charge as easy for the province as might be consistent with her maj<sup>ties</sup> honour, and the safety of the place.” *Gov. To an Ensigne. twelue shillings p week. none to be allowed agst y<sup>e</sup> Indi<sup>a</sup> Enemy

* This resolve appears not to have been formally concurred in by the Council; and the following minute from the records under the date of November 26, 1703, justifies the inference that the Governor and Council considered the apportionment of wages to be a function appertaining to the commander-in-chief, and that the intervention of the representatives was required solely because no grant of money could be made from the Province Treasury without their consent: —

"A message was brought from the represent<sup>ves</sup>. to enquire after their bill for establishing of officers and soldiers pay. His excellency intimated to the messengers it was an imperfect establishment: but so far as it extended it should be observed as a rule." — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 17.

This resolve appears to have been sent to the Council for concurrence as early as March 25, 1703. That draught, however, must have been an earlier one than the one printed above, which is dated November 9th. This "establishment" is referred to, as in force, in subsequent declaratory votes of the House, and there can be no doubt that it was considered as valid and binding as any other resolve of the General Court.

[Printed in the notes to the acts of the year 1703-4.]

* The words in Italics were underscored in the original, and were, evidently, intended to be stricken out upon the adoption of the vote of the Council limiting the continuance of the bounty to the end of the next May session of the Assembly.

† The record of the advice of the Council upon this proposition of the House is given in the note to this chapter. The substance of the proposal which was rejected by the Council, as above, was, on the same day, embodied in a declaration of grievances by the House, and sent up to the Council just before prorogation, as follows: —

On the thirteenth this declaration came up for consideration, when the Governor again ordered its postponement, and promised to take action in the mean time, as appears by the following extracts: —

“Dec. 13, 1703. As to the Article for desisting of a Winters March &c<sup>a</sup> His Excellency Ordered the Intimation of a General Council, to sit on Thursday the 23<sup>d</sup> curreant, to advise of that matter. And declared that in the mean time he would write to the Colonels, and principal Officers of the Militia in the several parts to have their opinion thereupon, and to see if any number of Volunteers will offer for that service upon the last proposal of the General Assembly for Encouragement.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 3, p. 499.

“Dec. 23, 1703. His Excellency having intimated a General Council this day, and summons having been issued accordingly, to advise abt a Winters march of the Forces now under her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s pay against the Indian Enemy & Rebels.

His Excellency communicated letters from the Chief Officers of the Militia in several parts in answer to his letters to them, to have their opinion in that matter.

There being but a thin appearance of the Council, It was moved, that the affair be left under consideration till to morrow.

DECLARATION AGAINST PROFANENESS AND IMMORALITIES.

PROVINCE OF THE MASSACHUSETTS BAY
IN NEW ENGLAND

By his Excellency, the Gov<sup>r</sup>. Council and Assembly of the said Province.—

A Declaration against Prophaneness and Immoralities.

Under a deep sence of the Divine displeasure express'd in various calamities already Inflicted, and still awfully threatning us, Because we have not hitherto been reformed.

We have Accounted it our Duty faithfully to declare our serious thoughts * upon an occasion so very extraordinary.

We doubt not but that every religious person within this Province do's with distress of soul behold the Evident hand and anger † of the great God, That not onely the clouds return after the rain, In a new war which the perfidious & murderous Rebels the salvages have commenced, whils't we were yet languishing under the wounds of the former, but also that so small a handful are made so severe a scourge, and the most probable methods of subdueing them have hitherto been rendred unsucesful.—

When We also consider how many hundreds of churches in Europe, Famous for the Protestant Religion, have within these few year's been made an horrid and utter desolation, Yea and how many persons of this Province have since the beginning of the present war, been slaughtered and captivated by a bloody Enemy; Altho. they have not been greater sinners than the rest of their Neighbours; and some of them exemplary for their Piety, we cannot Imagine but that all considerate persons are trembling before God and afraid of his Judgements. And it being the concurrent Apprehension of Good men, That a General Reformation must be Endeavoured for the prevention of a General Desolation; It becomes absolutly necessary for us, the Rulers, and Representatives of this People, to publish unto them, the sorrow's, and Desires of our Heart's, as a Testimony before Heaven and Earth,

The best People, have, in the sad Experience of all ages, quickly Degenerated, And it is too Obvious, that this people have done so, And that the Errand of our Fathers into this Wilderness (which was to plant pure churches, that should maintain the Evangelical Faith and Worship) hath been very much forgotten and too meanly Esteemed by many of their Posterity and that the spirit of this world hath brought on a general Decay of the power of Godliness. But that we may have a Right sence of our degeneracy, we must not go about to extenuate our miscarriages by comparing ourselves with others, that may have proportionably less of good order among them; 'Tis' fit, that we should remember our Advantages by the glorious Gospel of the blessed God, and our high profession and strong Engagements to be a peculiar People, And then we cannot but Acknowledge, That, the Prophanity of many, In their neglect of the Publick Worship and covenant of God, and prophanation of the Lords day; The Excessive tipling and drinking, which like a Flood even drowues much of Christianity in several places; The Vanity in Apparrel, affected by too many; The woful decay of Family Instruction and discipline; The unrighteous treatment which those in a Publick station, often suffer from the People; The scandalous contentions and Animositities maintained in the midst of us; The prophane curseing & swearing and takeing the name of God in vain, for w<sup>ch</sup> the Land mourns, The unclean spirit wherewith too many have been possessed, Encourageing Incentives to Lewdness; The gross dishonesty and oppression too much practised The Falsehoods and slaunders which continually walk in darkness among us; And our miscarriages in day's of peculiar Temptation, For which, all Ranks of men have cause to Judge themselves before God. These, and other Immoralities, oblige us to Justify the holy God, should he proceed against us with the dreadfullest of his severities. The great sacrifice of our Lord Jesus Christ, is all we have to plead for deliverance.

That we may come at the desired Reformation, and may avert the Judgements which we fear and obtain the removal of them we feele, the wondrous mercy of God, against whome we have sinned, has appeared in furnishing of us with directions, by the mouth of his Faithful servants, who have consulted his holy oracle; And we hope it will be pleasing to God and useful to this people, If we do, as his people, offer * our hearty Wishes to see everywhere a conformity unto those directions. We would wish that the Expedients offered for a Reformation, by a synod here some year's agoe were more thoroughly practised. And we particularly Recommend unto the Justices of the respective Courts of General Sessions of the Peace, that Article, That the number of Houses, for publick Entertainment, may not exceed what is necessary, nor any be entrusted with them, but persons of approv'd honesty and Fidelity.

And Whereas the Laws have made great provision to discountenance Vice and Immorality; We strictly direct and Require † them, and all other officers concerned, that they would seriously consider the Oath of God upon them and frequently hold consultations together what they may do to reforme any spreading Evils. And y<sup>e</sup> persons when chosen to office, more peculiar for Inquiry and finding out offenders, would not decline the service. Nor would we leave Householders uncalled upon, to be more careful about the Education of their children and servants, That so the next Generation may not, for want of being well taught both at home and in the school, sinke into a deplorable condition.

It is with Pleasure, That we find the Rev<sup>d</sup> ministers of the Gospel, among the published Effects of their Deliberations, Declaring their Advice, That particular congregations* would be exemplary to one another in Inquiring into their own circumstances, and in renewing, Explaining and Enforceing of all Religious Duty's †; And that the Pastors of the churches in Visiting their Flocks would Informe themselves about the morals of their People, And thereupon both publickly & privatly set themselves to cure what shall be found amiss among them.

But such is the Efficacy of sin upon a miserable world, That no counsils, no warnings nor Judgements will produce an Effectual Reformation until a spirit for so blessed a worke be given of God. And therefore we cannot but Express our hearty Approbation of, and satisfaction in the Advice which has been sometimes given, That solemn day's of Prayer with Fasting may be celebrated in the churches, to aske for the Effusions of the spirit of Grace upon this whole People, English and Indians, And Especially upon the riseing Generation, by which they may be disposed to all those good things, which may be for the lengthning out of our Tranquility. Unto which purpose, not onely the day's Appointed by Authority are to be diligently applied and Improved, but such as may be more privately agreed to be successively kept by particular congregations in their several Vicinities, would be but agreeable unto such a dark time as we are now fal'n into.—

By these things would we testify to the world, That we are in Earnest for the Return of this whole People unto God, And for our deliverance in the way of that Return, That so God may be for us; And if God be for us who can be against us. —

Given at Boston the Twenty fourth day of March 1703 In the Third year of Her Ma<sup>ty</sup>'s Reign. [Approved March 24, 1703-4.]

The reason for the expulsion of Allen does not appear, since the House Journals for that period are not known to be in existence. If the records of the Court of Sessions for Bristol County prior to 1702 could be found they might afford an explanation. See note to the private act of Oct. 30, 1697, vol. A PROCLAMATION APPOINTING THURSDAY, THE FIRST DAY OF MARCH, 1704-5, AS A DAY OF PUBLIC FASTING AND PRAYER.

BY HIS EXCELLENCY, JOSEPH DUDLEY Esqr. Captain General and Governour in Chief, in and over Her Majesties Provinces of the Massachusetts-Bay and New-Hampshire in New-England. A Proclamation for a General Fast.

Having had Consideration of the Great Troubles of Europe, wherein Her Majesty and the Confederates are Engaged against the Common Enemy of the Repose of the Christian Nations; As well as our own Troubles with the French and Indians; And the Just Reason we have therefore to Implore the Divine Favour, for the Remission of our great and manifold Sins that have justly displeased God.

I Have therefore thought fit, by and with the Advice of Her Majesties Council, and at the Desire of the Representatives in their last Session, to Appoint and Order, That Thursday the first of March next, be Solemnized as a Day of Publick Fasting and Prayer throughout these Provinces: Exhorting both Ministers and People in their several Assemblies, Religiously to attend the Solemn Services of the said Day; That by a sincere Repentance and steady Affiance in the Divine Mercy in their most humble Addresses, They may obtain from GOD, That Our Sovereign Lady the Queen, with the Nations and Territories under Her Happy Government may alwayes be under the Protection of Heaven; Her Majesties Life and Government long continued; Her Councils and just Arms Prospered; The Designs of the barbarous Salvages against us defeated; Our exposed Plantations preserved, And the poor Christian Captives in their hands, returned; That the Government of these Provinces may have the Divine Direction in all their Administrations; That Health may be continued, And the ensuing Year crowned with the Fruits of Divine Bounty: That Deliverance may speedily arise to the Church of God oppressed with the Tyranny of Antichrist: And all Servile Labour is Inhibited on that Day.

Given at the Council Chamber in Boston, the Twenty-second Day of January, 1704. In the Third Year of the Reign of Our Sovereign Lady Anne, by the Grace of GOD, of England, Scotland, France & Ireland, Queen, Defender of the Faith, &c:

* The Governor having negatived the election of Mr. Speaker Oakes, the House insisted on their choice; whereupon a committee of the Council was sent down to the House to propose, as a temporary expedient, that the latter "would withdraw what they have done, with a salvo jure, and fill the chair with another person," to preside during the election of councillors; but the House still insisted and denied the Governor's authority to veto their choice. After hearing read the clause in the charter which gave the governor the negative voice "in all elections and votes of government whatsoever," performed by the General Court or in Council, and also the third section of the act of 1692, for ascertaining the number and regulating the House of Representatives, which act had been approved by the Privy Council, and after a prolonged debate thereon, the Council sustained the decision of the House, with but three dissenting voices. The form of this vote was, "That it is not in the governor's power to refuse the election of a speaker, and direct the choice of another, by virtue of the charter." The House then brought up their vote for eighteen councillors for the territory late the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, whereupon the Governor receded, and directed "that the election be proceeded in," which was accomplished by half-past eleven at night. On the following day Dudley communicated a paper to the representatives whom he summoned to the council chamber, in which he declared that though satisfied of his right "to allow or disallow the speaker of the Assembly," he deemed it his duty not to insist upon it at that time, to the delay of the important business then pressing. This was the beginning of the controversy which resulted in the granting of the explanatory charter of 1726. See foot-note on page 555, post.

To the Queens most Excellent Majesty.

THE HUMBLE ADDRESSE of the Council & Representatives of your maj<sup>ty</sup>s Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New-England in General Court assembled. —

May it Please your Majesty.

His Excellency, your Majesties Captain General and Governour of this your Majesties Province, haveing communicated to us your Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Royal Letter of the 25th of January, 1704/5. In which your Majesty is Graciously pleased to Signify That your Majesty of your Royal Bounty has thought fit to give Directions that Twenty Cannon with their appurtenances be sent to us for the use of your Ma<sup>ty</sup>s Fortifications on Castle Island

Wee your Ma<sup>ty</sup>s Loyal and Dutiful Subjects do with all humility Adresse your Sacred Majesty with our hearty & sincere Thankses for your Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Royal Bounty therein, And for the good assistance your Majesty has been pleased to afford us in sending the Deptford Frigate in our time of need, when our Coast has been Infested with French Privateers.

And We Crave leave, in all humble and Dutiful manner to offer to your Sacred Majesty the following Reasons, why we cannot Answer your Majesties Expectation of building a Fort at Pemaquid, The Contributing toward the Charge of the Fort at Piscataqua River, and The Setling of fix'd Salarys for the Governo<sup>r</sup> & L<sup>d</sup> Governour.

As to the building of a Fort at Pemaquid. The Expence already made on our Fortresses Garisons Marches and Guards by Sea amounting to more than Eighty Thousand pounds, a very great part whereof is in arrear and unpaid; Besides the daily growing charge for our necessary defence and prosecution of the War is become almost insupportable and has brought us under very distressing circumstances and were the building and Support of a Fort at Pemaquid superadded thereto, It would render the charge far beyond our ability, and we humbly conceive would be no Security to our frontiers or bridle to the Indians, the Situation thereof being so much out of their ordinary Road and upward of one hundred miles distant from any part of this Province at present Inhabited by the English, and of little or no advantage to this Province Altho the Expence in building & Supporting of the late Fort at Pemaquid cost not less than Twenty Thousand pounds, which was not lost by any neglect in the Government, It being fully Supplied for the Support & Defence thereof; but by the Cowardice or Treachery of the then Commanding Officer upon the place, who received his Tryal but was acquitted.

The small Fortification which was built at Casco Bay onely for a cover for a trading house in a time of peace, is since the War made a considerable Fort and is likely to be as great a charge to Support the same as that of Pemaquid and for our present Security and future Settlement of Plantations in this Province will be of greater advantage

As to the Contributing towards the charge of Piscataqua Fort

The Fort in that Province was built many years past when it was neither desired or thought necessary that this Province should assist therein; and the navigation and Trades of this Province coming down Piscataqua River have been & are charg<sup>d</sup> wth a considerable Duty toward their Support And this Province has afforded such Guards as were needful for their halling of masts Timber &c<sup>a</sup> for your Ma<sup>ty</sup>s Service whilst the principal benefit and Advantage of that Trade has accrued to that Province; And they have never contributed anything to the charge of our Forces Forts Garisons or Guards by Sea that are as great a Safety and defence to them as to our Selves; And the publick charge of that Governm<sup>t</sup> has been much less in proportion than the charge of this

As to the Settling of fix'd Salarys.

Whereas it is the native right and priviledge of English Subjects by consent of Parliament from time to time to rayse and dispose Such Sum and Sums of money as the present Exegency of affairs call for, The which priviledge We your Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Loyal and Dutiful Subjects humbly crave leave to plead our right unto, not onely as Subjects of the Crown of England; but also as priviledged by the Royal Charter Granted to this Province by their late Ma<sup>ty</sup>s King William and Queen Mary of blessed memory; which we have hitherto happily Enjoyed under your Sacred Maj<sup>ty</sup>. And we humbly hope and pray will be continued to us and our Posterity. And as hitherto We have not been wanting in our Loyalty toward your Majesty and Support to our Governo<sup>rs</sup>. So we hope for the future alwaies to be found in the Discharge of Incumbent Dutys.

May what we have herein humbly offered be favourably Interpreted and accepted by the Parental Indulgence of your most Gracious Majesty. And may the same propitious Providence which hath hitherto preserved your Ma<sup>ty</sup>s Sacred Person, still defend and prolong yo<sup>r</sup> happy Reign, and prosper yo<sup>r</sup> Auspicious armes in the Just War wherein yo<sup>r</sup> majesty is Engaged

Is and shall be the constant and fervent prayers of

Loyal and Dutiful Subjects. and Suppliants

CHAPTER 78.

DRAUGHT OF A LETTER TO THE GOVERNMENT OF CONNECTICUT IN REGARD TO THE COMPLAINTS OF THE TOWNS OF ENFIELD AND SUFFIELD, AND THE VOTE ORDERING THE SAME TO BE TRANSCRIBED, SIGNED BY THE SECRETARY, AND FORWARDED.

Gent<sup>ls</sup>. — I am Comanded by his Excell<sup>ty</sup> and the General Assembly now Sitting to Acquaint you That they are followed with the repeated Complaints of the Inhabitants of our western Towns of Enfield and Suffield lying next adjacent to your Colony, That the people of Windsor &c<sup>ts</sup> continue their molestations and with force and violence despoyle them of the Fruits and profits of their Lands; Which is very Surprising, after so many Overtures & Concessions made on the part of this Government to accommodate and quiet the same, and to Issue the groundless pretence of extending the Line of your Colony to take in part of those Towns under your Government.

* See vote, 1693-4, chapter 12.

† See vote, 1704-5, chapter 119.

It will be remembred That the Line of the Massachusetts Colony stated for above Sixty yeares past, did justly Include & comprehend those Lands and accordingly the Governm<sup>t</sup> have exercised Jurisdiction there, before there was any Establish'd Government in Connecticott, and many years before the Grant of your Charter; which is bounded upon the Line of the Massachusetts. Yet, notwithstanding the Just Claim of this Government to Jurisdiction, They have at all times Declared That they had no Intent to Infringe any persons right or property; Nor do they Expect by Length of time to proscribe you of any Challenge before a proper Judicature; But his Excellency may no more consent to part with any part of this Province, the Government whereof is committed to him by Her Ma<sup>ty</sup>s Letters Patents, than to extend his Government beyond it, without Her Ma<sup>ty</sup>s Especial Command; And if this Contest cannot be otherwise compromised, It must finally be refer'd to Her Majesty for Her Royal Determination, and to no other Authority.

And it may not be unworthy your Consideration, rebus sic stantibus, Whither it will be the Advantage and Interest of your Governm<sup>t</sup> to Enforce his Excellency, by the disquiet given to Her Maj<sup>ty</sup>s good Subjects, to open & lay the matter before Her Majesty, and humbly to pray Her Ma<sup>ty</sup>s Direction & Order therein which he hath hitherto forborne to do, and is still unwilling if your Selves see meet to prevent it, by Effectually restraining yo<sup>r</sup> People from their forceable and violent Actions. —

And if any dispute about Title of Land or other matters of meum and tuum arise betwixt particular persons, Her Ma<sup>ty</sup>s Courts within this Province are open to any of Her Ma<sup>ty</sup>s Subjects in either Government; where Justice shall be done them.

For the Govern<sup>t</sup> & Council of Connecticott.—

Lynde was chosen in place of John Leverett. These changes were the result of the popular opposition to Dudley growing out of his alleged complicity in the illicit trading of the previous year. According to Sewall, Leverett, the Governor's influential friend, received thirty votes as councillor for Maine and twelve votes as councillor at large. Lynde was elected over him by fifty-four votes. The following entry shows how the Governor attempted to procure a reconsideration of the vote by which he lost so valuable an ally in the Council: —

“After Inquiry made by a Message to the House into a Report from one or more of their Members, That (when they came to Vote for a Councillour of the Inhabitants of or Proprietors of Lands within the Territory lying between the River of Sagadahock & Nova Scotia, for which M<sup>r</sup> Leveret was chosen & served the last Year,) It was insinuated in the House That he had no Land there; Cpt: Warren & Major Basset returning Answer from the House That M<sup>r</sup> Speaker had strictly examined thereinto, And that all the Members protested That there was no such Thing openly spoken in the House, nor had Influence into their Votes.” — *Council Records, vol. This petition was read in the House on the first of June. On the next day it was read again, and the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council, where it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governour.

An order in Council * for paying to Wright the ten pounnds allowed by this chapter was passed August 5, 1703, and the province treasurer's account † shows that this amount, as also his annual pension, was paid to him. He died November 29, 1734.

The following is the petition mentioned in the preamble to this chapter:—

“To his Excellcy Joseph Dudley Esq<sup>r</sup> Capt General and Governour in Chief in and over the Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England and Vice-Admiral of the same, The Hono<sup>ble</sup> her majties Council of the sd Province; and To the Hono<sup>ble</sup> House of Representatives convened in General Assembly for the sd Province.—

The Humble Petition of Several of the freeholders Proprietors & Inhabitants of Lancaster within the sd Province, whose names are hereunto subscribed.

Sheweth

That in or about the year 1653. The Inhabitants of the s<sup>d</sup> Town did agree amongst themselves to pay to and for the Use of the Minister of the s<sup>d</sup> Town the Sum of Ten shillings a year in Consideration of their home-Lotts, and if that should fall short of a maintenance then to make up the same by an equal Rate upon their Goods and other Improved Lands in such way and Order as the Country rate was raised. Which way & method was equal so long as the Inhabitants of the s<sup>d</sup> Town continued upon their home-Lotts. But now so it is, may it please yo<sup>r</sup> Excellcy and Hono<sup>s</sup> That several of the s<sup>d</sup> Inhabitants are removed from ther home Lotts (which are left destitute & unimproved, & thereby disenabled to pay any rate at all) to their second Division of Lotts which pay no Rates, and the Charge of the maintenance of the sd Minister wholly falls upon yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioners to their great wrong & damage, and if not timely remedied by yo<sup>r</sup> Excellcy & hono<sup>s</sup> will be a standing & intollerable inconvenience, & matter of Division in the s<sup>d</sup> Town, for that they are not able to bear the Charge thereof. And forasmuch as the s<sup>d</sup> Town had never any settlement made by Law, but such an agreement as aboves<sup>d</sup> which is neither binding nor Equal; and whereas s<sup>d</sup> Town cannot agree among themselves how to raise their Ministers Salary.

And yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioners as in duty bound will ever pray &c.<sup>a</sup>/

Of the agreement or "covenant" among the first settlers, the portion which related to the support of the ministry was as follows:—

"Memorandum, That wee whose Names are subscribed, vpon the Receiueing and acceptanc of our severall Lands, and Allotments wth all Appurtinances thereof, from those men who are Chosen by the Generall Court to Lay out and dispose of the Lands within the Towne of Lanclaster heertofore Called by the name of Nashaway doe hereby Covenant & binde ourselues our heires Execut<sup>rs</sup> & Assignes to the observing and keepeing of these orders and Agreements hereafter mentioned and Expressed.

first for the maintainanc of the ministree of Gods holy word wee doe Allowe Covenant and Agree that there be laid out Stated and established, and we doe hereby estate and establish as Church Land with all the priuiledges and Appurtinances therevnto belonging for ever, thirty acors of vppland and fortie acors of Entervale Land and twelue acors of meddow with free Libertie of Commons for Pasture and fire wood, The said Lands to be improved by the Plantation or otherwise in such order as shalbe best Advised and Concluded by the Plantation without Rent paying for the same, vntill the Labours of the Planters or those that doe improve the same, be fully satisfied. And wee doe agree that the Plantation or Select men shall determine the time, how Longe every man shall hold and Improve the said Lands for the profit thereof. And then to be Rented according to the yearly valne thereof and paid in to such persons as the Plantation or Selectmen shall Appoynt to and for the vse of and towards the maintainanc of the minester Pastor or Teacher for the time being, or whomesoever may bee stated to preach the word of God among vs: or it may be in the Choyce of the minester to Improve the said Lands himselfe.

. . . And ffrther we doe Engage and Covenant every one for himselfe his heires Execut<sup>rs</sup> & Assignes to pay to and for the vse of the ministree abovesaid the sume of ten shillings a yeare as for and in Consideracon of o<sup>r</sup> home Lotts yearly for ever, our home Lotts to stand Engaged for the payment thereof, and what all this shall fall short of a Competent maintinanc we Covenant to make vpp by an equall Rate vppon o<sup>r</sup> Goods, and other improved Lands (not home lots) in such way and order as the Country rate is Raised. And in case of vacansy of a minester the maintainanc Ariseing from the Church Land and home Lotts abouementioned, shalbe paid to such as shalbe Appoynted, for the use of a scoole to be as a stock: or as stock towards the maintainanc of the minester, as the Plantation or Select men shall think meetest." — The Early Records of Lancaster, Mass., pp. 27, 28.

This covenant contained a clause or paragraph providing that all differences should be ended by arbitration, under which Simon Willard, Edward Johnson and Edmund Rice, arbitrators, on the twenty-fifth of April, 1656, made an award, the twenty-second section of which was as follows:—

"22. Ministrs maintainanc. Our answer to the P<sup>o</sup>sition or querie about the ministrs maintainanc our Conclusion is the towne shall presently begin and giue fiftie pounds by the yeare, And for the manor of the pay they ar to allow him their wheat at six penc P bushell vnder the price, it is at the bay, And soe for other graine by this P<sup>o</sup>rtion, And as god shall bee pleased to enlarge their estat soe they shall enlarge theirin answrably, And this to be raised according to the order incerted in the towne Booke." — Ibid., p. 44.

Although the inhabitants were subsequently granted all the liberties of a township and by order of the General Court the bounds of this township were settled, and notwithstanding later provisions of law for the support of the ministry in places where that duty was neglected, it would seem that this covenant remained unrepealed and unchanged down to the time of the petition upon which this chapter was based.

The above petition was read, first, in the House on the twenty-eighth of May, 1703. On the second of June the resolve which constitutes the first part of this chapter was passed and sent to the Council for concurrence, and was concurred in. On the following day a petition (which has not been discovered) by other inhabitants of Lancaster, praying for a confirmation of the aforesaid agreement, was read in the Council, and the order which constitutes the second part of this chapter, suspending the resolve, was passed and sent to the House, for concurrence, together with the latter petition, and on the same day it "was returned from that House with their agreement thereto."

The second session of the General Court began on the first day of September. Whether or not at this session a hearing was had upon the two petitions does not appear; but on the seventh the House passed the following order, which was sent to the Council for concurrence:—

"Ordered — That the Minister's salary in the Town of Lancaster, be Levyed, and Collected of the severall Inhabitants by the same Rules, and in the same Proportions with the Province-Tax, for this present Yeare." — Mass. Archives, vol. 11, p. 184.

No vote of concurrence in this order is recorded, probably because of the order of the ninth of September proposed by the Council for continuing all unfinished business; but the ninth being the last day of the session, evidently in order to end this particular controversy, the Council passed the following vote of advice, which was accepted by the inhabitants as a practical settlement, although legally neither this nor the order of the representatives had any effectual operation upon the ancient agreement:—

"Sept. 9, 1703. Upon a representation made to the Board of a difference among the Inhabitants of the Town of Lancaster about the manner of rayseing their Ministers maintenance Advised. That for this present year, they rayse the maintenance of their Minister upon the improved Lands, and other ratable Estate within the said Town, according to the Rule set for the Province Tax." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 3, p. 482.

Chap. 7. This chapter is from archives, vol. 62, p. 439. It is recorded in council records, vol. VII., p. 390.

The proposal of Hill appears more fully in his petition printed in the note to the resolve of 1702, chapter 15. Nothing has been discovered to show the precise nature of his invention nor how far he succeeded in satisfying the committee. The twenty pounds paid by the province treasurer to Samuel Legg of the committee to defray the expense of testing Hill's invention does not appear to have been returned.

Archives, vol. 9, p. 152.

This petition was read in the House on the first of June. It was read again on the third, when the proceedings which appear in the printed chapter followed, and the order, as framed in the Council, was consented to by the Governor.

The contention between Saffin and his negro slave grew out of the following instrument which Saffin executed in 1694:—

“Bee it known unto all men by these presents That I John Saffin of Bristol in the Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England out of meer kindness to and for the Encouragem<sup>t</sup> of my negro man Adam to go on chearfully in his Business & Employ<sup>mt</sup> by me now putt into, the Custody Service and command of Thomas Shepherd my Tenant on boundfield Farm in Bristol afores<sup>d</sup> for and During the Terme of Seven years from the Twenty fifth day of March last past 1694—fully to be compleat and Ended or as I may otherwise See cause to Employ him. I say I doe by these presents of my own free & Voluntary Will & pleasure from and after the full end & Expiration of Seven years beginning on the Twenty fifth day of March last past and from thenceforth fully to be compleat and Ended, Enfranchise clear and make free my s<sup>d</sup> negro man named Adam to be fully at his own Dispose and Liberty as other free men are or ought to be according to all true Intents & purposes whatsoever. Allways provided that the s<sup>d</sup> Adam my Servant do in the mean time go on chearfully quietly and Industiously in the Lawfull Business that either my Self or my Assigns shall from time to time reasonably Sett him about or employ him in and doe behave and abear himself as an Honest true and faithfull Servant ought to doe during the Term of Seven years as aforesaid In Witness whereof I the s<sup>d</sup> John Saffin have hereunto sett my hand and Seal this Twenty Sixth day of June 1694—In the Sixth year of their Ma<sup>ty</sup>s Reign

This Instrument abovewritten was Entred in the first book for Wills and Inventoryes page the last, November 15th 1694—by JOHN CARY Recor<sup>d</sup>.”—Suffolk Court Files.

This writing Adam seems to have regarded as an effectual manumission after the expiration of the seven years therein limited. Hence he felt justified, as a free man, in acting towards his former master in the independent manner which the latter in his complaint described as "turbulent, outrageous and insolent."

Many obscurities regarding the controversy between Adam and his master have been cleared by the recovery of a tract* published by Saffin, in reply to Sewall's "Selling of Joseph,"† in which he gives numerous interesting details that agree with what is learned from other sources. According to Saffin, Adam had not fulfilled the condition upon which his liberty was promised, and being at Boston, in March, 1701, and ordered by his master to meet him at Bristol, and to proceed thence to Swanzey in the service of another to whom Saffin had engaged him, he not only refused to go, but improved the opportunity which his master's absence afforded, to leave Saffin's house in Boston, furtively taking with him his clothing, and going about town at pleasure.

Saffin, upon his return, received from his former slave, instead of the deference and submission he claimed, a notice, haughtily delivered, that he must appear before Mr. Justice Sewall. Saffin accordingly waited upon the judge whom he found in conference with Mr. Secretary Addington. Sewall severely animadverted on his conduct, and produced the deed of manumission. The due execution of this instrument Saffin acknowledged, upon which the two magistrates concurred in advising him to give the negro his liberty. They intimated that Adam's performance had been substantially according to the terms stated in the instrument which, as "Liberty was a thing of great value, even next to life," should be liberally construed, especially in this case, and that a perfect compliance should not be expected, since "there was much to be allowed to the behaviour of Negroes, who are so ignorant, rude and brutish."

Saffin, nevertheless, persisted in his determination to hold the negro, and, the next day, he induced Lieutenant-Colonel Penn Townsend, a member of the Council, to accompany him to Sewall's house, professing to believe that his servant could be lawfully coerced into submission by the joint determination of two magistrates. Though the magistrates thought otherwise, Townsend consented to bind Adam over (he being present) to answer to a complaint for an offence the nature of which appears in the record of proceedings of the court, given below.

The next Court of Sessions for Suffolk was to be held in July, but the stated assizes were held at Boston two months earlier; so, in order to bring the complaint (which involved the question of Adam's enfranchisement) to a speedy issue, he was required to appear and answer at the May term of the Superior Court, and Dick, a free negro, was accepted as surety in his recognizance. Accordingly, when the court sat, the complainant and respondent appeared; but though papers were read, and the case debated, the matter was put over, or, as Saffin states it, "transmitted to the next Superior Court to be held at Bristol." The complaint was not entered of record, and though the reason assigned by Saffin for the court's declining to proceed with the trial was that witnesses were not present to support by their oaths the depositions they had previously made in writing, it seems more likely that the case was thought to be properly triable in Bristol County, where, if Saffin had any case, both parties were domiciled.

Between the term at Suffolk and the term at Bristol, Saffin, by some means, succeeded in getting promoted from the bench of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas to that of the Superior Court of Judicature;‡ and on the ninth of September he sat with his associates at the stated term in Bristol, during which, upon his complaint, Adam was tried at the suit of the king.

From the depositions on file it is clear that though at the trial there was conflicting testimony upon the main issue, the preponderance of evidence as to character was in Adam's favor. Some of the depositions for the complainant were mainly hearsay, and one, at least, was rejected by the court, probably for this reason and also because the prisoner was not present when it was taken. The complainant was allowed to put in the following document in proof of his charges against the accused:—

* "A Brief and Candid Answer," etc., to Sewall's tract. Only one copy, and that not perfect, is known to be extant. It was purchased by its present owner, Daniel Parish, jun., Esq., of New York, at the Brinley sale. The first part was printed in Moore's History of Slavery, hereafter mentioned.

† Reprinted in Proc. Mass. Hist. Soc., 1863-4, pp. 161-5, and also in Dr. Moore's History of Slavery in Massachusetts, 1866.

‡ August 1, 1701. He was nominated by a bare majority of the Council. This was after the deaths of Bellomont and Stoughton. Saffin was probably originally of Scituate, and married, December 2, 1658, Martha Willett, at Plymouth. She, with two of her children, died of the small-pox in 1678, and, in 1680, he married Elizabeth, widow of Peter Lidget. She died Nov. 1, 1687, and he married for his third wife Rebecca, daughter of the Rev. Samuel Lee and sister of Rev. Cotton Mather's third wife. This last union proved an unhappy one, and ended in a separation shortly before his death. He appears to have been for many years after his marriage an enterprising merchant of Boston and was a deputy from that town to the General Court and the last speaker of the colonial assembly. Some time between 1687 and 1689 he removed to Bristol, where he had previously held land and had been engaged in business. He represented Bristol in the general court of Plymouth in the latter year, and served on important committees. Upon the union of the colonies in 1692, he was appointed the first judge of probate and the first justice of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas for Bristol County, and from 1693 to 1699, inclusive, he was also annually elected councillor. He was again elected in 1703, but negatived by Dudley. He seems to have been a man of extraordinary force and ability. His reply to Judge Sewall's famous antislavery tract, "The Selling of Joseph," which he regarded as a rebuke of his treatment of his negro slave Adam, contains all the most cogent arguments that have been since put forth in defence of slavery, and shows the writer to have been a skilful polemic and not unfamiliar with literature. To this tract he appended his version of his difficulties with Adam.

He had the misfortune to survive his eight sons, the last of whom, according to Sewall (Diary, vol. 1, p. 192), was buried October 15, 1687, about the time that tidings arrived from London of the death of another son, Thomas. The latter, "much favored of his prince," died of the small-pox at the age of twenty-three, and was buried in the churchyard of Stepany. His curious epitaph is given by Henley in No. 515 of the Spectator, — his name being disguised as "Thomas Snapper" or "Sapper." Saffin died at Boston, July 23, 1710, and was there buried in his family tomb.

The character of the accused as given in this paper was not only insufficiently supported by the joint deposition of Shepherd and his wife, but Wilkins, to whom Adam was bound out by Shepherd, testified to his sobriety and fidelity; and there were several other witnesses to his general good conduct. Nevertheless the jury found him guilty. The court continued the case, under advisement, “until the next Superior Court to be holden for this county” (that is, for one year), and in the mean time remanded Adam to the custody of his master.

From Sewall's memoranda it appears that the court were in doubt on the question whether or not Saffin's interest in the issue was such as to disqualify him from sitting in the case. It would seem, also, from the same authority, that Saffin had been guilty of other equally grave and more insidious irregularities in the management of this case. Sewall declares that he had tampered with the foreman of the jury by whose verdict Adam was convicted, and had connived at placing upon the panel James Smith, one of his tenants; which conduct was apparently proved to the satisfaction of his associates. Saffin avers that, upon his motion that judgment be entered according to the verdict, his brother judges assented, and agreed that he should have the custody of his negro upon his promising “not to send him out of the Country,” but that the suspension of judgment for further advisement was a subsequent determination made without his privity or consent, whereupon he claimed he was released from his promise.

As soon as the form of the judgment had been finally settled, Saffin, in open court, ordered Adam, over whom the decree of the court had given him control, to proceed, forthwith, to Boston, and to resume work on Castle Island under Captain Timothy Clarke. About a month later, the unfortunate negro got into fresh trouble by violently resisting Captain Clarke, who, in attempting to discipline him for disobedience and incivility, knocked his pipe from his mouth and struck him with his stick. Saffin seized upon this incident as a pretext for ordering his incorrigible servant to be transported out of the province; but this scheme failed, on account of a caution given by Addington who was consulted as to the legality of the proceeding. The Secretary, however, so far gratified Saffin as to order the commitment of Adam, to answer at the quarter sessions for his violence. The loss of the records of the Court of Sessions leaves it doubtful what disposition the court made of this case. It is certain that the event did not interfere with the earlier proceedings instituted by Saffin.

Before the next term of the court in Bristol, Dudley had arrived with the commission of governor. Though the new Governor's principles were extremely loose in regard to taking gratuities for service rendered in an executive capacity, and notwithstanding his career as chief justice in New York shows that he did not scruple to follow the worst precedents of judicial tyranny, he had never been known to excuse in a judge such offences as Saffin was charged with. Possibly this may account for the fact that Saffin was not among the judges of the Superior Court selected and commissioned by Dudley.

When the case of Dom. Rex v. Adam came up for consideration by the court, in September, 1702, it appearing that the negro was sick with the small-pox, it was again put over—this time to the November term, in Suffolk. Sewall* records that the “Court were of Opinion that Adam's Freedom could not be Tried by Mr. Saffin's complaint,” evidently upon the ground that, though the suit was brought in the name of the king, Saffin was the real party in interest—the virtual plaintiff.

The complaint against him having thus failed, Adam, at the same term, “preferred a petition for his Enfranchisement” (which unique and interesting paper, undoubtedly prepared by Newton, has not been found), at the same time exhibiting to the court the instrument of emancipation executed by Saffin. The court thereupon assigned Thomas Newton and Joseph Hearne,† two of the ablest lawyers in the province, as his counsel, “in order to his Regular proceeding in the affair.” The record of the case concludes, “This Court Judging it proper for the Petitioner first to be heard at the Inferiour Court of Common pleas next to be holden for this County and that the Petitioner in the meantime be in peace until the Coming of the Justices,*

In compliance with this decision and intimation from the court, Adam brought suit against Saffin, in the Common Pleas, as follows:—

“Suffolk ss Anne by the Grace of God of England Scotland France & Ireland Queen Defendr of the faith &c To the Sherriff of our County of Bristol his under-sherriff or Deputy. Greeting. We Comand you that you Summon John Saffin of Bristol within our County of Bristol Esqr (if he may be found in your precinct) to appeare before our Justices of our Inferiour Court of Comon Pleas to be holden at Boston within & for our sd County of Suffolk on the first Tuesday of January next then & there in our sd Court to answer to Adam negroe of Boston with in our sd County of Suffolk Labourer in a plea for that whereas the sd Adam hath Complained unto us That he being a freeman and ready to prove his liberty, the sd John Saffin claimeing him as his slave, doth vnjustly vex him: To the damage of the sd Adam negro as he saith the sum of one hundred pounds, wch shall then & there be made to appeare with other due damages And have you there this writt with your doings therein Witness Elisha Hutchinson Esqr at Boston this 14th day of Decembr in first year of our Reigne Annoq; Dom 1702.
ADDINGTON DAVENPORT Cler.” — Ibid.

Upon which writ the sherriff of Bristol made the following return:—

“Bristol ss By Vertue of this Writt to me Directed on ye 18th day of December 1702 I sumoned the abovesaid John Saffen Esqr to appear at the Day & place above mentioned as this writt Reqviere & I Left a coppi of this writt with him at his hovs in Bristol

The record shows that this writ abated, probably because it was held that the court for Bristol County had exclusive jurisdiction of the parties. The judgment of the court was as follows:—

“It is considered by the Court That ye s<sup>d</sup> Sumons or writt shall abate for ye ye same is not regularly brought before this Court.” — Records in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court in Suffolk County.

The justices present were Elisha Hutchinson, John Foster, Penn Townsend and Jeremiah Dummer.

From this judgment the plaintiff appealed, but the court refused † to allow the appeal.

Saffin, it seems, now renewed his threat to consign Adam to some one living out of the province or who would remove him from Massachusetts, whereupon Mr. Newton invoked the protection of the Superior Court for his client in the following petition:—

“To the hon<sup>ble</sup> the Justices of her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Superior Court of Judicature now held at Boston for the County of Suffolk being the 8th day of May 1703.

Thomas Newton of sd Boston humbly sheweth

That whereas yo<sup>r</sup> hono<sup>rs</sup> at the superior Court of Judicature held at Boston for the sd County on the first Tuesday of November now last past, upon the petition of Adam a negro, late slave to John Saffin Esqr for his freedom appointed the sd Thomas Newton & Mr Joseph Hearne attorneys for the sd Adam and that in order thereunto the sd attorneys should commence an accon for him ag<sup>t</sup> the sd John Saffin at the then next inferiour Court of Comon pleas to be held at Boston for the sd County for the Tryall of his liberty And the sd Thomas Newton and Joseph Hearne accordingly brought forward an accon for the sd Adam ag<sup>t</sup> the sd John Saffin at the inferiour Court of Comon pleas held at Boston on the first Tuesday of January last, where the sd accon was dismissed and an appeal to this Court thereupon denied And forasmuch as the sd Adam daily pursues yo<sup>r</sup> subscriber for the Tryall of his sd liberty the sd Adam being daily threatened by the sd Mr Saffin, to be sent out of this province into forreigne parts to remaine a slave during his life.

Court Files.

The following is the record of the judgment or decree of the court upon this petition, all the justices being present:—

“Upon Reading the Petition of Mr Thomas Newton relating to Adam negro late Slave to John Saffin Esqr That notwithstanding the former Order of this Court he is pursued by Mr Saffin as his Slave and has Endeavoured to Transport him beyond Sea. Its therefore Considered by the Court That Adam negro be in peace untill by due process of Law he be found to be a Slave.” — Records of the Superior Court of Judicature, 1700-1714, fol. 100.

Saffin now turned to the Legislature for the remedy which he had failed to obtain in the courts, and presented the petition which is printed in the beginning of this note. When the petition was before the Council, Newton appeared in behalf of Adam ‡ and entered the following plea:—

* Records of the Superior Court of Judicature, 1700-1714, fol. 84.

† It was not judicially determined until a year later that appeals lay from judgments on pleas in bar or abatement. The decision was subsequently confirmed by statute. See notes to chapters 47 and 89, post.

‡ Sewall, whose sympathies continued strong for the negro, indignantly minuted in his Diary under date of June 8, 1703, the following:—

“Adam is again imprison'd to be Tryed at Suffolk Sessions. Trial order'd by the Gen<sup>l</sup> Assembly:

Superannated Squier, wigg'd and powder'd with pretence,
Much beguiles the just Assembly by his lying Impudence.
None being by, his bold Attorneys push it on with might and main

By which means poor simple Adam sinks to slavery again.” — Vol. II., p. 79.

From which verse it appears that, in the honest judge's eyes, Saffin's offence had been greatly aggravated by his wearing a periwig — the good judge's particular abomination.

"The s<sup>d</sup> Adam Negro pleads that he oweth the s<sup>d</sup> John Saffin no Service but is free by Vertue of an Instrum<sup>t</sup> under the hand and Seal of the s<sup>d</sup> John Saffin.

Court Files.

At the Court of Sessions held in S<sup>t</sup>ffolk in August the case was tried, as ordered by the Assembly, and Adam was again convicted, and once more appealed, as shown by the following copy of the record:—

"Suffolk ss—Anno Regni Reginae Annae nunc Angliae &c /Secundo—.

At an Adjournment of a Court of General Sessions of the Peace held at Boston for the County of Suffolke on the third day of August Anno Domini One Thousand Seven hundred and three—

Adam negro's
Tryall

Whereas John Saffin Esq<sup>r</sup> by his Petition to the Great and General Court or Assembly for Her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Province of the Massachusetts Bay held at Boston upon the Twenty sixth day of May last, did Insinuate that a certain negro man named Adam is withheld or taken from him &c/ upon which he obtained an order of the s<sup>d</sup> Great & General Court that the matter be heard before the next Court of General Sessions of the Peace for the County of Suffolk— In Pursuance whereof the s<sup>d</sup> John Saffin & the s<sup>d</sup> Adam negro now appeared, and the s<sup>d</sup> Adam by Thomas Newton his attorney pleaded that he oweth the s<sup>d</sup> John Saffin no service butt is free by virtue of an Instrument under the hand and seal of the s<sup>d</sup> John Saffin; and the allegations of both parties being fully heard the matter was committed to the Jury who were sworn to try the same and returned their verdict therein upon oath, That is to say— they find that the s<sup>d</sup> Adam negro hath not performed the condition for which he was to be Enfranchized & therefore is to continue a servant to his s<sup>d</sup> Master. It's therefore considered by the court That the s<sup>d</sup> Adam negro hath not performed the condition for which he was to be Enfranchized and therefore is to continue a servant to his s<sup>d</sup> Master; The s<sup>d</sup> Adam by his afores<sup>d</sup> Attorney appealed from this Judgment or sentence unto the next Court of Assize and General Goal delivery to be holden for this county and Entred into Recognizance with sufficient sureties for his appearance and prosecuting his Appeal there with Effect and for the abiding and performing the order or sentence of the s<sup>d</sup> court; and for his good behaviour in the mean time." — Records of the Court of Sessions, in the office of the clerk of the S. J. C. for the Commonwealth.

The defendant's reasons of appeal, prepared by Adam's attorney and given below, sufficiently show the course of the proceedings and the grounds upon which he based his claim to freedom:—

3<sup>o</sup> That there is no penalty in the sd Instrum<sup>t</sup> if the appell<sup>t</sup> did not serve the Defend<sup>t</sup> faithfully during the abovesd Term of seven years, nor doth he thereby forfeit his freedom or liberty given him for that there is no provisoe or Condiçion in the sd Instrum<sup>t</sup> that if the sd appell<sup>t</sup> did not faithfully serve the Defend<sup>t</sup> & his assignes during the sd Term, then he should forfeit the freedom or liberty thereby intended and the word provided mentioned in the sd Instrum<sup>t</sup> is a consideracõn and not a Condition, and the Enfranchisem<sup>t</sup> is positive & not conditionall and liberty being a privilege the greatest that can be given to any man save his life, it ought not to be forfeited upon trivial and frivolous matters as is ptended by the Defend<sup>t</sup> all wch matters & things (with what further may be alledged by the Defend<sup>t</sup>) being duely weighed & considered by the hono<sup>red</sup> Court and the Gent<sup>rs</sup> of the Jury, the appell<sup>t</sup> hopes they will see good reason to Reverse the former sentence and give him his freedom

Court Files.

The above reasons were received into the clerk's office October 26, 1703, and were argued at the term begun on the second of November, at which term, by the verdict of the jury and the judgment of the court, Adam secured his liberty. The record is as follows:—

"Suffolk ss. Anno Regni Reginae Annae nunc Angliae &c Secundo—.

Adam vs Saffin
Esq<sup>r</sup>

Adam negro Appell<sup>t</sup> vs John Saffin Esq<sup>r</sup> Appellee. from a Judgment or sentence of a Court of General Sessions of the Peace held at Boston by adjournment on the Third day of August 1703. for that whereas the s<sup>d</sup> John Saffin by his Petition to the Great and General Court or Assembly for Her Majestys Province of the Massachusetts Bay held at Boston upon the 26th day of May last did Insinuate that the s<sup>d</sup> Adam is withheld or taken from him &c Upon which he obtained an Order of s<sup>d</sup> Court that the matter should be heard before the Court of General Sessions of the Peace for the County of Suffolk. At which s<sup>d</sup> Court Judgment was rendered that the s<sup>d</sup> Adam negro had not performed the Condition for which he was to be Enfranchised & therefore to Continue a servant to his s<sup>d</sup> master. Both Parties now appearing. The Judgment of s<sup>d</sup> Court Reasons of appeal & all things touching the same being fully heard the whole was Committed to the Jury, who were sworne to try the same & Returned their verdict therein upon Oath That is to say They find for the appellt Reversion of the former Judgment & Cost of suits. Its therefore Considered by the Court That the s<sup>d</sup> Adam & his heirs be at peace & quiet & free with all their Chattles from the s<sup>d</sup> John Saffin Esq<sup>r</sup> & his heirs for Ever." — Records of the Superior Court of Judicature, 1700-1714, fol. 114.

After this there was little hope for Saffin of gaining his ends. Still he resolutely presented his grievances to the Legislature at the third session in the following petition: —

That there is a certaine Negro uan Named Adam Servant to yo<sup>r</sup> Petition<sup>r</sup> who hath by his vile behaviour Expos'd yo<sup>r</sup> Peti<sup>r</sup> to very much trouble and Charge above two years & half last past having been at no less then five Superior Courts, & two Inferio<sup>r</sup> Courts seeking to Obtaine his freedom under the pretence of A writing under the hand of yo<sup>r</sup> Peti<sup>r</sup> when he lett his farme at Bristol to Thomas Shepard with the said Negro, knowing him to be a Desperate Dangerous Villaine, and of a Turbulent humour I Endeavored to Oblige him to his Duty, and thereupon promised his freedome under my hand at the End of the Terme upon the Conditions in the words following Viz<sup>t</sup> always Provided that the said Adam my Servant Doe in the meane time goe on Chearfully quietly & Industiously in the lawfull Business that Either my Self or my Assigns shall from time to time Reasonably sett him abovt or Employ him in, And Doe behave & abare himself as an honest true and faithfull Servant Ought to doe Dureing the Terme of Seven years as aforesaid. Now may it please yo<sup>r</sup> Excellency and this Hon<sup>ble</sup> Assembly the said Negro hath in no wise performed the Conditions on w<sup>ch</sup> he was to be free But on the Contrary hath behaved him self Turbulently Neglegently Insolently and Outragiously both to yo<sup>r</sup> Peti<sup>r</sup> and his Tenant Thomas Shepard his wife and family, and Others where yo<sup>r</sup> Peti<sup>r</sup> hath placed him, So that he hath had no Profit but loss by him said Negro these Eight Years and upward but was faine to abate the said Tenant of his Rent for that cause, and in the mean time yo<sup>r</sup> Peti<sup>r</sup> hath been at continued great cost and Charges abovt the said Negro to this Day in provideing him Cloaths Bedding Phisick Attendance and all manner of Necessarys when he was lately sick of the Small Pox besides abovt Six pounds payed the keeper of the Prison for Charges when he said Negro was Comitted by the Court upon the Complaint of Capt Timothy Clark of the said Negro's outrage at the Castle in great Danger of the said Capt Clarks life w<sup>ch</sup> was proved upon oath. Also the said Negro hath often times Threatned to kill yo<sup>r</sup> Peti<sup>r</sup> and lately told Mr Willard the keeper of the Prison that if he had Oppertunity he would make no more to Twist or wring off the Neck of yo<sup>r</sup> Peti<sup>r</sup> then he would of a Snake all w<sup>ch</sup> is upon Oath and more to the same Effect —

The Premises Considered yo<sup>r</sup> Petition<sup>r</sup> Doth humbly Implore this Hon<sup>ble</sup> Assembly to grant Relief, and that he may have liberty to Review the Action and Judgment the said Negro hath lately Obtained for his freedome at this last Superior Court at Boston (Notwithstanding he was cast at two Courts before) And that according to yo<sup>r</sup> wisdomes some Effectuall Order may be given that the said Negro may bee in safe Custody, and not goe at large at his pleasure, that the Person of yo<sup>r</sup> Petition<sup>r</sup> may under God, be in safty & secured from the Danger of his life threatned by that Notorious Villaine & also that yo<sup>r</sup> Peti<sup>r</sup> may be Reimbursed the Charges he hath been att abovt the said Negro upon all Occasions as aforesaid

This petition was read in the House, on the fifteenth, and on the nineteenth the representatives passed an order "that the petitioner have a review at the next Superior Court held at Boston and in the mean time the negro be of bonds with sureties for the peace and good behavior," which order was sent to the Council for concurrence. On the first of December this petition and order being read in the Council, it was "not concurred" in, but the Council voted that "the petitioner is referred to the law."

That Saffin found no further satisfaction is evident from the following entry in the Records of Boston Selectmen, which shows that, as late as June 18, 1711, Adam was recognized as free by the town authorities: —

Pursuant to the Law of this Province Intituled An Act for Regulatig of Free Negro<sup>s</sup> &c.

The S<sup>d</sup> Sel. men do order and Require the Free Negroes of this Town hereafter named each one of them to give their Attendance, faithfully & diligently to worke on cleansing & Repairing the High wayes and other Services of this Towne, at Such time & place as the Select men, or Such person or persons whom they Shall employ therein Shall direct and order, for the Space of So many dayes as is here after Set down against each of their names respectively viz<sup>t</sup>. for this present year.

This name is second in the list, but several others followed.

The account mentioned in the preamble to this chapter is in archives, vol. 122, pp. 153-174.

Chap. 10. This chapter is from archives, vol. 119, p. 211. It is recorded in council records, vol. VII., p. 398.

This is the first account rendered by the province treasurer, of the trade (authorized by the act of 1699-1700, chapter 13) with the Indians in the eastern part of the province who had "recognized their subjection and obedience to the crown of England." The act, though temporary, was revived and continued, from time to time, by subsequent acts.

The resolve which constitutes this chapter originated in the House, and was sent to the Council, for concurrence, June 4, 1703. On the seventh it was concurred in and signed by the Governor.

Chap. 12. This chapter is from council records, vol. VII., p. 400. It has not been found in the archives.

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance and also of the allowance made by chapter 35, post, was passed August 5, 1703, and the amount thereof and also the additional sums of fourteen pounds allowed by chapter 35, sixteen pounds allowed by chapter 72, and four pounds allowed by chapter 109, post, are charged in the treasurer's account † as paid, being a total of £36 10s.

Chap. 13. This chapter is from council records, vol. VII., p. 400. It is preserved in archives, vol. 3, p. 104.

There is no record nor memorandum expressly showing that the Council concurred in the amendment, proposed by the House, to this order; but the form of the entry sufficiently implies the acquiescence of the Board. Ordinarily, when the Council disagreed, its non-concurrence was recorded, or the record shows that the vote was sent back for reconsideration. After the expiration of the time limited by the amendment of the House, the matter came up again upon motion of the Council, which, on the twenty-sixth of July, passed and sent to the representatives a resolve authorizing the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Council, to transport such part of the militia of the province as they should find needful into the provinces of New York and New Hampshire, or into the colonies of Connecticut or Rhode Island ("or oblige them to march into the said provinces or colonies, respectively), for the assistance and defence of her majesty's subjects within the same." A clause limited the operation of the resolve to the end of the session of the General Assembly in May, 1704, and still another clause gave authority to oblige the militia to march through the province of New Hampshire "into the further parts of this province for their necessary defence and support." This resolve was read twice, in the House, on the twenty-seventh, and, on the twenty-eighth, the representatives "ordered a concurrence with the last paragraph [i. e., the second clause above mentioned], only." Upon receiving this vote of the House, the Council returned it for reconsideration, and the Governor, by message, summoned the speaker and the representatives to the council chamber, where he "spake to them concerning the bill for assistance to the neighboring governments." The representatives, however, seem to have adhered firmly to their vote, and no further action in this direction appears to have been taken until towards the close of the fourth session, when a resolve, probably identical with that last above mentioned, was sent by the Council to the House, for concurrence. The session was prorogued on the following day, and the subject seems not to have been pursued.

The "act" referred to in the preamble was undoubtedly the resolve of 1702, chapter 69.

Chap. 14. This chapter is from council records, vol. VII., p. 400. It is preserved in archives, vol. 70, p. 630.

The concurrence of the House with an amendment to this resolve appears to have been voted on the twenty-ninth of May — the day on which it was passed by the Council. The Secretary recorded the passage of the resolve as of the eighth of June, which indicates that on that day the Council concurred in the amendment, although there is no express record of concurrence.

By the first act ‡ establishing the Superior Court of Judicature, cases from Hampshire County, on appeal, or writ of error, were to be heard in Boston or Charlestown, and a Court of Assize and General Gaol Delivery was to be held in Hampshire County, "from time to time, as the Governor and Council, advising with the justices of the Superior Court, shall direct and appoint, according as occasion may be." By an act § of the next year a term of the Superior Court was to be held in Springfield, upon the last Tuesday of June, yearly; but this term was discontinued during King William's war, by an act ¶ passed two years later still. By the act ¶ passed and published June 19, 1697, the provisions of the act of 1692 above mentioned, respecting Courts of Assize, etc., in Hampshire County, were reenacted. The only court held under this provision, however, was held pursuant to the following order in Council:—

“Aug. 8, 1698. Upon information given by his Majesty's Justices in the County of Hampshire, that one Sarah Smith of Deerfield lies in prison there for murdering of a Bastard Child late borne of her body, in order to a Tryal.

Pursuant to the Act for establishing of Courts, and upon advisement with the Justices of the Superiour Court of Judicature, Court of Assize & General Goale Delivery within this Province.

Ordered and Appointed. That a Court of Assize and General Goal Delivery, be held and kept at Springfield within the said County of Hampshire by the sd Justices, upon Thursday the eighteenth of this present Month of August for the Tryal of the said Sarah Smith.

WM STOUGHTON.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 2, p. 552.

Sewall, who, with Winthrop and Cooke, held this court, has recorded an itinerary of his journey out and back, and an account of the trial.

By an act* passed June 26, 1699, sessions of the Superior Court in Hampshire County were resumed, and Springfield and the second Thursday in August, annually, were fixed as the place and time therefor. But as the first term of the Hampshire Court of Common Pleas, under the act† of the same year reestablishing that court, was not to be held until after the session of the Superior Court, and as all appeals, etc., of the last preceding term of the Common Pleas had been already provided for by the act of 1698, there was no business calling for a session in this county, of the Superior Court, that year. For want of business, also, the Superior Court did not sit in Hampshire the next year, as appears by the following entry in Sewall's Diary:—

“Aug. 3. [1700]. . . . Between 3 and 4 I receiv'd a Letter from the Justices of Northamptonshire, i. e. Partrig, Parsons, and Hawley to notify us that there is no Business requiring our going to Springfield this hot wether. We are very glad to be thus fairly discharged from this long and tedious journey.” — Vol. II., p. 21.

The terms for 1701 and 1702 probably failed for similar reasons; but to prevent appeals from the Inferior Courts (which continued to sit) from lapsing, the order which constitutes this chapter was passed.

See, further, chapter 43, post, and note.

Chap. 17. This chapter is from archives, vol. 70, p. 635. It is recorded in council records, vol. VII., p. 405.

It appears that the vote of concurrence in this resolve and the names added to the committee by the House were sent to the Council on the ninth and concurred in on the tenth.

The following entry shows the time for the visit appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor, and the subsequent proceedings that day:—

“July 13, 1703. His Excellency attended with a Committee of the Court went to view the Works of the Fortifications making at the Castle; And Nothing being Offered to the Council by the Representatives.

Adjourned Unto Tomorrow at ten in the Morning.” — Council Records, vol. VII., p. 406.

Ten days later the committee submitted their report as follows:—

“Wee the Committee appointed by the Great & General Assembly to Repair to the Castle to view the present state of the work, what is yet absolutely necessary to be done, & to see the Acc<sup>t</sup> of the expence of ye last five hundred pounds Granted by this Court for that service

In Obedience to said order wee went to the Castle & find that instead of the wall that fell down there is now a substantial wall built, that it is hoped will answer the end it was built for & the whole of that great & chargeable work drawing towards a conclusion but yet there remains several things to be done & finished that wee iudge of absolute necessity viz: The finishing ye platforms & Carridges both in ye vpper & Lower fortyfications, The finishing the South entaine, The Lodgings for the souldiers within the Castle ye buildings on each side the Armory for accomodation for a Chappel a kitchin & Lodgings The Remaining Earth work Sod work & about 600 stocados to be sett down more for finishing the lines, Lead for Covering the four Centry boxes, provisions for work men while sd work is about

This report was read first in the Council on the twenty-third of July and accepted by the Board "and the gentlemen thanked for their pains." The report and vote were then sent to the House for concurrence. There they were read on the same day and again on the twenty-sixth, but no record of further action thereon has been discovered.

The resolve which constitutes this chapter originated in the House, where it was passed on the fifteenth. It was concurred in by the Council on the sixteenth. The act (1703-4, chapter 5), which the Secretary drew in accordance with this resolve, was passed and published on the thirty-first. The former act was 1701-2, chapter 15, continued and modified by the acts of 1702, chapters 1 and 7.

This petition was read first in the Council on the sixteenth, and the vote passed thereon, which was concurred in by the House on the same day, was simply "and the prayer of the petition granted." From this the Secretary constructed the preamble and order which constitute this chapter.

Chap. 21. This chapter is from archives, vol. 121, p. 117. It is recorded in council records, vol. VII., p. 409.

The first delegation by the General Court of authority to lay out and change highways was by the following order passed at the session in March, 1634-5:—

[At a court begun and held March 4, 1634-5.] "Whereas there hath bene a complainte made to this Court that many highe wayes in the country are inconveniently layde out, it is therefore ordered, that the Court of Assistants shall haue power to lay out such high wayes as are wanting, & rectifie those that are amisse." — Mass. Colony Records, vol. 1, p. 141.

In 1639 further provision was made for relocating and improving highways by committees chosen by the several towns who were to cooperate in the work under the following order:—

Nov. 5, 1639. "Whereas the high wayes in this iurisdiction have not bene layd out wth such conveniency for travellers as were fit, nor as was intended by this Court, but that in some places they are felt too straita, & in other places travellers are forced to go farr about, it is therefore ordered, that all high wayes shall bee layd out before the next Generall Court, so as may bee wth most ease & safety for travellers; & for this end, every towne shall choose 2 or 3 men, who shall ioyn wth 2 or 3 of the next towne, & these shall have power to lay out the high wayes in each towne where they may bee most convenient; & those w<sup>ch</sup> are so deputed shall have power to lay out the high wayes where they may bee most convenient, notwithstanding any mans propriety, or any corne ground, so as it occasion not the puling downe of any mans house, or laying open any garden, or orchard; & in comon grounds, or where the soyle is wet or mirye, they shall lay out the wayes the wider, as 6, or 8, or 10 rods, or more, in comon grounds; provided, that if any man shall suffer any extraordinary damage in his improved grounds, by execution of this order, the towne shall make him some reasonable satisfaction; provided, also, that if any case shall fall out wherein those that are deputed cannot agree, it shalbee referred to the determination of this Court; & if any person shall finde himselve iustly greived wth any thing w<sup>ch</sup> the said persons deputed shall do. hee may appeale to this Court, or the Court of Assistants, who shall have power to determine the cause; but if the party shalbee found to have complained wthout iust cause, hee shall pay all charges, & bee fined by the discretion of the Court; and they shall Pceede in this order: Newberry & Rowley, Rowley & Ipswich, Ipswich & Salem, &c; Hingham & Waymoth, Waymoth & Mount Woollaston, &c; and all townes are enjoined to have this order performed before the next General Court, vpon paine of 5<sup>l</sup> for every towne making default. And it is not intended that any person shalbee charged wth the repairing of the high wayes in his owne land." — Ibid., p. 280.

Under the foregoing ordinance the main highway from Rowley through Ipswich to the northern end of the ferry between Salem and what is now Beverly was laid out by committees who made the following return:—

[At a court begun and held Oct. 7, 1640.] "Wee, whose names are hearunder written, being appointed to lay out the roade wayes for the country, in behalfe of Ipswich, (according to order of Court,) from Rowley to Ipswich, (wth the consent of those that were likewise ordered for Roweley,) have thus marked the said wayes out, that is to say, from M<sup>r</sup> Nelsons dwelling house pale by the end of Mussies Hill to the newe bridge over the North Ryver, & so to the newe bridge over Muddy Ryver, & so by the comon fence to Ipswich towne, & so along by M<sup>r</sup> Saltonstalls house over the falls at Mile Ryver, & by marked trees over M<sup>r</sup> Appletons meadowe, called Parlye Meadowe, & from thence by M<sup>r</sup> Hubberds farme house, & so on upon the east side of M<sup>r</sup> Smyths house, & from thence, by like consent of Salem men, over the ould planters meadowe, & so to the two ponds usually dry in sumer, neare w<sup>ch</sup> ponds the way doth branch, one whereof is easterly of the said ponds, leading through the ould planters ffield to Salem ferry according to the marked trees, & the other way is westerly of the ponds, leading to a great creeke at a landing place westerly of M<sup>r</sup> Scrugs house./

The breadth of w<sup>ch</sup> wayes, from Rowley to the two ponds above mentioned, (by the consent of us & those of Roweley & Salem,) is eight rod. And from the place where the two wayes begin to branch, both to the ferry & to the creeke, are either of them sixe rodd./

This return or "certificate" was ordered to be recorded as the first day of May, 1640, at a general court begun and held the seventh of October that year.

Within a few years after the location, incumbrances upon public highways had increased to such an extent that an ordinance was passed authorizing the Court of Assistants or any County Court, upon complaint made of such incumbrance, to appoint a committee to view the same and "ord<sup>r</sup> y<sup>e</sup> reformation thereof; & if y<sup>e</sup> pties whom it shall concerne shall not submit to such order," they were to be summoned to appear "at y<sup>e</sup> next Cote, where y<sup>e</sup> cause shalbe heard & determined for y<sup>e</sup> ease & conveniency of travelers, wth due respect to y<sup>e</sup> P<sup>r</sup>ietrs cost & damage.*

The burden of making, repairing, and maintaining bridges and highways within the limits of townships was placed upon the respective towns by the ordinance of 1648.†

Nearly five years before the passage of this ordinance the town of Salem had ordered to be recorded the report of Roger Conant and John Balch, a committee previously appointed by the town to call on others to mend the highway between Ipswich, Wenham, and the head of Bass River, which included one branch of the old highway of 1640.‡

Under the provincial statutes§ for repair of highways the most important change in this highway leading to the ferry in Beverly was made by a committee appointed by the Court of Sessions, upon a petition of the selectmen of Beverly. This committee's report was accepted and ordered to be recorded in December, 1698.||

"Whereas there is great complaint by several persons of y<sup>e</sup> incroachments on y<sup>e</sup> Kings highway between Rowley and Salem ferry in a high degree & it having been recommended by y<sup>e</sup> judges of y<sup>e</sup> Superior Court to some of y<sup>e</sup> justices of this Court to inspect & rectify the same & their being a record of y<sup>e</sup> province or Gen<sup>l</sup> Court whereby it plainly appears y<sup>t</sup> y<sup>e</sup> said complaint is true- Wherefore this Court do order & appoint Maj<sup>r</sup> Symonds Epes, Capt, Thomas West, Deacon William Fiske, Capt-Joseph Bointon and Mr Jone Wade a committee to enquire into the said encroachments & who it is yt hath incroached & to what degree & make report to y<sup>e</sup> next Sessions of y<sup>e</sup> peace to be holden at Salem in June next and the said Maj<sup>r</sup> Symonds Epes is to appoint time & place for meeting for y<sup>e</sup> attending said service." — Essex County Court of Sessions, 1701-2, March term, p. 99.

The complaint and the recommendation of the justices of the Superior Court of Judicature above mentioned have been searched for in vain; neither do the records of the Court of Sessions for the June term 1702, nor for July, to which time the court was adjourned, nor for any subsequent term, show that the committee appointed as above made any report, or took any action whatever. The next proceeding which has been found of record is the order which constitutes this chapter.

"The complaint of the justices of Essex" and "the annexed survey" of the road referred to in the preamble have not been found in the archives nor among the miscellaneous files in the Secretary's office. Among the latter, however, the following curious detailed report was discovered, signed by all but two of the committee appointed by this chapter:—

No action appears to have been taken upon this report at the September session, nor has the acceptance of the report subsequently been discovered nor any legislative remedy of the encroachments which the committee reported further than the following unsuccessful proposal, which originated in the Council during the fourth session of 1704-5: —

"Jan. 4, 1704-5. An Order pass'd in Council for Revival of the Committee formerly appointed by this Court to enquire into the Encroachments made on the High Way leading from Salem to Newbury, Impowering them to stake out the same to the Breadth of four Rod in all Places where it is streighten'd, & to command the Removal of all Encroachments and Report their Doings; — W<sup>ch</sup> Order being sent to the Represent.<sup>ves</sup> Was disagreed to by that House." — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 101.

Chap. 22. This chapter is from council records, vol. VII., p. 410. It has not been found in the archives.

Of the ten thousand pounds in bills of public credit required to be printed and signed by the act* of November 21, 1702, one-half had been emitted in accordance with the order in the third section of that act, while the other five thousand remained unsigned in the hands of the committee until after the passage of chapter 14 of the resolves of the year 1702-3, which required the committee to sign and deliver them to the province treasurer — "the said bills to pass out of and into the treasury," etc., as had the "five thousand pounds already emitted."

The last-named resolve was passed March 27, 1703, the last day of the session; and on the thirty-first of May following, being the fifth day of the next General Court, "an account of the bills of credit remaining in the hands of the committee" was read in the Council and sent down to the representatives. Towards the end of the same session the resolve which constitutes the present chapter was passed for placing in the treasury for emission a further sum of five thousand pounds in bills of credit.

The emission of the first five thousand pounds in the bills of credit prepared under the act of 1702 was authorized by the act itself, as has been shown in the preceding note. By chapter 14 of the resolves of the year 1702-3, the province treasurer was impliedly, though not expressly, authorized to emit the remaining five thousand pounds of that issue. The object of the resolve which constitutes the present chapter seems to have been to direct and empower the treasurer to emit the bills printed under the last preceding resolve, and to enhance their value by redeeming them at a premium of five per cent.

The tax act † which was passed ten days later contained a section expressly empowering the treasurer to emit these bills and also to re-issue five thousand pounds of the whole ten thousand pounds of bills which had been prepared in bills previously emitted and returned to the treasury, and to receive them back again at the same advance or premium of five per cent.

Chap. 26. This chapter is from archives, vol. 59, p. 244. It is recorded in council records, vol. VII., p. 413.

No such complaint as is mentioned in the preamble to this chapter has been found in the archives.

This order originated in the Council on the twentieth of July, when it was passed and sent to the House for concurrence, and on the next day was concurred in and consented to by the Governor.

In 1709, on the joint complaint of the inhabitants of Enfield and the justices of Hampshire against the people of Windsor for forcibly seizing and carrying away turpentine drawn in Enfield lands, the Governor and Council referred the letters received on the subject to the consideration of the Assembly.

"To his Excell<sup>y</sup> Joseph Dudley Esq<sup>r</sup> Cap<sup>t</sup> General and Govern<sup>r</sup> in chief in and over her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England and vice Admiral of the same. The Hon<sup>ble</sup> her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Council of the s<sup>d</sup> Province and to the Hon<sup>ble</sup> House of Representatives convened in General Assembly for the said Province. —

But now so it is may it please yor<sup>e</sup> Excell<sup>y</sup> and Honor<sup>s</sup> That yor<sup>e</sup> Petitioner did pursuant to his s<sup>d</sup> Commission find out & take s<sup>d</sup> Baptiste and bring him Prisoner to Boston, but in our way home met with a french man of War of seaventy five men who were fitted out from Port Royal on purpose to take yor<sup>e</sup> Petitioner (as the Cap<sup>t</sup> himself boasted when we hailed him). but we killed the Captain and 13 or 14 of his men (as the french themselves reported) and sent her back to Port Royal, Monsieur Baptiste having had the satisfacc<sup>o</sup>n to be a spectator of the action whereby (as he humbly conceives he did a very considerable service for his Country, the Satisfacc<sup>o</sup>n whereof he looks

This petition was read first in the House on the twenty-eighth of May, 1703, but the resolve was not passed until the twenty-first of July, on which day it was also agreed to by the Council and consented to by the Governor. The Jean Baptiste recaptured by Harraden was the prisoner whose exchange was so earnestly sought for by the French in Canada. He escaped from prison in December, 1697.** He was not liberated until some years later. There appears to have been still another prisoner of the same surname taken from the enemy and imprisoned in Boston. See the list of prisoners exhibited by John Arnold, prison keeper, 1690, in which the name of "Battist" appears — Province Laws, vol. VII., p. 628.

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed August 5, 1703, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was duly paid.

The act ‡ of 1693 for encouraging a post-office having been disallowed by the Privy Council on the fifth of November, 1696, a little less than five months after the passage of the act § for reviving and continuing it, the newly reconstructed Board of Trade communicated the order for the disallowance to Lieutenant-Governor Stoughton in a letter dated Whitehall, January 20, 1696-7. Besides giving the reasons for rejecting the first mentioned act which have been printed in the notes thereto, the writers promised to send over the draught of a new act acceptable to the home government || to be passed by the provincial Legislature.

The preparation of the proposed act appears to have been postponed until after the appointment of Bellomont.¶ The draught was completed by the twenty-sixth of August, 1697, on which day it was sent to Bellomont from the Lords of Trade with a letter of explanation and directions, in which it was referred to as mentioned in his instructions. The final draught of these instructions, however, was not prepared until five days later. Of these the thirty-eighth reads as follows:—

"And whereas his Majesty hath lately repealed an Act passed in the Generall Assembly of his Province of the Massachusetts Bay, entituled, An Act for encouraging a Post Office, That Act being found prejudicial to the office of his Majesty's Post Master General in England, in whose Patent are included all his Majesty's Dominions and inconsistent with the patent granted in the year 1691 to Tho. Neale Esq. for the Post Office in America, But is willing nevertheless that such an Act be passed there as may answer the principal ends of the former without the forement<sup>d</sup> inconveniencies; You are therefore to endeavour that such a Law for erecting & establishing a Post Office: (a copy whereof is herewith delivered to you) be passed within the said Province of the Massachusetts Bay and to transmit it unto His Majesty when past by the first opportunity." — "New England, Board of Trade," vol. 30, pp. 260-272; in Public Record Office.

The circumstances which delayed the arrival of Bellomont to assume the gubernatorial chair of Massachusetts have been narrated in the note to chapter 62 of the resolves of 1697. Before he arrived in Boston notice of the disallowance (by an order of the Privy Council passed November 24, 1698) of the provincial act for reviving and continuing the former act had been communicated to the Lieutenant-Governor. This was published on the twenty-seventh of April.††

Agreeably to his instructions, at the first session in which he met the Assembly Bellomont laid before the Council ‡‡ the draught of the act prepared by the Privy Council. Both of the provincial acts, however, had already become inoperative upon receipt of the order in Council disallowing the original act.

The last legislative grant towards the support of a post-office had been by the resolve §§ of June 11, 1696.

There can be no doubt of the sincere desire of the provincial Assembly to afford facilities and encouragement to those who had been appointed to manage this monopoly, provided the concession should not be improved to so extend the royal prerogative as to impair or defeat rights and privileges granted or reserved in their charter. But in the Legislature there was a constant and not unfounded jealousy of this constitutional but undefined function of sovereignty. It was feared the extravagant ideas of the right of dominion by the crown constantly and offensively advanced by those, who, in deference to this supposed legal attribute of the sovereign, opposed any diminution of regal power and by those who sought the favor of royalty by reckless subserviency would, unless prudently and seasonably controlled, supplant the liberties of the subject. It was this jealousy and a strict observance of the rule obsta principis that constrained the popular leaders to insist upon some objections which under other circumstances might appear frivolous, or at least uncalled for.

The first action taken by the Council upon the draught of the act submitted by the Governor was to order that it be transcribed by the Secretary and "brought in on Tuesday morning next and then read." Accordingly, on Tuesday, June 6, 1699, the transcript having been prepared, it was brought in and read and ordered to be read a second time the next morning.

The following is printed from the copy made by the Secretary:—

Massachusetts Bay An Act For erecting and establishing a Post Office.

Whereas his Majesty and her late Majesty Queen Mary by their Royal Letters patents under the Great seal of England, bearing date the 17th day of February which was in the year of our Lord God 1691—did grant to Thomas Neale Esq; his Executors Administrators & assigns full power and authority to erect, settle & establish within Their said Majesty's Colonies & plantations in America, one or more Office or Offices for receiving and dispatching of Letters and Pacquets by posts and to receive, send and deliver the same under such rates and sums of money as the Planters and others should agree to give on the first settlement! To have, hold and enjoy the same for the Term of one & twenty years with and under such powers, limitations and conditions as in and by the said Letters patents may more fully appear. And whereas his Majesty's Post master General of England at the request, desire and nomination of the said Thomas Neale hath deputed Andrew Hamilton Esq; for such time & under such conditions as in his deputation for that purpose is mentioned, to govern and manage the said General Post Office for and throughout all his Majesty's Plantations and Colonies in the Maine Land or Continent of America and the Islands adjacent thereto, as in and by the said Deputation may more fully appear. And whereas the said Andrew Hamilton on the behalfe of the said Thomas Neale by and with the good liking and approbation of his Majesty's Post master General of England, hath made application to his Excellency the Governour, Council and Representatives convened in General Assembly that they would ascertain and establish such rates & sums of money Upon Letters and Pacquets going by Posts as may be an effectual encouragement for carrying on and maintaining a general post. And his Excellency and Council and Representatives convened in General Assembly considering that the maintaining of mutual and speedy Correspondencies is very beneficial to his Majesty and his subjects and a great encouragement to Trade, and that the same is best carried on and managed by publick Posts as well for preventing inconveniencies which heretofore have hapned for want thereof, as for a certain safe speedy dispatch carrying and recarrying of all Letters and Pacquets of Letters by Posts to and from all parts and places within the Continent of America, and several parts of Europe and that the well ordering thereof is a matter of general concernment and of great advantage

On the seventh this bill was read a second time and committed. The committee, consisting of Stoughton, Danforth, Winthrop, Cooke, Hathorne, Elisha Hutchinson, Russell, Sewall, Lothrop, Thomas, Byfield and Secretary Addington, — Stoughton being chairman, — were ordered to sit the same afternoon. On the eighth they were ordered to sit again.

No record of further action on this bill has been discovered; but the following memorandum in the handwriting of Sewall remains on file with the bill, and is undoubtedly Sewall's proposition for filling the blanks in the paragraph corresponding to the second section of the act of 1693, and for making obligatory on the postmaster the provision in the last clause of that paragraph for the delivery of the mail:—

“ Post-Rode in Connecticut . . . . .	6 <sup>d</sup>
From Boston to Salem . . . . .	2 <sup>d</sup>
To all places beyond Salem on this side of Merrimack River . . . . .	3 <sup>d</sup>
On y <sup>e</sup> other side Merrimack River to Portsmouth } . . . . .	4 <sup>d</sup>
or New-Castle . . . . .

AA The Post-master shall then be obliged to send them forth unto the respective houses in Boston of the persons to whom they are directed, and shall have and receive one penny more for each packet or Letter so sent home

From 1699 until the present year no attempt at further legislation for encouragement of the post office appears to have been made, and with the exception of payments on account of freight, expressage, etc., for the public service* no payments were made to the postmaster from the province treasury. This year, however, Duncan Campbell having died,† John Campbell who succeeded him as postmaster presented to the Legislature the petition mentioned in the preamble to this chapter, which ran as follows:—

“To His Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq; Capt Generall and Govr In Cheife In and over her Majes Province, of the Massachussets [Bay †] In New-England &c And To The Honorable Her Majes Council, And the Representatives of the Same Convened In Generall Assembly, And now sitting In Boston the 26th day of May Anno Domj: 1703.

The Humble Petition of John Campbell Post-Master of New-England &c Sheweth.

That Whereas The Post-Office, within This Province, euer since Its first settlement, hes been found and still continues to be of great use and service, and almost of absolut necessity To Her Majes Government, and the Com[un]erce of her Majes Subjects In this and the Neighbouring Colonys, And Whereas The Act of this province that first settled the Same, was but temporary, and expired In the year 1696, without euer having been since revived, Whereby The Post office, is now rendered verȳ precarious and uncertain, And Labours under so many discouragements, that unless Speedily and effectually supported, secured and Advanced, by An Act of this Great and Generall Court or Assembly, It must necessarily faile and come to nothing, To the Great Hurt and Injurie of her Majes Government [In †] this Country, And the great damage and Loss of Trade and Commerce in these parts, your Petitioner being utterlie discouraged, and Incapable of Continuing the Same, as It is now Circumstanced.

Your Petitioner Therfor most Humbly Pray's

That your Excellency, And this Great and Generall Assembly, Will be pleased to Take the premisses, Into your most mature, and wise consideration, As also the Memoriall which your Petitioner do's herewithall most Humbly offer: And for the future so secure and provide for the post office, As that it may attain the end, for which it was at first established, And your Petitioner as in Duty bound shall euer pray, being allways

Your Excellencys And Honours.

Most Humble, obedient and faithfull Servant.

JNO. CAMPBELL.” — Ibid., p. 341.

The memorial which accompanied the petition and a memorandum presented by the petitioner the same session ran as follows:—

“The Memoriall of John Campbell master of the Post office of Boston and New England, Relating To the Post office, Humbly offered to the great and General Court or Assembly; of her majes Province, of the Massathussets Bay, in New England Now sitting, at Boston the 26th May 1703.

1. Inprimis That the Patent for the Post office, In the North part of the Contient of America, granted by their excellent majes, King William and Queen Mary in the fourth year of their Reigne, unto Thomas Neal Esq; his exco; adminis; and assignes, was for Twenty one years, from the 17th febr̄y 1691. to the 17th febr̄y 1712.

2. That there was an act past In the Generall Court at Boston for settling A post office by vertue of s<sup>d</sup> Patent In Anno 1693. Granting Priviledges as P<sup>d</sup> said Act appears, wch was to be in force only Three Years viz: to anno 1696 since wch time no act hes been revived for want wherof, a great many Irregularities are Committed, and said Office Like to Drop and come to nothing.

3. That Coll<sup>o</sup> Hamilton the Post master General In this Countrey deputed Thereto by the Post master General of England &c According to a Clause in the Patent being appointed and nominated by Thom<sup>s</sup> Neale Esq; to Erect & settle said post Office wch accordingly he did, and is out of Purse severall years agoe above £1400 ster<sup>l</sup> In settling the same, and to this Day is not yet able by the Incomes thereof to Defray the necessary charge in maintaining the same.

4. That Coll<sup>o</sup> Hamilton who was at the Charge in settling said office, could never be reimbursed by said Thom<sup>s</sup> Neale Esq; and was necessitated to take a mortgage, of said Patent or else have nothing, so that the priviledge of said Patent now devolves upon Coll<sup>o</sup> Hamilton and his heires exco; &c

* Upon Campbell's petition the following orders were passed in Council for paying his account of charges and expenses in conveying of letters and expresses for his majesty's service out of the post road and on days in which the post does not go; viz., April 22, 1697, five pounds. — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 2, p. 461. (Mass. Archives, vol. 122, p. 82); February 9, 1693, £3 15s., — Ibid., vol. 3, p. 2 (Archives, vol. 122, p. 150); May 9, 1700, £13 1s., including, besides, freight and storage of Bellomont's household goods from New York, — Ibid., p. 115; July 30, 1703, £20 5s., — Ibid., p. 460 (Archives, vol. 122, p. 200).

† Administration was granted on the estate of Duncan Campbell to his widow, Susanna, July 29, 1702. The consanguinity of Duncan and John has not been discovered, though their business relations and the fact that the latter was one of the commissioners upon the insolvent estate of the former are grounds for supposing that possibly they were connected by blood. On the other hand there were distinct differences in the arms engraved on their seals. Duncan Campbell is mentioned by John Dunton, in his “Life and Errors,” London: 1705, p. 128, as having won the affections of “a young Lady of a Great Fortune;” and in his “Letters from New England,” published by the Prince Society, Boston, 1867, the same author refers to the marriage of this “brisk young fellow.” This was in 1685. Mr. Whitmore, the accomplished editor of the latter publication, gives in a note (p. 80), the names of five children of Campbell by this wife, Susanna Porter, granddaughter of William Pitt of Marblehead. The first child was born May 27, 1687, and the last was born March 2, 1699-1700. There is nothing to show that Campbell was previously married. John Campbell postmaster and, for the first eighteen years, publisher of the Boston News-Letter, which he established, had by his wife, Mary, a daughter Sarah born in 1687, who became the wife of James Bowdoin and was buried December 24, 1713. (Sevall's Diary, vol. 11., p. 413.) John Campbell died March 4, 1723-9, aged seventy-five years. Therefore the surmise that he was a son of Duncan is not probable, to say the least.

5 That There is now Ten years elapsed since the first settlement of the Post Office, and about a year and an halfe before the settlement, and about nyne and an halfe to run out of the terme of the Patent, and since Coll<sup>o</sup> Hamilton is so much money out of pocket already, and the Incomes not yet sufficient to Defray the necessary charge in upholding it, It will be but a just thing to revive the former Act and to Continue it to his heirs &<sup>e</sup> Dureing ye Terme of s<sup>d</sup> Patent, wth an additional Amendment of said Act In severall Clauses and paragraphs thereof so much advantagious and Beneficiall to the Publick &<sup>e</sup> dose as Leist save the publick £150  $\Psi$  annuū: that otherwayes must be pay'd for expresses If there were no post.

6. That every body Carrying of Letters, to & from Townes where post Offices are settled, is a very great hinderance and discouragment to said office; often thereby Letters from Conetticut Colony are Carryed to Piscataqua, and put into the Office there some Weeks & months after written and sent, and at Last come from Piscataqua to Boston so that the Office is blamed for it, without a Cause, and on the Contrary Letters from Piscataqua come in the Western maile.*

7. That the Letters from Europe and West Indies and other places, that come in by sea, the one halfe is not brought to the office, those that do come pays but two pence one penny of w<sup>ch</sup> goes to the master, and those employed to Receive them, and the other penny is lost in Dead Letters (remaining in the severall post offices) of such persons that are dead and gone, severall Letters ffor England and West Indies that wee send away gratis and severall Letters that persons will not take up & pay for.

8. That the fferrymen are very backward in carrying those employed in the Post Office, and do require money sometimes, yea often backward to Dispatch expresses when sent by the Govern<sup>t</sup>, and do judge it proper all employed in the post office should be fferry free both man & horse.

9. That in regard the Post master Generall as said is, † Is incapacitated to give such sallarys to the severall post masters as is requisit, to Discharge that trust as should be, all persons concerned in said office, shall be free from watchings, trainings, or any other publick service and either freed from Rates, or excise free, or some other benefit equal to it.

10 That all masters of ships &<sup>e</sup> be oblidged under a penaltie to deliver their Letters at the post Office, and to Call for all Letters on board his Vessel from passingers and seamen, w<sup>ch</sup> passingers and seamen shall Incurr the Like penaltie for not delivering them to the master and in caise said master do not deliver them himselfe at the said Office, but sends them either by one of his servants, passingers, or any other Deputed by the post master to Receive them, then said master shall seal them up in a Bagge, alwayes wth an Alphabettical List faillie drawn up, that no Letters may be Imbezelled as often they are, and in caise the postmaster or Deputy is necessitated to go on board for s<sup>d</sup> Letters then the master to have but one halfe of his allowance, the other halfe for the post master and his Deputy or Deputy.

11. For want of such an act a great many Letters are miscarryed, and often Letters come into the Office from one and the same ship some Two Dayes after the first some three or four dayes, some Two three † Weeks, & some two or three months, w<sup>ch</sup> I can prove to be true.

12. That wheras there was usnallie allowed from this Govern<sup>t</sup> the first three years of the foresaid Act, A sallary for encouragment of said Office, and nothing hes been allowed since, It is requisit with submission that said sallary may be now granted for the time elapsed it hes not been allowed and payed, and for the future Continued.

13. And That in the 6th Paragraph of the former Act, after the Port of Boston be added, and particular offices in other Towns of this Colony.

14. That something might be done, to Cause people to pay for their Letters when sent out.

15. That some Clause in the Act be made for further encouragment, That all Townes in this province under some penaltie where no post office is settled, be oblidged to Call for their Letters at the next post Towne within some limited time and pay the postmaster for them." — Ibid., p. 337.

* The practice of sending by any convenient opportunity rather than by a special or stated post was of long standing. Thus Walley, in writing from Bristol to Governor Hinckley at Plymouth May 8, 1690, declares that he sends by his "neighbor Throop to save the charge of a post" (Mass. Hist. Soc. Coll., vol. V., fourth series, p. 253). There were unaccountable delays in transporting the mails to and from Connecticut. In 1673 the letter from William Coddington of Rhode Island to Governor John Winthrop at Hartford (to be forwarded "with speed") in which the former announces that "we . . . have seteled a post from this Island to New London," was endorsed by the latter as received on the twenty-second of August, although it is dated the sixth (Ibid., vol. VII., pp. 292-3). The journey between Newport and New York, partly by packet against head winds, and partly on horseback through Long Island, was accomplished in five or six days, which could have been done entirely by boat, with favorable winds, in less than two days. On the second of June the petition and memorial were referred by the Council to Elisha Hutchinson and John Foster, who, on the next day, reported as follows, the clause fixing and apportioning compensation being omitted:—

“Wee are humbly of opinion that an order be made by this Great & Gen<sup>l</sup> Assembly that all Masters of ships & vessells arriveing here under the penalty of five pounds deliver their letters to the Post Master or his deputy sealed up in a bag or bundle with an Alphabetical list fairly drawn up—for each letter to receive of said Post Master one half penny—

JOHN FOSTER.”—Ibid., p. 341.

This report the Council forthwith accepted, and after adding the clause in Italics as above, sent the report to the representatives as an order for them to concur in. On the twenty-second of July the House concurred with an amendment changing the amounts italicized, from twenty and forty pounds to ten and twenty pounds, respectively, to which, on the same day, the Council agreed and the Governor consented.

On the fifth of August, 1703, an order for the payment of ten pounds was passed by the Council * and on the eighteenth of July, 1704, the Board † issued a warrant on the province treasurer for twenty pounds under this chapter, and the treasurer’s accounts ‡ contain entries charging Campbell with those amounts.

Chap. 31. This chapter is from council records, vol. VII., p. 415. It has not been found in the archives.

In his speech at the opening of the Assembly this year the Governor congratulated the representatives that “neither the coast nor our open frontier to the continent have been troubled with the enemy,” which condition of peace he attributed to the small military force sent by him to the eastern parts of the province in fulfilment of his intention as expressed in the note to chapter five of the resolves of the year 1702-3.

The good results expected of the treaty of June 3, 1701, § and of the Governor’s interview with the Indian chiefs at Pemaquid in July, 1702, || were retarded by the conduct of Captain Samuel Chadwell of the privateer sloop Flying Horse, who in March, 1703, at Naskeag Point opposite Mount Desert, plundered the house of Paul Meunier, a Frenchman, killing the owner and beating “one or more of the Indians” to whom he was allied and who were under the protection of the province.

The Governor took prompt measures to make all due reparation for this injury, forthwith summoning Chadwell before him, depriving him of his commission, breaking his sword, and committing him a close prisoner to the Castle, at the same time ordering the plunder to be returned and directing the Indians to collect what evidence they could of the injuries inflicted by the prisoner. Meanwhile he examined the crew of the Flying Horse, and ordered them to return to the sloop “and to attend their duty on board,” evidently to have them in readiness as witnesses in further proceedings.

This conduct of the Governor and his promises of reparation being communicated to the Indians at Penobscot by Messrs. Penhallow and Atkinson, who were dispatched for that purpose by the Governor, elicited from them professions of entire satisfaction, inasmuch that Major March sent a dispatch to the Governor that the Indians were so well pleased with the promised restitution to be made to them and to Meunier’s widow “that they did not desire any person should be put to death for the killing of said Meunier, but otherwise punished.”

§ Note to resolves, 1702, chapter 66.

|| Ibid., chapter 54.

This dispatch the Governor laid before the Council on the first day of May.

The prospect of reconciliation continued for several weeks, as appears by the following passage in Dudley's speech* at the opening of the first session of the next Assembly:—

"I Expected when I last parted from you I should have given you an Account of another Enterveiw I might have had with the sachems of the Eastern parts which I Judge very Necessary but the Infraction made by our own people upon some of them in freindship with us at Penobscot delayed mee until I might have given them a very full assurance that the mischeif done upon them was without my Knowledge which by the restitution of their goods and the severe treatment of those Ill men I beleive by this time is done to their satisfaction and has now given mee a proper time again to Demand their Attendance upon mee which all my officers in those parts urge may be presently upon many good reason."—Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 8.

The relations between the English and the French allies of the Indians, however, were not wholly reassuring. Two weeks before the Governor uttered the foregoing speech he had been obliged, while informing the Council that the Indians of Penneckook had "returned to their usual settlement there," and that he "hoped they would be kept in good order," to communicate letters from Major March and Captain Southack, sent express "from Casco Bay, advising that upon Munday the 10th currant, one Newman, Master of a Sloop, and his company being four in the whole, as they were cutting of sparrs upon Consens Island in Casco Bay, were surpris'd by three Frenchmen & three Indians armed, who killed one of the s<sup>d</sup> Newman's men, kept two more prisoners, and having rifled the sloop, sent the s<sup>d</sup> Newman in her to Casco Bay. And that upon his arrival there with the s<sup>d</sup> Intelligence, the s<sup>d</sup> Major March and Capt<sup>n</sup> Southack had sent to Moxis and the other Indian Sachems to Inform them of what had happed. And to know whither any of their Indians were Actors in the s<sup>d</sup> Insult, and whither they countenanced the same, and also made out a party of Men to go to the place and bring off the body of the dead Man."†

The Governor now felt that the situation on the eastern frontiers demanded his presence at the earliest convenient opportunity. On the thirty-first, therefore, he announced to the Assembly his intention "to go to the Eastward, To Morrow seven Night [Tuesday, June eighth] to speak with the Indian Sachems & to endeavour to steady them in the English Interests."‡ Accordingly, on the day appointed, he adjourned the General Court to the thirtieth of June § in order to prevent any interference with the legislative duties of himself and of those who were to accompany him. On the ninth|| he left Boston on his way to Casco Bay. On the thirtieth the conference with the Indians was concluded.

Although the Governor returned by the seventh of July ¶ the proceedings at Casco Bay seem not to have transpired until the ninth of August, when Sewall "at the Coffee House" read the journal or report** thereof, and made the abstract printed below.

† May 14, 1703. Executive Records of the Council, vol. 3, p. 437.

‡ Council Records, vol. VII, p. 390.

§ It was continued by three subsequent adjournments to Thursday, the eighth of July; for, the Lieutenant-Governor having returned by the thirtieth, sent a message to the House on the second of July, and no business being offered by the latter he adjourned the Assembly first to the fifth and then to the eighth.

|| As by vote of the Council of New Hampshire Captain Thomas Smith, commander of the Gosport, received "forty pieces of Eight, from the Treasurer of this Province, on board, on their voyage to Casco Bay" (Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II, p. 400), it is probable that the vessel sailed from Portsmouth, and the following entry in Sewall's Diary rather confirms the supposition that the Governor embarked there:—

¶ "July, 7th 1703. Mr. Secretary, Major Walley, Major Brenton and I went by Charlestown to the bether edge of Maldon, and so met the Gov<sup>t</sup> in his Return homeward from Casco-Bay."—Ibid., p. 81.

** This report he borrowed on the twelfth and made from it the following abstract:—

CASCO-BAY, June 30, 1703.

The Queen of England in six months time of War with French King and Spanish King, has Taken more Towus and done more Exploits, than the great and valiant King William did in Twelve years. And besides all this which she hath don by Land, her Fleet by Sea hath taken 40. Sails; Taken much Money, the Royal Crown sent the Spanish King from N. Spain. Notwithstanding all this I offer peace. T was once very dark here about 20 or 30 years ago; was great Troubles, and also great Troubles among our selves. New Hundred now, new Century, and would have the Old Hundred to be forgotten, and never talk'd of any more; New Hundred, new Queen, new Governour now will be all in new friendship. When any French March through the Country, Stop them or give notice to the Fort: For it is easy if there be but Ten Indians in some parts of the Country to fetch away whole families, and they not able to defend them selves. I have very particular Intelligence from Kebeck and Port Royal, they have two partys out at this time, would have you keep back those partys according to the Treaty of peace made two years agoe. I do it not to boast of my self, but I Trust in God. I have Twelve Hundred and fifty men impress'd in N. England, ready to march at Six hours warning: they are enough to disturb all the Indians in the Country. Indians are able like Wolves to disturb men, but not to do them any damage; they are not able to hurt us in the least, and I value them not, no more than the paring of my nails. And the great Queen of England has order'd me 17. sail of Men of War all superior to the Gosport; which I may improve to do any thing upon the French or any of our Enemies. And I am confident that time will come that nothing, nor no one will remain but English here and Indians. For the Indians part they may remain a happy people if they will themselves.—I have the Assistance of the Noble Gov<sup>t</sup> of N. York, who is a Kinsman of the great Queen of England.—I acknowledge have kept their promise in not passing Saco River.—If arrest and stop French partys will give them a good Reward for it. And methinks I see among you some that I know that are fit to be made Officers to bear Comission for the Queen of England, to bear Rule among you, who shall be my Officers, and shall be Rewarded from time to time, as my other officers at Boston, or any where else are; every month they shall be paid off as our own people.—have nothing more in the world to say but to persuade them that I am an honest man and their Brother:—our boys and youth will go and do beyond their prudence or strength; but these old men these Sachems here present, they and I are old men and should be discreet and wise, so as that when we dye we

This abstract is the only record of the treaty now known to exist.

There is a discrepancy as to the date of this treaty in the accounts of Niles and Penballow, on the one hand, and Sewall, on the other. The former, which have been uniformly followed by late writers, make it the twentieth, while the latter, as shown above, dates his abstract of the treaty the thirtieth, of June. These conflicting statements may be reconciled by supposing that the conference was called for the twentieth and actually held on the thirtieth. That the treaty could not have been concluded at the former date is clear from the following entry in the council records:—

“June 30, 1703. His Honour the Lieutenant Governour received an Express from his Excellency dated at Casco Bay the 27th of June Currant, intimating that he is necessarily detained there, The Indians not coming in so soon as he expected, And that he wanted the Assistance of the Gentlemen of the Council & the Speaker of the Representatives & could not dismiss them at present, Directing his Honour to send for the Representatives, And to intimate to them to proceed to the Adjustment & Settlement of the Apportioning of the Tax granted at the Session of the General Assembly held at Cambridge in October last, And that he hoped to see them in ten Days.” — Vol. VII., p. 401.

The councillors who accompanied the Governor on this “journey and voyage” were Elisha Hutchinson, John Phillips, and James Converse. With them were other gentlemen from Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

As early as the thirty-first of May, when the Governor first proposed his visit to Penobscot, he announced to the Council his intention to appoint Belcher commissary-general,* and on the eighth of June, when he was about to prorogue the Assembly to begin his journey, he read to the Council and signed his commission for that office, whereupon the Council passed the following order:—

might be carried to our Graves with honor. Let them consider two hours and give me their Answer — Gave them a good Ox and 20 — bushels corn for diner: They return'd Thanks for their noble diner and all other Kindnesses offer'd to them. Then, said his Excellency here is a Peace, and Satisfaction to the two Nations.

INDIANS ANSWER.

First breach was at Penobscot, which was the first thing in the morning. The 2<sup>d</sup> was the Frenchmen and Indians, they broke the peace in doing that mischief at Casco: but we do affirm that we did not know of their coming, but of their going back we knew of it: but we calling to remembrance what was don at Penobscot before, and so we thought fit not to meddle of neither side.

TWO BEVERS.

Again they say that what his Excellency was pleased to tell them, was not the same as their French was, i. e. to make war as the French would have them. His Excellency's desire is that we should be peaceably on both sides, for which we return him many a hearty Thanks and tell him we resolve to doe it.

TWO BEVERS.

His Excellency was pleas'd to desire them in the next place that if any of the English should be Taken by the French and carried over their Ground or through their Country, that we should bring them back again, and not suffer them to be carried through as Captives; but that we should do well to bring them back again. But if we should do so, such a thing as that would make us seem guilty, and so thereby we might be thought to be concern'd, when we are not.

TWO BEVERS.

There is about the Mohawks a great many ready to fight, not certain of the number, but hope to know in a day or two, for have sent scouts to Albany.

TWO BEVERS.

Again they wonder that his Excellency would be pleas'd to tell them, or desire any of them to come upon wages upon any account. For they desire it not. But their desire is to be as Neuters; not to medle nor make, nor to stir or act in any thing one way or other.

THREE BEVERS.

Now they desire to come and pay their Respects to the Gov<sup>r</sup>, since have said all they have to say.

Gov<sup>r</sup> will have them stay and hear his Answer a little — Action at Penabscot and Casco much alike: But Gov<sup>r</sup> N. E. hated the Action as to the Frenchmans death: Gov<sup>r</sup> French nourished and embraced the Casco breach; sent them to do the thing. If resolve to sit still and be quiet, I shall remain perfectly satisfied in all things and desire to remain as au entre and dear Brother unto them.

May stop the French from Marching through their Country and yet remain Neuters still; they mistake if think otherwise: Be call'd Captains and Officers; why this is pure honour meant to them not that they should be expos'd to march or fight, but to be as my Brother, as I am to them. And if I would honor them so far as to make them Captains and to send them a present now and then, why it is honor: not that I desire they should be expos'd to fight upon any occasion. Tell Moxes I am willing to honor Moxes' son that was with me, with the place of a Captain here: not that I expect him to be expos'd to fight; no not so much as to fire a pi-ee: but that we may live as Brothers and that I may send him a piece of Cloth once a year. — Penecook Indians not return till after Harvest.

Then the Gov<sup>r</sup> and Sachems repaired to the heaps of stones, and put up each man a stone again.” — Diary, vol. II., pp. 85-87. [For an account of the beginning of these stone-heaps see the note to resolves, 1702, chapter 66.]

* “His Excellency intimated to the Council, That it being necessary a Commissary General should be appointed for the Supply of the Garrisons & Forces [“Forts,” according to the State Library series] &c employed in this Time of War, He should Commissionate Andrew Belcher Esq; for that Place.” — Council Records, vol. VII., p. 391.

For some time before this appointment Belcher had supplied her majesty's garrisons and vessels of war with provisions; thus, April 16, 1703, his accounts for that service were committed to John Walley and Penn Townsend "to examine and report the same,"* and on the first of May the following entry appears in the executive records of the council:—

"May 1, 1703. Several Accountts of Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>r</sup> for Provisions &c<sup>a</sup> supplied for the Sloop Sea Flower and the Ship Greyhound, both taken up in her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s service. For provisions to subsist the souldiers posted in her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s service at Wells, for storage of Powder and other disbursements for the Province, amounting in the whole to the sum of Two hundred sixty four pounds, five shillings and four pence (including thirty six shillings and Ten pence payable to Josiah Parker of Cambridge) audited and Reported by John Walley and Penn Townsend Esq<sup>r</sup>s were approved and allowed—And Advised and Consented That a Warrant be made out to Mr Treasurer to pay the above mentioned sum of Two hundred sixty four pounds five shillings and four pence to the s<sup>d</sup> Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>r</sup> accordingly."—Ibid., p. 435.

The office of commissary-general seems not to have been regarded by the General Court as purely military, for in September following Belcher's appointment a message sent from the Council to the House proposing "an establishment for a commissary-general and two sub-commissaries for the forces" resulted in the choice of Belcher by the joint vote of the Council and House. Although this vote is recorded as of the eighth, Belcher's accounts as commissary were allowed on the sixth; but it is noticeable that in this chapter the mention of his office seems intentionally omitted.

The order in Council † for the payment of this allowance was passed August 5, 1703, and by the province treasurer's account ‡ the order appears to have been duly complied with.

The commissary's account did not embrace all the expenses incurred on this occasion, as appears by the following entries in the executive records of the council:—

"July 9, 1703. An Account of Expences in his Excellency's Journey to Casco Bay in June last with attendants and Guard, amounting to the sum of seventy one pounds, three shillings and two pence, was presented, read & allowed—and.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to Mr Treasurer for payment of the said sum of seventy one pounds three shillings and two pence, unto Capt<sup>n</sup> Benj<sup>t</sup> Alford for defraying of the several articles of Expence therein mentioned.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to Mr Treasurer to pay the sum of nine pounds, eleven shillings and eight pence unto John Honywell for Eleven hundred and fifty pound of Fresh Beef had of him, and expended at the time of his Excellency's late conference with the Sachems & Indians at Casco Bay."—Ibid., p. 451.

WOLFGANG W RÖMER." — Ibid., p. 637.

The statement appears to have been read in the House on the twenty-sixth, and the second memorial on the twenty-seventh, of July, when the resolve was framed and passed and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the same day it was concurred in by the Council and consented to by the Governor.

The circumstances which led to the retirement of Captain Timothy Clarke, one of the committee to manage the expenditure of money appropriated for the works on Castle Island, have been shown in the note to resolves, 1702, chapter 34, and in chapter 15 of the resolves of the year 1702-3 and note. Upon the passage of the present chapter Thomas Brattle asked to be relieved from further service upon the same committee unless he could be permitted to exercise, in conjunction with his former associate, the authority with which they had been originally invested. Brattle's petition is as follows: —

Your petition<sup>r</sup> therefore having ben thus shamefully abused & Disparaged by means of s<sup>d</sup> Colonel Römer, notwithstanding his utmost endeavours at all times to please & oblige him, & not being able any longer to keep in so good terms with him as is necessary for y<sup>e</sup> publick service, Dos humbly pray this Hon<sup>ble</sup> assembly will be pleased to Discharge yo<sup>r</sup> petition<sup>r</sup>, & comply with him in his deliberate & fix'd resolutions of being no further Concerned in any wise wth y<sup>e</sup> s<sup>d</sup> Colonel Römer about s<sup>d</sup> Fortifications, unless yo<sup>r</sup> petition<sup>r</sup> may be fully restored wth Capt<sup>no</sup> Clark to their first Commission, & thereby protected from y<sup>e</sup> unjust usurpations of him y<sup>e</sup> s<sup>d</sup> Colonel Römer.

THO. BRATTLE." — Ibid., p. 644.

This petition was read, first in the House and then in the Council, on the thirtieth, without further action until the fifth of August, when the following order and vote of advice were passed: —

"Aug. 5, 1703. Whereas Thomas Brattle Esq<sup>r</sup> being further impowred to lay out the money granted by the General Assembly at their last Session for finishing the Fortifications on Castle Island, as Col<sup>l</sup> Römer Her Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Engineer should direct, has declined further intermeddling in that affair.

Ordered, That Col<sup>l</sup> Römer have the care of laying out the s<sup>d</sup> money — and.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to Mr Treasurer to pay him one hundred pounds of the sum last granted by the General Assembly. He to be accountable to the Board for his disposal thereof accordingly." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 3, p. 460.

On the thirteenth of August a warrant on the province treasurer for the payment of two hundred pounds to Brattle, out of the seven hundred pounds granted by this chapter, was ordered by the Council,* for discharging debts contracted during his term of service; and a warrant for one hundred pounds more for the same purpose was ordered on the twenty-first of October.† In like manner, besides the warrant for one hundred pounds ordered to Römer in the above vote of the Council, an order was passed on the twenty-eighth of October‡ for paying one hundred and fifty pounds, on Römer's account, to Zechariah Tuthill, captain of the Castle; another, on the twenty-third of December,§ for one hundred pounds to Römer, and still another, January 31, 1703-4,|| to him for fifty

By chapter 16, ante, appeals to the Superior Court from the Inferior Court of Common Pleas in Hampshire in the years 1701 and 1702 were revived, to be entered at the regular term in August, this year; but by the present chapter the beginning of that term was postponed to the first Monday in September, on which day an act† was passed discontinuing the terms of the Superior Court in Hampshire “for and during the continuance of the present danger and troubles with the Indians,” and providing for all pending and future appeals from the Courts of Common Pleas and from the Courts of Sessions. In accordance with this chapter therefore, the Superior Court did not sit in Hampshire this year, and no record exists of a session there before August 18, 1698, nor after that date until August 30, 1716.

The following is the petition referred to in the preamble to this chapter:—

“To his Excellency the Governour, The Honorable the Council and Assembly now sitting in Boston

This petition was read first in the Council on the twenty-seventh of July and sent to the House, where it was read the same day and committed. On the thirtieth the order which constitutes this chapter was passed by the House with the following preamble:—

“This House having by a Committee carefully Examined the Petition and Acc<sup>ts</sup> of John Partridge and Considered, what Part of the charge ought to be Defrayed by this Province, and what Part by the Province of New Hampshire, and being Desirous that the Petitioner may have his Right, etc.—Ibid., p. 642.

Unfortunately, Partridge's commission, probably unique in its kind, and the orders and certificates which were annexed to his petition have not been found in the archives nor discovered in any private collection; but it appears from an entry in the executive records of the council,‡ under date of September 25, 1704, that a certificate from the treasurer of the province of New Hampshire of the payment of the £48 18s. was produced at the Board, and that thereupon it was advised that a warrant be made out for the payment of thirty pounds, — another warrant for twenty pounds having been issued August 5, 1703.§ The province treasurer's accounts || show that on both of these warrants Partridge was paid according to order.

This petition was read in the House on the second of July and referred to a committee, upon whose report the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed on the thirtieth and sent to the Council for concurrence, where it was concurred in and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council † for the payment of the allowance for this year was passed August 5, 1703, and by the † province treasurer's accounts † it appears not only that this amount was duly paid, but that annally thereafter, up to July 30, 1719, Bull was paid his pension of two pounds. According to Savage he died December 1, 1720.

Chap. 46. This chapter is from archives, vol. 48, p. 359. It is recorded in council records, vol. VII., p. 425.

The earliest movement that has been discovered looking to the establishment of a stated salary for the governor of this province is the following petition by Sir William Phips, on file in the Public Record Office:—

"To the King's most Excellent Majestie

The humble Peticōn of Sr William Phips Kn<sup>t</sup> Governour of Your Majesties Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England.

Most humbly sheweth,

That the Generall Assembly of your Majesties Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England have made noe provision for defraying the necessary expence of Your Majesties Governour of the said Province And notwithstanding they have had it under consideration a sallary is not yett appoynted for that end But your Majesties Peticōner most humbly conceives it will bee appoynted as soon as Your Majesties Royall Will and Pleasure concerning it is signified unto them.

Hee therefore most humbly prayes, That Your Majestie will bee graciously pleased to nominate such a Sallary as Your Majestie shall in your Royall wisdom judge sufficient for the support of Your Majesties Governour of the said Province And that Your Majesties Comānds concerning the same may bee signified unto the Generall Assembly of Your Majesties Province aforesaid That they may yeild obedience thereunto.

And Your Majesties humble Peticōner as in duty bound shall ever pray for Your Majesties long and Happy Reigne &c WILLIAM PHIPS." — "New England, Board of Trade," vol. 1, C. 26.

Though the petition is without date, and no memorandum has been discovered showing when it was presented to the Privy Council or to the Lords of Trade, it must have been before the passage of the first act* ordering a sum to be paid "the Governor, for his service and expence since his arrival," if the allegation is true that the Assembly at the date of his petition had "made no provision for defraying" his "necessary expense," etc.

No trace has been discovered of action upon this petition, nor any further move in the same direction until Dudley became governor. Among the articles of the royal instructions bearing date March 5, 1701-2, which the latter brought with him, was the following, numbered sixteen, which had been procured undoubtedly by his solicitation or with his connivance:—

"Whereas it is necessary that due provision be made for the support of the Governm<sup>t</sup> of our said Province by setting apart sufficient allowances to you our Captain General and Governor in Chief and to our Lieut. Governor or Commauder in chief for the time being residing within the same And whereas our said Province of the Massachusetts Bay has not hitherto taken any manner of care in that matter, tho' the like provision be generally made in our other plantations in America, which are under our immediate Government notwithstanding that divers of them are much less able to do it, You are therefore to propose to the General Assembly of our said Province and accordingly to use your utmost endeavours with them, that an Act be passed for setting and establishing fixed Salaries upon yourself and others our Captains General that may succeed you in that Government, as likewise upon our Lient. Governours or Commaunders in Chief for the time being, suitable to the dignity of those respective offices."—Ibid., vol. 33, pp. 30-60.

The seventeenth instruction recommended the building of a house for the governor.

Dudley did not conceal these commands of the queen. In his first speech to the Assembly, June 16, 1702, he addressed to the representatives the following language, in which he carried the spirit of his instructions beyond the letter:—

"I am further Commaunded By her majesty to observe to you that there is no other Province or Governm<sup>t</sup> Belonging to the Crown of England Except this where there is not Provided a fit and convenient House for the Reception of the Governour and a settled, stated salary, for the Governour, Leiv<sup>t</sup> Governour, Secretary Judges and all other officers which therefore is Recommended to You and since this Province is so particularly favored By the Crown in more Instances than one, their more Ready obedience is Justly Expected in this and all other occasions."—Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 3.

The innovations thus boldly proposed by the Governor were not regarded with favor by the conservatives, and added to the discontent of the popular party. If Dudley so understood the temper of his hearers as to have no fear of violent opposition, the representatives were equally well aware of his weakness, and confident of their ability to overcome his scruples. Therefore, a little more than a week after they had listened to his professions regarding the duty of obedience to the queen's commands, they, as has been shown,† voted to him a present of five hundred pounds; and embodied this vote in the form of a bill, which, three days later, was passed to be enacted and received the Governor's signature. Having thus become a party to this evasion of the royal instructions Dudley prorogued the Assembly, not to meet again in legislative session until October.

When the Governor met the General Court, October 15, 1702, in its second session, he again addressed the representatives as follows:—

"I Did the last session also by Her Majesty's Especiall Command, Lay before you the necessary Provision of a House for the Government at Boston, and a salary for the Governour the Lieutenant Governour, the Judges, and other Officers of the Government, I am Obligated to Tell you Gentlemen that there is no other Part nor Province belonging to the Crown of England, where there is not a stated Honorable support for the Governour and all other Publick Officers, arising from the Countrey, and I hope we shall Prevent it's being Observed at home, that we are particularly Priviledged, and as singular in the neglect of our Duty, I shall lay before the House of Representatives a List of all Officers of salary, and shall Desire your Consideration of it in the first place, and I am sure I have no reason to doubt your Regard to Her Majesty's Directions, to my own just Expectation from you, Either for my self Or any other the Officers of the Government. . . . I have done when I have Told you Gentlemen that I shall serve Her Majesty faithfully and doubt not the same from the other officers, that therefore Expect a just support in their severall stations."—Ibid., p. 5.

The response to this was the further grant of two hundred pounds by the resolve, chapter 61 of that year, passed after the Governor had called the representatives before him‡ to remind them of the queen's instructions, which he now formally communicated to them. But the communication came too late. The act of the previous session to which the Governor had affixed his signature in token of consent and which was probably already before the Privy Council, where it was approved in due course, was a precedent that might be effectually set up against any contrary previous orders or directions of the queen. But not to insist too strictly or parsimoniously upon their undoubted privileges this last grant was passed by the Assembly upon reconsideration of a resolve in which they had voted the Governor six hundred pounds for the year, including the first grant of five hundred pounds.§

The manner in which Dudley was induced to accept this grant, made in disregard of his instructions, appears on the face of the resolve as printed in volume VII. A similar course was pursued in the present instance, and, as will be seen, he was again induced to take what the Legislature offered him in the expectation that the amount would be subsequently increased to his satisfaction.

During the special session of 1702-3. Dudley seems not to have alluded to the subject of the judges' salaries; yet while in his opening speech,|| May 27, 1703, he earnestly recommended that these be increased, the only hint he made respecting his own salary is contained in the following passage:—

“And Gentlemen I must freely acquaint you that it would be the Last Inconvenience upon mee to be forced to represent to her Majesty that the Government of this province must fayle in any part or branch of it for want of a Just support for persons in publick offices, which will be absolutely new from any plantation belonging to the Crown of England,

I shall Continue Gentlemen to do my duty and as much as in mee Lyes to steady every body in theirs, and doubt not of assistance from all good men that Love the Crown and Government of England and the Just dependance thereupon especially vnder the serene and happy administration thereof in the hands of her present Majesty.”—Ibid., p. 9.

Upon the approach of the last week of this session, nothing having been done towards providing for the Governor's salary, a committee was sent from the Council to the representatives to move “for an Allowance to be made to his Excy. for his Service in the Government in the Year commenced & of what fell short the Year past.”*

In response to this motion the resolve which constitutes this chapter, and which was passed by the House of Representatives on the twenty-third of July, and was concurred in by the Council on the thirtieth, was first read in the Council on the twenty-fourth. On the same day it was “sent back to the House, with a message to reconsider the same.” On the twenty-seventh, the representatives having returned it to the Council “without any Alteration . . . the Secretary with Andrew Belcher & Edw<sup>d</sup> Bromfield Esq<sup>rs</sup> were sent with the said Resolve on a Message to the House for Explanation thereof, Whether it was a Gratuity or Payment for Service & for what Time, And to move the Consideration of the House for a suitable & Honourable Allowance to be made his Excy. Agreeable to his Station, as her Majesties Govern<sup>r</sup> for the year Currant.”†

No immediate response being made to this message, and the Governor intending to prorogue the Assembly on the thirty-first, he summoned the representatives to the council chamber and addressed them respecting sundry matters which he deemed it important for them to act upon, and “Also reminded them of a suitable Support for the Govern<sup>r</sup> Lieuten<sup>t</sup> Govern<sup>r</sup> & Justices of the Superiour Court.”‡

This was on the twenty-eighth, and on the twenty-ninth the resolve was again returned to the Council with no further alteration than the words “in part” inserted instead of the word “towards;” and on the next day it was passed, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council § for the payment of this allowance is dated August 5, 1703; and this amount, together with the further sum of two hundred pounds allowed to Dudley by chapter 114, post, is charged as paid to him in the accounts || of the province treasurer.

Chap. 47. This chapter is from council records, vol. VII., p. 426. It is preserved in archives, vol. 40, p. 755.

The case in which the petitioner named in the preamble of this chapter sought relief from the General Court is interesting, not only as illustrating the practice of the provincial courts of law at an early period, but as being the cause of the passage of a perpetual act ¶ regulating the proceedings of the Superior Court upon appeals from judgments in bar or abatement.

Major Thomas Clarke of Boston, who died testate March 13,** 1682-3, devised his estate to his two daughters, Mehetabel, the wife of Humphrey Warren, and Elizabeth, the wife of Elisha Hutchinson, in the following words:—

“For my temporall Estate I give and bequeath unto my daughters Mehitable Warren and Eliz: Hutcheson. whome I appoint my Executrixes, they paying all my just debts and Legacies that I here bequeath in convenient time.”—Suffolk Probate Records, lib. 6, p. 405.

By another clause of this will he charged the devised real estate with the payment of certain legacies, one of which, of one thousand pounds, was to the eldest son of his daughter Elizabeth, “to be paid when he comes to the age of twenty-one years, or day of marriage, with consent of parents, which shall be first.”

This legacy would not be payable before June 17, 1699,†† unless the legatee should marry before that date, which he did not do.

On the first of October, 1697, Mehetabel Warren, describing herself as of Boston, and a widow, conveyed to her “kinswoman,” Mehetabel Cooper, wife of Thomas Cooper of Boston, merchant, “and to the heires of her body begotten or to be begotten their heires and assignes forever all that my one Eighth part of the Grist Water mills, situate standing and being in Boston afores<sup>d</sup> being five in number, three whereof are situate at or near a place commonly called and knowne by the name of Centerhaven in the present keeping and occupation of John Farnham sen<sup>r</sup> miller, and the other two situate upon the Mill Creeke so called, in the present keeping and occupation of John Farnam Jun<sup>r</sup> miller Together with one Eighth part of all and singular the soile and ground whereon the s<sup>d</sup> mills and millhouses and every of them Do stand, and of the said houses, Edifices & Buildings, and also of all and singular the mildams Bankes wharfes, Lands, Ponds pooles, streames, Waters, Watercourses, Headwares Flumes, millstones Wayes, passages, rights, members, profits, priviledges, comodities emoluments, advantages, Utensils and appurtenances what-

Endorsed on this deed was another from the same grantor to the same grantee revoking the reservation of the grantor's life estate and granting and releasing the whole estate to the grantee with a like limitation as in the former deed. This deed was dated May 24, 1700.†

Madam Warren died July 20, 1701, whereupon, it would seem, Hutchinson, assuming that the devise created a joint tenancy in the two sisters, at least for their joint lives, took possession of the whole of the estate in the right of his wife, the surviving sister, and leased to Richard Stratton and William Story the whole of the three grist-mills of which Mehetabel Cooper claimed an undivided eighth part under the deeds from Madam Warren. These mills were situated at or near "Centre Haven," which appears to have included the vicinity of the south-western base of Copp's Hill, and the water power was probably supplied from a tide-gate in the old causeway that gave the name to Causeway Street, and formed the western side of the basin which had an eastern opening to supply other mills west of Mill Bridge on Hanover Street.

To establish their right to a share in the mills, Cooper and wife brought suit "in a plea of trespass and ejectment" against Stratton and Story in the Inferior Court of Common Pleas for Suffolk, of which Elisha Hutchinson was at that time chief justice.

The declaration in the writ (which was dated September 19, 1702,‡ and returnable on the first Tuesday of October, following) charged that the defendants "have Illegally Entred into & doth refuse to deliver to the S<sup>d</sup> Thomas Cooper & Mehetabel his s<sup>d</sup> wife in the right of the s<sup>d</sup> Mehetabel," the share and premises heretofore described "in the present keeping and occupation of the Said Richard Stratton & William Story" and that they, "altho' often thereunto requested the possession of the afores<sup>d</sup> eighth of the afores<sup>d</sup> three grist water mills . . . to the s<sup>d</sup> pl<sup>ts</sup> to deliver have hitherto refused and Still refuse to deliver the possession of the Same to them." The ad damnum was put at five hundred pounds.

The writ was served by Samuel Gookin, sheriff, who took bond from the defendants in five hundred pounds to appear and answer to the suit.

On the fifth of October the defendants executed a joint power of attorney § appointing Anthony Checkley and John Valentine to appear for them in their names in "all courts." This being filed with the clerk, the cause came on to trial before Hutchinson, John Foster, Penn Townsend and Jeremiah Dummer, who had been newly appointed justices by Governor Dudley — their commission being read at the opening of the court. The record, after the caption, is as follows: —

"Thomas Cooper of Boston in the County of Suffolk merch<sup>t</sup> & Mehetabel his wife pl<sup>ts</sup> vs Richard Stratton & W<sup>m</sup> Story of Boston afores<sup>d</sup> millers Def<sup>ts</sup>. In a plea of Trespass & Ejectm<sup>t</sup>, for that the s<sup>d</sup> Richard Stratton & William Story have Illegally Entred into & do refuse to deliver to the pl<sup>ts</sup> the possession of one Eighth part of Certain grist Water mills scituate lying standing & being in Boston afores<sup>d</sup> in the present keeping & occupation of the Def<sup>ts</sup>. Together with one Eighth part of all & singular the soyle & ground whereon the s<sup>d</sup> mills & mill Houses do stand & of the said Houses & appur<sup>es</sup> whatsoever to the s<sup>d</sup> mills belonging, as in the writ or process, reference thereto being had, is at large sett forth & described, the refusing to deliver the possession of the same to the pl<sup>ts</sup> is to their damage as they say the sum of five hundred pounds, The Def<sup>ts</sup> appeared by Anthony Checkley their attorny & moved the Court that the writ might abate for that they the Def<sup>ts</sup> were only servants & not Tenants and therefore an action of Ejectm<sup>t</sup> would not well lye against them as such. It was Considered by the Court after advisement, That the writ should abate for the Insufficiency thereof, and that the Def<sup>ts</sup> recover Costs ag<sup>t</sup> the pl<sup>ts</sup>; The pl<sup>ts</sup> appealed from this Judgment unto the next Superiour Court of Judicature to be holden for this County and Entred into Recognizance with suretys as the Law directes for prosecuting of their said appeal with Effect." — Records in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court in Suffolk County.

The next session of the Superior Court was held on the third of November, and by law the declaration of reasons of appeal was required to be filed fourteen days before that time. Accordingly, on the nineteenth of October, Joseph Hearne, attorney for the appellants, filed in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court the following paper: —

The Accoñ was an Accoñ of Trespasse and Ejectm<sup>t</sup> brought by the Appellts ag<sup>t</sup> the Appellees for the Eighth part of the mills &c as set forth in the Attachm<sup>t</sup>/

To which the Appellees moved the Court that the writt might abate for that they said they were onely serv<sup>ts</sup> and not Tenants & therefore an Accoñ of Ejectm<sup>t</sup> would not well lye ag<sup>t</sup> them as such./

Upon which the writt abated for insufficiency.

Which Judgem<sup>t</sup> the Appellts say is wrong & Erroneous and ought to be reversed for that.

The Appellees whether they were Ten<sup>ts</sup> or not were in the p<sup>re</sup>sent occupacoñ of the p<sup>re</sup>misses sued for and in possession of the p<sup>re</sup>misses sued for at the time of the comencing of said Accoñ and therefore the Appellts conceive the Accoñ was well brought and ought to have proceeded and not abated the Appellees being the onely persons the Law could take notice of./

The case was argued before the full bench, but the point taken being novel and perplexing the court ordered the clerk to make the following entry in his records: —

“The Court will advise untill the next Superior Court to be holden in May next.” — Records of the Superior Court of Judicature, 1700-1714, fol. 84.

At the May term the full bench sat again, and after further hearing the pleas on both sides the court took cognizance of the plea in abatement, overruling it, and, as shown by the record, the case proceeded, as follows: —

“ . . . The Defend<sup>ts</sup> now appearing pleaded That an appeal cannot ly from a non suit, The pleas of both parties being Considered Its determined by the Court That an appeal from an Inferiour Court upon a non suit does ly in this Court. After the verdict, and before judgment had been entered, Hutchinson filed the following paper, in the nature of a motion in arrest of judgment: —

Hutchinson

Execution
Issued out
June 1703

S<sup>d</sup> Hutchinson humbly pleads that for divers Reasons & Laws to be produced the case ought not to be given against him.

The foundation of the title proceeds from y<sup>e</sup> Last Will of Maj<sup>r</sup> Tho Clarke, and therefore speciall regard must be had to the same.

A mans Will ought to be held inviolable & unalterable.

Godolphin* Ch.26.
P. 478. S. 150.

Maj<sup>r</sup> Clarke the Testator, his Intent may be known by the words of his Will.

The testator shal be presumed to have that in his thoughts, w<sup>ch</sup> is not contained in his words. S. 31.

Where the Testators intention may be known by the words of his Will, there all the words in y<sup>e</sup> Will are to be caryed to answer his intent. S. 112.

In the right construction of Wills the Testators intention weighs heavier in Judgment than his words, &c and the words must be all the words and not only one part of them. S. 113.

Out of the words of the Will, and not by averment must the construction of the will be gathered. S. 120.

The intent of the devisor, may alter the very nature of the words in a Will. S. 122.

In the construction of Wills, the words must be guided by the intent of the testator, and such an intent as may be collected out of all y<sup>e</sup> words of the will together : S. 140.

Maj<sup>r</sup> Clarke the Testator, did intend that his two daughters, Mehetable Warren and Elizabeth Hutchinson, should joyntly enjoy all his reall estate (after debts & Legasys paid) dureing their natural lives. and after them to his heirs at Law That this is the Testators minde & meaning is plaine, for the bequest is in y<sup>e</sup> folowing words.

for my temporal Estate I give & bequeath unto my daughters, Mehetable Warren & Elizabeth Hutchinson, whome I appoynt my Executores, they paying all my Just debts and Legasies that I have bequethed in convenient time.

The bequest is to his daughters by name, and not to their heirs, nor for Ever, therefore to them personally, and but for life. and that Joyntly and not seপরately. much less to the assignes of one of them, while the other is living, and never was acquainted with the Convayance.

after his daughters decease the Testat<sup>r</sup>s intent is that his Real Estate should goe to his proper Heirs, & not to any stranger tho nearor related then the plaintiff, no not to his daughters Husbands his sons in Law. and therefor givs each of them One hundred pounds, to put them out of hopes to Injoy his reall estate.

In case the posterity of both his daughters should die before the time of Recieving their portions, Then he givs £.1500. out an Hospitall. and where should this mony be had, if the Estate can be given away to strangers.

And therefore finally takes care that his Onerseors Endeavor to see his will performed, and that security be given for his Gran-childrens portions.

The Testator givs his Reall Estate to his daughters as Joynt Tenants during Life, and not in fee simple. Littleton. Lib. 3. Ch. 3.

Blunts Law dictionary saith Joynt Tenants are those that com to, and hold Lands or Teniments Joyntly by one title. pro indiviso or with out pertition and have the sole quality of survivorship. Coke on Littlton fo. 180.

A. deviseth to his two daughters his Heirs, to them and their Heirs his Lands, they shal be Joynt Tenants. (1) One hath Issue two daughters and deviseth Lands to them in fee, by this they shal be Joynt Tenants and shal com in by the devise, and the survivor shal have the whole. (4) or if one have only two daughters and devise his Lands to them in fee, by this they shal take as Joynt Tenants and not by descent. Godolphin P. 477 S. 126.

If one Joynt Tenant devise his part to a stranger the devise is voyde. P. 312.

if one Joynt Tenant devise his part to a stranger the devise is voyde.

P. 296. S. 6.

Ea intentione in a Will makes a Condition

P. 178. S. 146

A legatery can not trasfer his legacy if he die depending the Condition

P. 464. S. 22

A legaterys Legacy is not transferable to his Execut<sup>r</sup>s if die before the accomplish<sup>t</sup> of the Condition thereto annexed. S. 25.

Madam Warren did die before the accomplish<sup>t</sup> of the condition, therefore could not trasfer the mills now it apperes by what hath been said aboue that Maj<sup>r</sup> Clarke the Testator did not intend to pass his real estate to his daughters, as an Inheritanc in fee simple, by payment of mony.

Altho payment of mony makes a fee simple in some cases. This holds true only in case the intent of the Testator doth not appere to be otherwise. Godolphin P. 321. S. 2.

But he makes that payment a Condition, w<sup>ch</sup> Condition was not performed, when Madd Warren made that deed, on y<sup>e</sup> 1st Octobr 1697. nor was y<sup>e</sup> principal Legate (who was to Recieve £.1000) then of age to Recieve the same, or give discharge, then being not 19 years & 4 months ould, and was not to Recieve his Legacy till 21 years of age nor is the Legacy yet paid.

The statute of 31. H. 8. P. 489. title Joynt Tenants & Tenants in Common S. 2. saith that Joynt Tenants and Tenants in Common, shal & may be compeled to make pertition of all such Lands as they hold as Joynt Tenants &c

The Law of this Province is the same, Joynt Ten<sup>ts</sup> may be compeled to divide by writ of pertition. fo. 45. †

So that the making of this statute plainly shows that no one Joynt Tenant could sell, much less give any part belonging to the Joynt Tenantry.

for if one could dispose with out the other there was no need of making this statute, and less need to make so many statuts about it.

If one could dispossse, the other might, if a part, then the whole, and then all the Legatarys had been disapoynted.

Then this deed made by Madd Warren one of the Joynt Tenants, with out the least knowledge of the other Joynt Tenant, no pertition ever being made, frustrates the intent of Majr Clarks Will, and givs his Estate to those he never Intended should Injoy it. and therefore the deed is Voyde in Law. ELISHA HUTCHINSON." — Suffolk Court Files.

This motion failing, he had recourse to the following petition, being the same that is mentioned in the preamble to the order which constitutes this chapter:—

"To his Excellcy Joseph Dudley Esq; Capt General & Governr; in chief in and over her Majties Province of the massachusetts Bay in New England. The Honorable Council and Representatives in General Court assembled, 26. May 1703.

The Petition of Elisha Hutchinson humbly Sheweth.

That Whereas Mr Thomas Cooper of Boston merch<sup>t</sup> in Right of his Wife commenced an action, at the Inferiour Court of pleas in October last past against Rich Stretton and Will Story millers, for that they illegally entred into & did refuse to deliver one eighth part of three Grist mills in Boston near Center Haven, in the present keeping and occupation of sd Stretton and Story &c. where they appeared by their attorney pleaded in abatement of the writt that they were but servants to the owners, and that the owners were in possession & not they, therefore they did not withhold possession, & ought not to be sued, which plea was allowed and the writt abated. The plaintiff appealed to the Honorable Superiour Court, where after six months Consideration, sd Court over ruled the plea; and said the Case must go on to a Tryall, & would not suffer any further plea for abatement of the writt. altho the acts of assembly for Regulating Tryalls* p. 213. and the act for Review† p. 214. say, each party shall be allowed, & have the benefit of any new & further plea and evidence. The appellees then pleaded that sd Superiour Court had not proper Cognizance of that Cause, if never having been heard nor Tried in an Inferiour Court, and if they should be overruled to make an Issuable plea, they should lose the benefit of the Law (which allows three Tryalls, Original, appeal, and Review) for if they have the first Tryall in the Superiour Court, there is nothing left but a Review to the same Court, and that being overruled.

Yor Petitioner was under a necessity of desiring to be admitted Defend<sup>t</sup> and then obliged to make an Issuable plea notwithstanding he pleaded the Law (Title An act prescribing forms of writts in Civil Causes) wherein it is said That all civil actions &c. shall be originally heard & Tried in an Inferiour Court of Comon pleas But this Cause hath neither been heard nor Tried in sd Court.

After the pleading the Cause & the Jury sent out, some of the Jury came in with a motion to the Court, and were told That, if they could not agree they must bring in a special verdict: They return'd with that wch they called a special verdict, To witt They find for the appellat the estate in Controversy, and Costs of Courts, if Madm Warren had any Right to give it away before Division; but if she had no such Right then we find for the appellee Costs of Courts.

Its therefore Considered by the Court that the appellat recover the estate sued for & Costs of Courts.

Both pl<sup>t</sup> & def<sup>t</sup> Claim a Right to the estate sued for. by Major Clark's last will Therefore the mind of the Testator ought by the Jury to have been enquired into and a Positive verdict given in by them & not to have left it to the Court, there being no point of Law mentioned in the verdict.

Being thus forced to a Tryall, (as I apprehend) contrary to the above recited Laws) I am greatly damnyfied and denyed the Comon benefit of the Law —

Therefore yor Petitioner humbly prays this honorable Court that he may be relieved herein, by making null & void the sd Judgmt & that they declare That in all Causes, the merit of the Cause shall first be heard and Try'd in an Inferiour Court notwithstanding an appeal from a nonsuite, Barr or abatement of the writt, or that some other effectual remedy may be provided for yor Petitioner and others in the like Cases.

And Yor Petitioner shall ever Pray:

ELISHA HUTCHINSON." — Mass.

This petition was read first in the House on the thirty-first of May; but it was not until the twenty-seventh of July that an order was passed thereon and sent to the Council. This order, which was read in Council on the twenty-seventh and again on the thirtieth, was nonconcurrent in by the Board on the thirty-first and returned with the second clause or sentence of this chapter substituted for the order as drawn by the House. The House now reconsidered its former order, and concurred in the action of the Council with a further amendment by which the words "sitting of the" were inserted after "next," and thus amended it was consented to by the Governor.

For the report of the judges and further proceedings in the case see chapter 89, post, and note.

The instructions received by Governor Dudley in reference to the establishment of a fixed salary for the Lieutenant-Governor, and the proceedings thereupon by the Governor and the Legislature down to the thirtieth of July, 1703, appear in the note to chapter 46, ante.

The dispute between the two branches in reference to allowing pay to Povey in the two capacities of Lieutenant-Governor and Captain of the Castle, the history of which up to the date of this chapter is given in the note to resolves,* 1700-1, chapter 62, remained unsettled and was the subject of further communication and continued difference, as will appear in the note to resolves, 1704-5, chapter 32.

The order in Council † for the payment of this allowance was passed August 5, 1703, and by the province treasurer's account ‡ it appears to have been duly paid.

Although a majority of the judges of the Superior Court were newly nominated by Dudley as early as June 30, 1702,§ the bench was not filled nor the court formally organized and opened until several weeks later.|| The former judges received their last allowance under the resolve of November 18, 1702,¶ which also raised their salaries from forty-five to fifty pounds per annum. This was owing, doubtless, to the earnest recommendations of Dudley. Notwithstanding the subject of establishing salaries for the judges had not been included in his instructions, he had represented in his first speech to the Legislature that the queen's commands for the establishment of "a settled stated salary" extended to them,** and at the beginning of the second session he had contrasted their small pay with the munificent compensation allowed to the judges in "the next province."††

Eight days before the passage of the resolve for paying the former judges, and in that resolve as originally drawn, the House had passed, and sent to the Council, for concurrence, a clause for allowing and paying fifty pounds to each of the new judges, for the current year, "beginning from the Date of their Commission."‡‡ On the eighteenth the Council voted that this clause be "left to Consideration,"‡‡ possibly in the hope that the representatives, in deference to the Governor's repeated recommendations, would increase the allowance.

In his speech at the beginning of the first session of the Assembly of 1703-4 the Governor again introduced the subject, as follows:—

"I have had a late earnest application §§ on behalf of the Judges of the Superior Court in whose hands are the Administration of the Lawes referring to the Lives and Estates of all her Majestyes good subjects of this province, acquainting mee that the allowance made them will by no means support their charge nor put them beyond Contempt in their stations. I shall be very sorry to have the Administration of Law fayle in this great province upon that head and I Assure you Gentlemen I have not many persons in the province to name in their places if any of those whom I take to be men of Honor should refuse the service upon that Account."—Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 9.

The Assembly, however, deferred action upon the subject until the Governor had again "reminded them of a suitable support for the governor, lieutenant-governor and justices of the Superior Court." This was on the twenty-eighth of July, and on the thirty-first the House renewed the resolve which they had formerly passed and which the Council had had under consideration from the previous year. Upon being again sent to the Council it was immediately concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council † for the payment of this allowance was passed August 5, 1703, and in the province treasurer's account ‡ the aggregate sum of two hundred and fifty pounds is charged as paid to the judges, by name.

No sooner had Governor Dudley returned with a favorable report of his conference with the Indians at Casco Bay than the prospect of peace which he had fondly entertained ‡ was dashed by threats of fresh hostilities by the French and Indians. The first indication of this in the records is the following entry: —

"July 9, 1703. His Excellency communicated to the Council several Letters from Casco Bay, Saco, & Piscataqua brought this Morning by Bomazeen § & an other Eastern Indian, Importing the Intelligence express'd by Moxus one of the Sachems of the Arrival of a great French Ship in Mount Desart, & that he mett several French Men from the said Ship with some Cape Sables Indians coming Westward with Intent to commit Hostilities upon the English & Incited the Eastern Indians to join therein, And the said Letters being read were sent down to the House of Represent<sup>ves</sup>

His Excellency further communicated his Intention to set forth one of the best Sailing Shallops of Marblehead under the Command of the Lieutenant of her Majesties Ship Gosport & twenty or thirty of her Men with the Allowance & Consent of Cpt. Thomas Smith their Commander, to discover & Report what they should see, & to have his Excellencies Instructions. And that Bomazeen & the other Messenger be rewarded for their Duty with a good Coat, Shirt, Neck Cloth & Hat each of them, & be return'd by the said Shallop to their Place; And that Andrew Belcher Esq; be desired to take Care to provide the said Cloathing & of the Equipping of the Shallop: All which is Approved." — Council Records, vol. VII., p. 404.

Twenty days later the Governor communicated both to the Council and to the House further intelligence of hostile preparations of the enemy. The nature of this information and the steps taken by the Governor to resist invasion, and the action of the representatives thereupon are shown in the following entry: —

"July 29, 1703. His Excellency intimated to the Council, That Lieut. Coll. Tyng was come from Dunstable to Acquaint him that yesterday there came in thither two Indian Men || & Watenumas Sister from Pegwaket, to inform him that two Men of their Com<sup>pa</sup> came lately from Chamlet near Mount Real, where they saw One Hundred & fifty Indians arm'd gather'd together & join'd with some few French, Intended to be divided into three Companies, One for the Eastw<sup>d</sup>! An other for Merrimack & the third for Connecticut River to insult the English Settlem<sup>ts</sup>

And His Excy. sent a Message to the House of Represent<sup>ves</sup> to Acquaint them thereof, Whereupon M<sup>r</sup> Speak<sup>r</sup> attended with a Comm<sup>tee</sup> of the House came up, And his Excy. intimated to them That he had two Companies of Men Fifty in each used to the Woods ready enlisted, One Company in the County of Essex & the other in the County of Middlesex, And proposed to send out thirty or forty of each of the said Parties for a Scout on the Line of the Frontiers from Haverhill to Marlbor<sup>o</sup>, & to make an other Scout of the two Companies in Pay within the County of York from Haverhill to Saco to make Discovery of the Approach of the Enemy & observe their Motions: M<sup>r</sup> Speaker express'd his Approbation thereof & that He believed it would be agreeable to the Mind of the House.

Andrew Belcher Esq; was sent on a Message to the Representatives, To desire that if the House approved the Proposal of his Excy. to M<sup>r</sup> Speaker & their Committee relating to the Scout upon the Frontiers, they would express it by a written Vote." — Ibid., p. 423.

In the vacation of the Assembly, which was prorogued from the thirty-first of July to the first of September, the worst apprehensions of the enemy's hostile designs were realized upon the approach of a body of French and Indians led by the Sieur de Beaubassin.

On the seventh of August Sewall enters in his Diary, ¶ "From the Eastward, Fear of the French and Indians, some being seen." On the eleventh occurs the further entry,

"Aug. 7, 1703. "Aug. 11, 1703. "News comes of the Onset of the Enemy."* On the twelfth "His Excellency communicated to the Council the further Intelligence expressed to him of the insults made by the Indians at Spurwinke and winter harbour on the same day with that done at Wells."†

On the same day and "at night" the tidings came of the attack on Wells, with an estimate that the total loss of the English was probably sixty; that fifteen of their dead had been buried, and that they feared to go out to bury those who fell furthest from the fortifications.‡

These last tidings the Governor communicated to the Council the next morning, together with what reports he had received of the "impressions made" by the French and Indians "on the parts further east, and the report of firings at Casco Bay."§

On the fourteenth "Mr Preble and Lewis Bean two Inhabitants of Yorke, came from thence yesterday, and attended his Excellency in Council, and gave him a relation of the Impression made by the Enemy upon Wells, Winter harbour, Papueduck, and that the Forts at Casco and Saco were insulted, their firing being heard, but knew not the issue; they apprehended there were about fifty Indians appeared at Wells."||

Before the letters were received from Piscataqua informing him of the appearance of "French Indians" near Newichewannock Dudley had already given orders for scouting and marching, to the forces "in those parts," and in the counties of Essex and Middlesex, "which was thought sufficient until further intelligence."¶

Upon the arrival of the first report of the attack on Wells the Governor ordered Lieutenant-Governor Povey, under the escort of four troopers,** "to repair to Piscataqua, and with the advice of the Gentlemen of the Government there, to take care for the improvement of the Forces posted at Wells and Newichewannock & as occasion shall offer for the defence of her Majesty's subjects and repelling of the Enemy,"† and a warrant for ten pounds was ordered to be drawn on the treasurer to defray the expenses of himself and his guard on their journey. The Council also "Advised, That the Garrison at Saco and Casco, be not at present reformed by drawing off any Men from thence."‡ On the day following the Governor "intimated, that he had ordered the Levying of One hundred and Fifty souldiers out of the several Regiments of Militia, in the County's of Suffolk, Plymouth, Barnstable and Bristol."††

On the thirteenth, after the report of the attack on Wells had been confirmed, the Governor "dispatch't orders to Colonel Peirce, to order Captain Somersby with one halfe of his Troop with long armes, & Capt Wadleigh with one halfe of his Company of Dragoons forthwith to march to Wells for their releife, and to cause them to be immediately followed with a Foot Company of one hundred Men, under proper Officers, to be drawn out of his Regim't, and also dispatched away the Province Galley to visit & relive Casco Bay and the other Fortifications Eastward."††

The next day he wrote to Colonel Hathorne at Salem and to Colonel Wainwright at Ipswich to confer with the councillors and principal militia officers in their respective towns in order to encourage the enlistment of volunteers within their regiments to serve against the enemy. The names of the volunteers were to be listed.

On the sixteenth the Governor laid before the Council a letter from Captain Turfrey, commander of Fort Mary at Saco, giving an account of an assault by the enemy on that garrison and of their repulse, and of the mischief done by them in the outlying settlements of Saco and Winter Harbor. Thereupon he dispatched letters to the garrisons at Saco, Black Point and Casco, requiring the women and children to be sent off and the men to be retained for service and put under pay. He also wrote to Captain Southack of the Province Galley "to sail to Sagadahoc and demand of the French and Indians the prisoners in their hands." On the same day a flag of truce arrived at Boston from Port Royal under which Louis Allain †† brought letters from Governor Brouillan asking for an exchange of prisoners. The next day this letter was submitted to the Council, together with the draught of the Governor's reply, offering to exchange all prisoners held by the province except the Sieur Baptiste, §§ who was detained as a subject of the queen of England upon accusation of treason and felony. In this letter he took occasion to resent "the late barbaritys acted by some French Officers and two Priests commanding the Salvages upon a number of poor women and children in open settlements, presuming they were under his Commission, and expecting that he command them to restore the Women and Children to their place again."|||

§ Penhallow sums up the story of this onslaught of the enemy as follows:—

"... for within six weeks after, the whole eastern country was in a conflagration, no house standing nor garrison unattacked. August 10th, at nine in the morning, they began their bloody tragedy, being about five hundred Indians of all sorts, with a number of French; who divided themselves into several companies, and made a descent on the several inhabitants from Casco to Wells, at one and the same time, sparing none of every age or sex."—Indian Wars, p. 18. See, further, note to chapter 69, post.

On the eighteenth the Council determined on a declaration of war by the following vote:—

“Advised. That His Excellency do emit a Declaration against the Pennicooke and Eastern Indians, setting forth their perfidy, treachery, barbaritys, murders, and rapines committed upon Her Majesty's good Subjects, Declaring them to be Rebels and Enemies against Her Majesty her Crown and Dignity, to be out of her Majesty's Protection, and to require all Her Majesty's good subjects to Treat them as such, and to do and execute all acts of hostility upon them, and also to restrain the neighbouring Friend Indians, to their respective plantations and places assigned to them.”—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 3, p. 473.

On the nineteenth the Commissary-General was ordered to supply subsistence for the forces raised to prosecute the war, “and that the Stores and Magazine for the Eastern parts be lodged at Mr Peperels Garrison in Kittery.”*

At the same time Colonel Hobby (afterwards Sir Charles Hobby) with “ten of the troop of guards” was dispatched to Hingham and Weymouth with orders “to make a draught of Twenty Men out of each of the sd Towns,”* to make good a deficiency caused by the default of Colonel Ephraim Hunt to levy the soldiers “ordered from his regiment.”

While these proceedings were taking place near the seat of government news was received of the engagement of the enemy at Casco Bay, as appears by the following entry:—

“Aug. 20, 1703. His Excellency communicated to the Council a letter Expressed to him from Major March, Commander of her Majesty's Fort at Casco Bay and another from Capt<sup>n</sup> Southack Commander of the Province Galley, now there, containing a Journal of the Insult made by the French and Indians for several days together upon that Fort, and of the Gallies engaging them; Capt<sup>n</sup> Southack with intimating that he durst not come away until some assistance came.”—Ibid., p. 475.

Upon this the following action was taken:—

The next day the Commissary-General was ordered to provide, for the forces raised, five hundred each of hatchets, powder-horns, belts and “snapsacks,” and five hundred pairs of large shoes and stockings, and to lodge the same with the several commissaries, to be distributed among the soldiers as occasion should require. And at the same time he informed the Council that he would order fifty firearms to be “prepared” to be sent to each of the garrisons at Kittery and Casco Bay to be temporarily exchanged for defective arms until the latter were put in repair and returned to the soldiers in service. He also promised to “give order to fit up the house on Fort Hill in Boston, to receive and lodge the publick stores of Armes and ammunition.”†

Two days later a warrant was ordered by the Council “to impress six or eight Shoe Makers, to be Employed by direction of Mr Joseph Bridgman forthwith to make Shoes for the supply of the Forces raysed for Her Majesty's service.”‡

On the twenty-sixth arrangements for the exchange of prisoners as asked for by Brouillon having been concluded the Governor informed the Council that “he had ordered the taking up of a Sloop Phillip Pendexter M<sup>r</sup> to send to Port Royal with Mr Allen the Messenger, that came from thence about the Exchange of Prisoners, and therein to send the French Prisoners that are here, and to bring home ours that are there, and proposed she should be victualled for fourteen Men, by the space of Forty days, and that he would Instruct the Master to endeavour to speak with Capt<sup>n</sup> Southack or Major March by the way; and to have the assistance of Mr Allin for the recovery of our Captives, from the Indians.”§

From the first, Dudley seems to have regarded the demonstrations of the enemy as promising a contest of considerable magnitude and calling for the zealous coöperation of the other New-England colonies.

In a letter dated the thirty-first of July he informed Governor Winthrop of Connecticut that intelligence received by him from Quebec made him “almost certayn of a marching party for that river, another for Merimack River, another for Piscataq, about fifty each. If our people keep upon their guard, they will be weary in a short time, if our Indians keep steady, which is most probable they will do.”||

On the twelfth of August, before these last tidings confirming the onslaught at Wells had reached Boston, he communicated to the Council a letter he had “written to the Gov<sup>r</sup> and Council of the Colony of Rhode Island, for the assistance of a Foot Company of Fifty Men upon this occasion.”¶

On the twenty-third he communicated to the Council the answer he had received to his letter to the authorities of Rhode Island, in which Governor Cranston informed him “that they could not spare any” men for the service against the enemy.

The demand upon Rhode Island seems not to have been further pressed. Dudley appealed to Connecticut (evidently with greater hopes of success) for a company of sixty men to join the eastern forces. His first letter for this reinforcement is dated the sixteenth of August, in which he declared that after peaceful relations with the Indians, preserved with care and cost for one year, “about two hundred of them with twenty French men the last weeke fell in upon Wells and the small settlements eastward, and have burnt and destroyed what they found distant from the garrisons, and have assaulted the forts at Saco, Blackpoint and Casco, but they are yet safe. And I am now making up the forces already out to five hundred, that we may be able to march and keep the field, and we must be content to make it a business now to follow them. While we are thus in a hurry, your Government, at least the greatest part of it, are in peace and very capable to give the Queen's subjects yo<sup>r</sup> bretheren their assistance," and, he continued, "If at present you would give us one good company of sixty men with officers fit for the service, I would send a good sloop to take them up in any part of your Government, and take care for their subsistence and treat them as I ought. And if your Indians would any of them be serviceable, I should be glad they were put under proper officers. Also I pray you to let me have your answer to this as soon as may be."*

Winthrop replied on the nineteenth† expressing his sorrow for the mischief done by the enemy,—a "loss not to be made up by the destruction of the whole race of those barbarous and false villains," and declaring that, "since the best and most generous indulgence lavisht upon them would not oblige them to a certaine freindship, there remains noe security for us but utterly to destroy them. I have appointed the Council to meeete me at Say-Brook next Tuesday and shall lay before them your last letter with all the insinuations I can for their assistance, w<sup>ch</sup> neede not be doubted, as far as they are able in the absence of the Gen<sup>l</sup> Assembly."

He also reported that he had ordered "the Major of the County of Hartford to post away 50 well fitted dragoones to Hatfield, under the comand of Cap<sup>t</sup> Cooke, a good officer, who presently marched with his company and quartered in the fields of Hadly the next night. I expect hourelly an acct from him of his proceeding, and what has hapned of moment shall be posted to you," and added, "I wish success to your armes against that barbarous people and will doe all I can to preserve your plantations up the river."

This was followed by another letter‡ from Winthrop dated Saybrook, the twenty-third of August, communicating the opinion of the Council of Connecticut that the preparations they were making for defence of the western frontier would be all they could do for the present, but promising to prepare "the Indians in this Government" "with a fitting number of English" to march to the eastward if occasion should so require and to recommend Dudley's suggestion to the next General Assembly, adding that "the dragoons" dispatched to Hatfield had returned without discovering any of the enemy.

Winthrop also issued a proclamation§ denouncing the Pennecook and Eastern Indians as enemies to the queen, declaring them to be out of her protection and worthy to be treated as outlaws, forbidding all inhabitants to hold intercourse with them, and enjoining all good subjects "to doe and execute all acts of hostilitie upon them" and to arrest all stranger Indians found within the colony.

On the thirtieth of August Dudley renewed his application to Connecticut for aid, representing that he had "now 900 men, besides officers, in pay and yet cannot march above half that number, our forts and garisons are so many and so far extended beyond Merrimack River in the province of Mayn, that the other half can but well keep the inhabitants steady from leaving their posts; and the charge of this number of men with incidents cannot amount to less then thirty six thousand pound per annum, and no gentleman of her Majestyes Council here thinks it yet sufficient, but that our marching parties must be more, the enemy heaving to our best observation appeared not short of 500 men," and continuing his appeal thus: "Sr, I pray you to let it be duly considered, and I hope your Council and Assembly will remember that the interest is in common between us all, and the French will not distinguish, but intend the ruine of the English interest every where, which God will prevent, and the next humane means is our joynt resolution to destroy these barbarous miscreants that no methods of justice or freindship can oblige. I pray you to think that my expectation of one company this way is a very little quota. I thank your care in Hampshire and desire it may be continued, because I cannot reasonably expect they will be quiet."||

To this letter Winthrop replied from New London on the second of September, expressing satisfaction that the enemy had inflicted so little injury on the frontiers, and his sense of the charge of securing the forts and garrisons and maintaining the forces acting against the enemy if "some way be not projected to shorten the work." With regard to the prospect of successfully pursuing the enemy "through the hideous & unknowne passages" of the wilderness, and of the recovery of "the poor distressed captives" (the proposed methods of accomplishing which he had not heard), his words were not encouraging. The letter concludes as follows:—

"I make noe doubt that our gentlemen, who have a just sympathy with you in this publick calamety, will concur with you as they are able in any proposall that may seeme probable, to subdue for ever those barbarous & inhumaine villains. I have appointed a scout of 20 English & 12 Indians, who are now out, to visit Woodstock & from thence to range downe to Connecticut River against Windsor, where their store of provision lyes, and they are to continue that service till farther order, & 60 dragoones be ready to assist yo<sup>r</sup> upper plantations, & it will be necessary that I have notice of yo<sup>e</sup> motion of yo<sup>e</sup> enemy as often as may be. I wish a continued course of success to all yo<sup>r</sup> indevors against the enemy, and am Sr, of the Eastern Indians has made it necessary for me to see you & to let you know the present State of the Province & yr Affairs. I am not sorry for the Pains & Cost I have taken in the two last Interviews with those Indians, if possible to have kept them in Obedience, Notwithstanding the Infraction they have now made upon us, Because I am well assured that her Majesty will be satisfied that We are not the Aggressors, But that all this Breach of Faith is on their Part by the Instigation of the French Missionarys amongst them, who attended them in the late Mischiefs; And I hope your selves & all her Majesties good Subjects will with the better Courage & Freedom support the Service & Charge of the War, when no possible Methods of Justice & Friendship can oblige them to Obedience, which they have so often promised & repeated.

I am not sensible to have neglected one Hour in the Service for the Security of the Frontiers, notwithstanding their sudden & secret Falling upon the whole Province of Main at once at the Distance of Fifty Miles; The Garrisons at Wells, Saco, Black Point & Casco were so well appointed as to hold their own, And the two last were relieved in four Days, Time; And I have now upwards of four Hundred Men in the Province of Main, w<sup>ch</sup> I doubt must be increased, w<sup>ch</sup> has brought up the present Forces to the Number of nine Hundred, The List whereof shall be laid before you.

I am very sensible what great Charge this must necessarily bring upon the Province, but I hope none of her Majesties Subjects will doubt of our Duty to support our Frontiers, or of our Prudence to keep the War as far off as We can.

I have earnestly moved her Majesties Governm<sup>ts</sup> of Connecticut & Rhode Island for a Quota of Men from thence, which yet I doubt of, But that must not abate, but be added to what is already a foot if I can obtain it. . . ." — Council Records, vol. VII., p. 429.

On the second day of the session a message was sent from the representatives "to return his Excy. the Thanks of the House for his early Care of the Frontiers upon the Infraction made by the Indians, And to desire that His Excy. would please forthwith to raise such further Force as with those now in the Service may form a suitable Army to pursue them to their Head Quarters if it may be."* On the same day the vote which constitutes this chapter was passed by the Council and sent to the House of Representatives for concurrence, and on the third of September it was concurred in. On the sixth, Dudley again applied to Governor Winthrop for aid, and ordered the Secretary of the province to enclose a copy of the vote which is incorporated in this chapter. Dudley's letter was as follows:—

"Boston, Sept. 6. 1703.

Sr, — The Affayr of the war is so pressing that I have now eleven hundred men in pay, and hope speedily to have halfe that number in a marching party to the head quarters of the enemy. I have seen it also necessary to meet the General Assembly of this Province in an extraordinary session to provide for so great a charge, who have very freely agreed the necessity of all that is done, and have observed to me the neighbourhood of your government and the justice of your being equally concerned in the war, and earnestly moved me in the most pressing manner to put you upon it, for that is the common interest. I therefore desire you will again consider the matter and persuade your Council or Assembly of the respect they owe to their bretheren of the English nation in these provinces, to afford them such assistance as will be honourable for your Government and agreeable to the just expectation of her Most Gracious Majesty, who is most successfully engaged in a vigorous war against the common enemy of the liberty of Europe and of the Protestant religion. Which I shall represent to her Majesty, and will be to the honour of your Government. I have directed the Secretary to enclose a copy of the vote of the Council and Assembly of this Province, wherein you will see their expectation from you, and which has moved me again to urge you in this matter.

I am, Sr, your humble Servant,

throp Papers, part V., p. 152.

To this Governor Winthrop made the following reply:—

"Sr, — Your Excellency's letter of the 6th instant I received by the post last night and will lay it before the Gen<sup>l</sup> Assembly with all the advantage I can for your service, who onely (as you know) have power to raise men and send them out of the Governm<sup>t</sup>. The general assembly of Connecticut having convened on the fourteenth of October, Dudley again renewed his application in the following letter:—

"To the Honorable John Winthrop Esqr, Governour of her Majestyes Colony of Connecticut.

Boston, 21 October, 1703.

Sr, — I wish you a good meeting with your Assembly. I hope they will be disposed to shew their respect to these provinces at this time. I beleive truly I am to day at 90<sup>lb</sup> a day expence, and if I be broke here you will stand but a little while. My forces are now abroad; the next march must be about Christmass upon the ice, when I hope you will give us a good foot company. I pray you also to send down the Quabaug Indians your scout brought in; Nonequaban is a dependant here and I understand they are his family. Sr I wish you health, and am Sr

Your very humble ser<sup>t</sup>,

J. DUDLEY." — Ibid., p. 159.

* Council Records, vol. VII., p. 430.

Voted that the Hon<sup>bl</sup> the Govern<sup>r</sup> be desired to informe his Excellencie, that the season of the year is such, that they canot judge it practicable to send their men into such a remote part of the countrey at present, but as in this time of warre wherein they are inforced to be at great expences for the securitie of their frontiers, they have notwithstanding been at considerable charge for the assistance and defence of their plantations in the countie of Hampshire, so they shall be ready at all times to afford them further assistance as they are capable.” — Colonial Records of Connecticut, 1689-1706, p. 444.

Winthrop communicated this action of the assembly in the following letter, by which it appears that the foregoing vote was passed before Dudley's letter had come to Winthrop's hands:—

“New-London, Nov: 4th 1703.

Sr, — I recd. your letter of Oct: 21st at Say-Brook ferry, in my returne from the Court at New-Haven, but could not then salute you, nor assure your Excellency, as I was desired by our Gen<sup>l</sup> Assembly, of their readines to be concerned in the present war with the Eastern Indians, having already made declaration against them as traytors & rebels to her Majesty. I must confes I am at a great loss for the best way to make our assistance successfull to your service. Many (of good conduct) are of opinion that your plantations of the County of Hampshire will constantly be exposed to danger during the war, and that a good Company must be allwaies ready to assist them. And if the enemy (pressed by your forces) should be dislodged, they would be necessitated to devide into skulking partyes and may then aptly fall upon those plantations as neere & new places for their mischeif, and soe may require our whole strength to secure them and our owne frontiers, and to kepe out partyes of scout to range above the plantations. And since wee are not able to kepe out marching partyes to assist in every quarter, the Gen<sup>l</sup> Assembly seeme to conclude at present that they shall doe her Majesty more service by securing, as they are able, the County of Hampshire (w<sup>ch</sup> has allwaies fallen to their post in all tymes of difficulty) than to joyne yor forces eastward this winter with one company, as yor Excelley has desired. This is the substance of what I am desired to communicate to your Exceley by our Assembly, relatinge to their present assistance, I wish you health & hapines and am sincerely

Your very humble servt,

throp Papers, part V., p. 159.

The above letters were followed by other correspondence between the two governors relative to combining their forces against the enemy on the eastern frontier. Dudley did not communicate this last letter to the Legislature until the fifteenth* of November, twenty days after the beginning of the third session of the General Court.

Little less than a month later, Dudley had the satisfaction of informing the Council “that offer had been made him from Connecticut, of marching the Friend Mohegin Indians, under the Conduct of proper English Officers into the Eastern parts, and to live there all the summer, upon the encouragement proposed by the Gen<sup>l</sup> Assembly and being allowed subsistence.” Whereupon it was, “Advised. That they may be improved accordingly.” †

What further reply, if any, the authorities of Rhode Island made to the Governor's application in the name of the General Court has not been discovered.

While Dudley and Winthrop were awaiting the assembling of the Connecticut Legislature, the Legislature of Massachusetts passed chapters 6 and 7 of the acts of this year, — the former “An Act to encourage the prosecution of the Indian enemy and rebels,” on the eighth, and the latter “An Act relating to the forces that are or shall be employed on her majesty's service within this province,” on the ninth of September.

having disappeared from the files of the town clerk of Boston, it has not been found practicable to ascertain positively the reasons which induced the petitioners to ask for the closing of the drawbridge, nor the precise grounds upon which the remonstrants claimed the right to a draw. These reasons, however, may be inferred from the motives which induced previous similar efforts, as shown in Boston Town Records. By these records it appears that on the 31st of July, 1643, at a meeting of the selectmen, the monopoly of erecting public corn mills in Boston was granted to Henry Simons, George Burden, John Button, John Hill "and their partners," upon condition that, within three years from the date of the grant, they erect, to be forever maintained, one or more corn mills at or near an outlet of the artificial tide-mill pond formed by a causeway or dam on the western side. As an encouragement to this undertaking "the partners" were granted three hundred acres of the town's land in Braintree, and the selectmen promised to use their efforts to secure voluntary assistance in case of any emergency requiring the employment of a large force in making the necessary "bankes or trenches, etc." The causeway (which is mentioned in the note to chapter 47, ante) was to be provided with a gate ten feet wide for the entrance of boats at flood-tide; and the whole cove thus enclosed was granted to the partners in fee simple.

In case the partners should choose to open another sluice for mills on the eastern side of the pond, they were granted in fee a strip of marsh sixty feet wide extending from the pond to the harbor side, and the following is the language of the grant conferring the right to dig the necessary sluice-way or watercourse through the marsh and across the highways:—

"Sixtly. They shall have Liberty to Digge one or more Trenches in the high wayes or wast grounds, so as they make and maintayne sufficient, passable, and safe wayes over the same for horse and Cart."—Boston Town Records, 1634-60, p. 75.

The conditions upon which the grant was made appear to have been duly complied with, and a trench was dug to connect the mill pond with a natural creek in the marsh on the eastern side. This trench crossed the line of the present Hanover and North streets and was used not only as a sluice-way but for the passage of vessels for the accommodation of the mill owners and their customers. At North Street it was spanned by a bridge, which, it seems, was originally built with a draw of one leaf, and was so accepted by the town authorities. But in 1653 the mill proprietors upon their petition were permitted to substitute two leaves. It was repaired in 1655, and it having fallen October 27, 1659, under the weight of a mass of people returning together from the scene of the execution of the Quakers, on Boston Common, it was rebuilt that or the next year.

In 1672, the draw being out of repair and the bridge dangerous to passengers on this account, the selectmen ordered all vessels above it to move out, and that the leaves be lowered to a level and locked, "and a plank spiked down," or that some other measure be adopted to prevent accident in using the draw.

In 1686, during the presidency of Dudley, the Court of Pleas and Sessions of the Peace threatened to transfer the title of the bridge to the town of Boston unless the proprietors should cause it to be properly and speedily repaired. This appears by the following copy of the record of that Court:—

"At his Majesty's Court of Pleas and Sessions of the Peace holden in Boston for Suffolk on ye 27th of July 1686 Anno RRis Jacobi Angl<sup>o</sup> &c; Secundi Secundo.—

The Grand jury for Our Sov<sup>r</sup> L<sup>d</sup> the King Presented upon their Oathes that the Bridge in Boston over the mill-creek commonly knowne by the name of the draw Bridge was defective and very dangerous which appearing to the Court they Ordered That the proprietors of the draw Bridge or those that are Concerned in it and have benefit by the Same shall repair it within five weekes time and make it Sufficient otherwise it is to fall into the hands of the Towne of Boston aforesd To be by them Sufficiently repaired."—County Court, Suffolk, 1680-1692, pp. 295, 308 and 309.

It is probable that the proprietors concluded to rebuild the bridge according to the following order of the selectmen, since for several years afterwards no complaint or order for repairs has been found:—

It is Ordered that the Drawe Bridge be forth with rebuilt by James Russell Esq. & others concerned therein, that are to mainetaine it. And that the vpper pte of it be not raised at the posts any higher then the bottoome of the groundsell of John Batemans dwellinge house, and it be full 11 foote broade betweene post and post."—Boston Town Records, 1660-1701, p. 188.

Between the above date and the passage of the order which constitutes this chapter, the town authorities took action regarding the alteration and repair of the drawbridge.

The following letter from Governor Dudley to the selectmen of Boston, which some years ago was transferred from the office of the town clerk of Boston to the collection of manuscripts of the late Professor Cuttingwell, indicates the date of the beginning of the final movement to have the drawbridge superseded by a permanent structure:—

Drawbridge present!

Gentlemen

"Boston. 30. July. 1703.

About ten weeks since I received a petition from severall Inhabitants of the Town of Boston praying that the drawbridge might not be rebuilt again in form of a Drawbridge being in one of the principall streets of the Town and very dangerous for passengers, and being at that time fallen down, whereupon I gave a warrant to m<sup>r</sup> Sherriff Dyer to prevent any thing to be done therein until the matter might be heard before my self in Council and to give notice accordingly to the persons Concerned therein since which I have had no application made to me thereabout.

I Desire you therefore that you will take order to have that passage over the Creek brought to its Due breadth and Direct that the bridge be repayrd and settled firm so that there be no further danger nor Complaint thereupon and do not doubt of your doing your duty therein for the benefit and security of the Inhabitants of Boston and all other the Queens subjects who have Constant vse of the same

By an entry in the executive records of the council † under date of August 11, 1703, it appears that Mr. David Jenner and Captain John Ballantine "on behalfe of themselves and severall of the Neighbourhood" made a "representation" to the Council upon which an order was passed "That there be a hearing of that matter the next Council day, and that the Selectmen of Boston be notified thereof, and then to attend."

The next entry that has been discovered is the order which constitutes this chapter. The record, under date of the third of November, shows that, at the time appointed, "the petitions . . . were adjourned to be heard to Morrow;" ‡ and, accordingly, on the fourth, the Governor sent a message summoning the Speaker and the representatives to attend the hearing before the whole court, in the council chamber. After the hearing the representatives returned to their chamber, and on the next day the Council passed and sent to them for concurrence the following resolve:—

Upon Consideration of the Case, referring to the great draw-bridge over the Mill-Cricke in Boston, heard yesterday before both Houses.—

Resolved,

That it is not reasonable to continue a draw-bridge there.

That it is not possible to make the passage safe for the Inhabitants, or others, & for going over with Carts or Horses; without a settled & fixed Bridge, which is therefore ordered to be kept close until further order, And the sides of the said Bridge, and the Corners of the street at each end thereof to be forthwith enclosed and secured

And whereas Capt<sup>n</sup> Ballentine m<sup>r</sup> Jenner and others have alleaged before this Court, That they have a just title to a drawbridge over that part of the s<sup>d</sup> Cricke and that the shutting of it up will be greatly to their damage.—

Resolved,

That John Clarke, Thomas Palmer and Edw<sup>d</sup> Lyde Esq<sup>s</sup> m<sup>r</sup> Simeon Stoddard, m<sup>r</sup> Thomas Bannister, m<sup>r</sup> Richard Draper and m<sup>r</sup> Edward Thomas, or any four of them, whereof the s<sup>d</sup> John Clarke, Thomas Palmer or Edward Lyde to be one, Be and are appointed a Committee of this Court to Inquire into, hear and report the Titles of the severall Claimers, and the just damages that will accrue to the said Ballentine and others by fixeing of the said Bridge, that just satisfaction may be made them.—As also to consider and Report the best form for laying and fixing of the said Bridge, to accomodate Passengers, and the passing of Boats and Lighters without masts, under the same for the benefit of the Inhabitants above, to transport wood and Goods through the same The said Committee or a Quoru of them to appoint the time and place of their meeting, and make the same publick. And to Report their doings on the whole affair to the General Assembly at their next session."—Mass. Archives, vol. 121, p. 118.

With this resolve all the papers were transmitted. On the sixth, the representatives voted not to concur in the foregoing resolve, which vote was sent to the Council and was recorded by the Secretary on the eighth.

The subject came up again for consideration in the fifth session, on the petition of severall of the freeholders and inhabitants of Boston representing that the drawbridge was a common nuisance, and praying "that it may be made a fixed bridge." The following is the record of the proceedings upon this petition:—

"April. 19th 1704. In Council.

Upon the renewed Application of a considerable number of the freeholders and Inhabitants of Boston, Representing the Drawbridge over the mill Creeke in the said Town, to be a common nuisance, and very prejudicial to the Trade of that part of the Town. Praying that it may no longer be used to draw up, but may be made a fixt bridge. —

Still another petition was presented to the next General Court of which (and of the proceedings thereon) the only record extant is as follows: —

"June 21, 1704. Upon Reading a new Petition referring to the Draw Bridge over the Mill Creek in Boston, That the said Bridge be not rebuilt in that Form; Ordered that there be no Proceeding in the Building of the said Bridge until further Order. — W<sup>ch</sup> Order being sent down to the Represent<sup>es</sup> for their Concurrence, was return'd not Agreed to." — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 59.

On the eighth of August, the Governor and Council passed the following order: —

"Ordered. That Elisha Hutchinson, John Foster and John Walley Esq<sup>s</sup> be a Committee, to whom the persons claiming propriety in the great draw Bridge in Boston may apply to view and advise about the projection for Building of a new Bridge, how it may be contrived and done, with the greatest ease & safety, for the passage of Travellers and carriages; the Committee to Report the same to the Board." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 55.

From this time forth the subject of removing the draw, or widening or rebuilding the bridge, continued to be agitated by the town, in the Assembly, or in the Court of Sessions; but it was not made a fixed bridge until 1712.

The following is the petition mentioned in the preamble to this chapter: —

This petition was read, first, in the Council, on the twenty-eighth of October and sent to the House for concurrence, where, on the same day, it was read twice and the order which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent up for concurrence. On the thirtieth it was concurred in and consented to by the Governor.

This petition was presented at the previous session and was read in the House on the seventh of September, and again on the twenty-eighth of October. On the first of November the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the next day it was concurred in and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed December 13, 1703, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was duly paid.

By chapter 8 of the resolves of 1702-3 the hearing on the petition of Gibson against Gove was referred to the first session of the General Court this year. By chapter 3, supra, it was again continued to the second session, and still further postponed by the general order which constitutes chapter 56. Since no new petition has been discovered, the inference is that Gibson's petition, which appears in the note to 1702, chapter 48, was kept alive and considered with the later petition referring to the controversy, which, being merely subsidiary, was not formally acted upon. The following extract from the council records shows the proceedings in the case at this session:—

“Nov. 3, 1703. This Day being appointed for the Hearing of several Petitions continued from the last Session, His Excy sent a Message to the Representatives to acquaint Mr Speaker & the House, that he was in Council, ready to proceed to the sd<sup>d</sup> Hearing, & to desire them to come up to the Council Chamber—Mr Speaker & the House being come up, Samuel Gibson of Cambridge was heard upon his Petition, complaining of a Mistrial in a Suit commenced against John Gove of Cambridge for a Trespass, first brought before Joseph Lynde Esq<sup>r</sup> Justice of the Peace, & removed by Appeal to the Inferiour Court of Common Pleas within the County of Middlesex in the Year 1694, 5.” — Vol. VIII., p. 4.

On the day following the hearing the Council passed the order which constitutes this chapter and sent it to the House for concurrence. The representatives voted their concurrence on the fifth, and on the same day the Governor signed it.

The subsequent proceedings at law are shown in the following extracts from the records of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas and of the Superior Court of Judicature:—

This petition was read, first, in the Council, November 8, 1703, and sent to the House, where it was read on the same day, and on the eleventh, the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the sixteenth it was concurred in and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council* for the payment of the ten pounds of this allowance was passed December 13, 1703, and the province treasurer’s accounts† show that it was duly paid, and that, thereafter, for several years, he received the pension or annuity of three pounds granted in this chapter.

The soldiers who were detached or enlisted to strengthen the forces on the frontiers, as described in the note to chapter 53, ante, appear to have been ready to march by September 13, 1703, on which day a warrant was ordered by the Governor in Council for advancing twelve pounds to James Converse who was placed “in command of Her Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Forces rayed agst Her Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Enemies the French and the Indian Rebels.”‡ The Governor also set out for the seat of war “for the improvement of the Forces there,”‡ attended by his guards, for whose subsistence a warrant for thirty pounnds was ordered, and still another warrant was ordered for fourteen hundred pounds to be paid to Andrew Belcher, § the commissary-general, for subsisting the forces in the “field and garrison.”

A few days before, the General Court had passed the act to encourage the prosecution of the Indian enemy and rebels, and the act for regulating the detachment, pay and subsistence of the forces, as mentioned in the note to chapter 53, ante.

Early in October || the Governor returned, possibly accompanied by Converse. It is certain that on the twenty-seventh the latter resumed his duties as speaker of the House of Representatives. The following communication from the Governor to the Council at their first meeting after his return shows how the army had been engaged up to that date: —

“October 14, 1703. His Excellency being returned this Week from Piscataqua, Intimated

§ Belcher’s account as commissary-general was passed upon by the Governor and Council on the fourth of November. By this, it appears that his entire disbursement for provisions, clothing, stores and utensils supplied to the several forts and garrisons, “eastward,” and for the province galley and transports, amounted to £3,220. 1s. 5d., in reimbursement of which he had received £1,403. 2s. 6d. A warrant was ordered to be issued for the remainder. The period covered was from the fourteenth of September to the twenty-third of October inclusive, which shows the duration of the first campaign.

|| Apparently on the eleventh, since his guard were paid for twenty-eight days’ service. — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 3, p. 486.

to the Council, his having sent forth Three hundred sixty odd Souldiers under the Command of Lieut<sup>t</sup> Colo<sup>l</sup> March, to visit the settlement of the Ind<sup>i</sup> Rebels at Pigwockett, but that by reason of the Troubles with the Indians for about fifteen years past, the way thither had been disused, and for want of burning the Woods, they were so much overgrown, and had so altered the forme of the Land, that the Guides were bewildered and could not find the path, and the Forces were obliged to return, their provisions being expended.

And also intimated that he had formed a second Expedition to that place, by another way, more easy to be found, tho' somewhat further about, and that they were ordered to set forth yesterday. And that he had armed two Sloops to cruise along the Coast as far as St<sup>t</sup> Croix, to make what spoyle they could upon the Enemy the rest of the Forces being posted at Casco Bay, and on the Frontiers." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 3, p. 154.

Thirteen days later, in his speech at the beginning of the third session, the Governor further explains the disposition of the forces at the eastward and his plans for their future service, as follows: —

"Gentlemen

Since I Last saw you I have visited the frontiers and put them in the best posture I could, and have now about four hundred men upon a second March into the woods to find the Enemies Quarters and to see what can be done upon them, agreeable to your Desire and advice the Last session, and have had the Gally and two sloops well fitted Cruising upon the Eastern Coast to prevent any french Trade with the Enemy.

I shall now draw the forces into quarters to recruit after their weary marches till the snow be well settled for a winters march to the other forts which can at no other time be come at by us and trust in the good providence of almighty God, that he will give us advantage against so perfidious an Enemy." — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 11.

To encourage them to continue in the service, for a winter campaign, as suggested by the Governor, the resolve which constitutes this chapter and which was first passed in the House, on the ninth of November, and sent up to the Council, for concurrence, on the tenth, was there read again on the sixteenth, and agreed to with the amendment as printed. Its purpose was to extend to soldiers regularly detached and engaged in the service the same bounty for scalps, etc., that had been granted by chapter 6 of the acts of this year to soldiers who had voluntarily enlisted under pay.

For an account of later proceedings, see note to chapter 85, post.

This petition was read, first, in the House, on the eleventh of November. It was read a second time and the resolve passed thereon and sent to the Council, for concurrence, on the nineteenth, having, probably, been committed and favorably reported upon, in the meantime. On the twentieth it was concurred in by the Council and consented to by the Governour.

The order in Council † for the payment of this allowance was passed December 13, 1703, and the province treasurer’s account § shows that it was duly paid.

They gradually advanced with a flag of truce, and sent one before them, to signify that they had matter of moment to impart to him. At first, he slighted the message, but on second thoughts went out to meet them; they seeming to him but few in number, and unarmed: however he ordered two or three sentinels to be ready in case of danger. Their voice to him at first seemed like the voice of Jacob, but their hands were like the hands of Esau: With their tongues they used deceit, and the poison of asps was under their lips. For no sooner had they saluted him, but with hatchets under their mantles they violently assaulted him; having a number that lay in ambush near them, who shot down one of his guards: but being a person of uncommon strength, as well as courage, he soon wrested a hatchet from one of them, with which he did good execution. Yet if sergent Hook (with a file of ten from the fort) had not speedily succoured him, they would soon have overpowered him.”— Penhallow’s Indian Wars, pp. 19, 20.

The reason for including this chapter among the resolves appears in the foot-note to the chapter; yet, though Dudley so far yielded to the will of the representatives as to reduce the garrison, he, at first, resented their interference in a speech to them on the day on which they sent him the message which constitutes this chapter. The following is the record of his remarks on this head:—

“Nov. 23, 1703. . . . As to their Message for reducing the Garrison at the Castle to the number of thirty for the Winter Season, His Answer was, He is Captain General of this Province, & the raising or disbanding of Forces, Gaurds & Garrisons lay with him as he shall judge necessary for her Majesty’s Service, But he is & will be as provident & careful of the Expence of the Country’s Money as possible.” — Council Records, vol. The order in Council * for the payment of this allowance was passed December 13, 1703, and in the province treasurer’s account † this amount is included in the £36 10s. charged as paid to White. See chapters 12 and 35, ante, and 109, post.

The petition mentioned in the preamble to this chapter is as follows:—

The Petition of Andrew Belcher Esq;—

Sheweth.

That whereas the Ship John of Exon Zechariah Cawley Commander, Laden with Salt and Wine at Lisbon and Fayall and bound for Boston in New England, being Addressed to your Petitioner, upon the Third of this present Month November, by reason of the high Swelling of the Sea after a violent Storm was unhappily cast upon the Rocks, lying off Swbertons Island within Nantaskett Bay, where she bulged and fil’d with water, her Salt and the greatest part of the wines being lost, onely with great difficulty Seventeen Pipes, and one hogthead thereof saved, which being fil’d up make but Fourteen Pipes, the ships Masts and Riggm being cut away, her hull full of Water and broken, And the charge of getting her up and repairing her will probably be more than she will be worth.

Your Petitioner therefore humbly prays, That on consideration of the great loss Suffered by y<sup>e</sup> Owners of the s<sup>d</sup> Ship, and disappointment of her further intended voyage, Yo<sup>r</sup> Exc<sup>y</sup> and this Hon<sup>ble</sup> Assembly would be pleased to remit to them the Duty of Impost payable for the s<sup>d</sup> Wines, as also the Duty of Tunage in case the s<sup>d</sup> Ship be recovered and fitted out. On the twenty-fourth of November, this petition was read in the Council and sent to the House, where, on the same day, the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the next day it was concurred in and consented to by the Governor.

The resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed by the representatives November 19, 1703, and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the twenty-sixth it was concurred in and consented to by the Governor.

The province treasurer’s account ‡ shows that fifteen pounds was paid to “Mr Joseph Smith the minister of Brookfield towards his Support for three quarters of a yeares service allowed by the General Assembly.”

The resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed in the House of Representatives November 20, 1703, and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the twenty-sixth it was concurred in and consented to by the Governor.

By a vote of the Council § passed July 18, 1704 for a warrant on the treasurer it was advised that the amount of this allowance be paid “to Samuel Williams on behalfe of his Brother Mr John Williams Minister of Deerfield;” and in the province treasurer’s account ¶ the amount is charged as paid accordingly. See note to resolve, 1704-5, chapter 6.

chapter, the Governor accepted the vote of the House, as authority for his approving the pay-rolls of officers and men, in which the pay was stated according to the schedule thus established by the representatives.

The resolve, or another for the same purpose, was first sent to the Council from the representatives, March 25, 1703. No action upon it by the Council having been communicated, the House, by a committee consisting of Messrs. Jewett, Phipps, Blagrove "and others," sent a message to the Council, on the fourth of November, "to inquire after" it. By the resolve as here printed, it appears to have been sent to the representatives before the ninth, for on the tenth, the present resolve, bearing date of the ninth and "sent up for concurrence," was read in the Council. By the sixteenth, it had been returned to the House, with a message "to observe to the House that there was no provision made for any field-officer above the degree of a major and his pay as such to continue only while out after the enemy, or until his return to garrison or the expedition be over." The resolve was immediately returned "with a message that the House insisted thereon." On the eighteenth the following entry appears in the record:—

"Nov. 18, 1703. A Message was sent from the Representatives to desire their Act for the Establishment of Officers & Soldiers Wages, That the House may have further Consideration thereof. And it was delivered to their Messenger, & returned again with the razing out the Word (Major)." — Council Records, vol. VIII, p. 13.

The draught containing this cancellation shows that the words "major or" were stricken out. By this amendment, therefore, one of the grounds of objection was removed by making the resolve apply unequivocally to any commander-in-chief, whether a major, or an officer of higher or lower rank.

On the twenty-sixth, a message was sent up from the House and acted upon, as shown in the foot-note to this chapter.

The next spring another expedition was fitted out under command of Colonel Benjamin Church, of which Penhallow gives the following account:—

"... little or no impression could ever be made by us upon them, [the French and Indian enemy] by reason of their retiring into unaccessible swamps, and mountains. Wherefore it was determined, that Major Church, who was so eminently serviceable in the former war, should visit their head quarters, according to a scheme which he had projected.

No sooner was his commission granted, but he raised a considerable number of volunteers out of Plymouth colony both of English and friend Indians, and marched to Nantasket for further instructions; where the following gentlemen were appointed officers under him, viz. Colonel Gorham, Major Hilton, Captain John Brown, Constant, and Edward Church, Cole, Dyer, Lamb, Cook, Harreden, Williamson, and Myrick, with five hundred and fifty men and fourteen transports, and with thirty six whaleboats, which were guarded by Capt. Smith, Rogers, and Southack, in three ships of war. After they were equipped, they sailed to Pascataqua, to make up their complement from thence. May 15th, they sailed eastward, visiting all parts as they went along, till they came to the Green Islands, where they took Monsieur Lafebure, and his two sons, with a Canada Indian, whom they examined apart: The father at first seemed surly and crooked, and the young men were much of the like temper, but being told what they must trust unto in case they did not confess, were afterwards submissive, and promised to pilot them wherever they were directed. Upon this, the transports and whaleboats were ordered to be in readiness, and every man to have a week's provision; from hence, they paddled to Penobscot, and with the assistance of D. Young, whom they brought out of Boston Gaol on purpose for a pilot, killed and took a considerable number both of French and Indians, among whom was St. Casteen's daughter. From thence they went to Passamaquodda, and Monnt Desart, where they met the three ships of war according to appointment. Their custom was to rest in the day, and row in the night; and never to fire at an Indian if they could reach him with a hatchet, for fear of alarming them. Here they seized the old Lotriell and his family, after that, Monsieur Guorden, and Sharkee, who a little before came with a commission from Canada to form an expedition against the English. No sooner had our forces arrived here, but orders were sent them from Boston, forthwith to sail to Port-Royal, expecting some store ships from France, which was welcome news for officers and soldiers. But they missed their expectations: However, the ships stood off the harbor while the land forces went to Menis, where a council of war was held, and Lieut. Giles was sent to the town with a flag of truce and summons to surrender; their answer was, 'that if our forces would not hurt their estates, they would surrender, otherwise, were resolved to stand their ground.' Upon which, a descent was made upon them that night, but little effected until the morning, and then the forces drew up and drove all before them.

There was at this time a considerable plenty of brandy and claret in their houses, which rather proved a snare than service to our men; especially the Indians, who naturally affect strong drink, but this was soon prevented, by breaking in the heads of the casks. Lieut. Baker and one more were killed in this attack, and not above six died in the whole expedition. Most of their houses were burnt, and much plunder taken, but with as little effusion of blood as possibly could be. The General ordered their dams to be dug down, and their fortifications to be laid in ashes. Having as great success as reasonably could be expected, throughout all the territories of L'Acadia, and Nova Scotia, where he took a hundred prisoners, burnt and laid waste all the French settlements, (except the town of Port Royal) a great many cattle were also killed, and the Indians driven into such confusion, that they left their wigwams and retired into private cells.

On July 4th, a council of war was called to concert what next to do, who resolved, that as the Fort was alarmed, the enemy was more numerous than at first; and that as many of our men were tired and defective, it would be best to return; which was also consented unto by our sea officers. But notwithstanding the fatigue that this worthy gentlemen * had undergone, and the dangers he had run; the spoil he had done; and the victories he won, yet he could not escape the censures of many. Some indeed extolled his valor and conduct even to an hyperbole, while others endeavoured to lessen it with as much disgrace and infamy. Some thought he did too much, others too little: But after one and another has passed their sentiments, the General Assembly (which was then sitting) voted him thanks for the good services he did both to the queen and country.

The Governor of Port Royal being in fear of a new enterprize, sent Lewis Allein as a spy, under the colour of a flag of truce, with six prisoners, (whereof Mr. Hody of Piscataqua was one) to observe and know the motion of the English. But being suspected, he was apprehended and searched, and in his pocket-book was found this direction; "That if any enterprize was on foot, he should (in his advice book) join L. A. the two first letters of his name close together; if it was only in agitation, to place them at some distance; But if nothing was in motion, then to sign a cross." — Penhallow's Indian Wars, pp. 27-30. See, further, note to chapter 100, post.

A question having arisen in the Council as to the pay attaching to the rank of colonel and lieutenant-colonel, in this expedition, the following proceedings took place: —

"August. 17th 1704. In Council

On the eighteenth, a message from the Council was sent to the representatives by Elisha Hutchinson, John Phillips and John Higginson "to move the House to a further consideration of stating the pay for a colonel and lieutenant-colonel in the late expedition." To this the House responded on the nineteenth as follows: —

"Voted. That It is y<sup>e</sup> minde of this house signified by theire Establishment of Wages That no officers shall have above Captaines Pay Excepting only the Com<sup>dr</sup> in Cheife of any Expedition." — Ibid., p. 65.

This vote on the same day was sent up to the Council and read.

By the following petition it appears that John Wheelwright, minister at Wells, had repeatedly applied to Governor Dudley for a garrison to defend the town. Apparently, upon this last application, his prayer was granted, but it being strictly a military proceeding, under the sole direction of the Commander-in-chief, no record of the Governor's action has been found either in the journals or in the archives: —

This petition was read, first, in the Council and sent down to the House, where, December 1, 1703, this chapter was prepared and passed. On the same day it was concurred in by the Council and consented to by the Governor.

The resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed by the House of Representatives, November 12, 1703, and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the second of December it was concurred in and consented to by the Governor.

By an entry in the accounts* of the province treasurer it appears that for a bill of exchange for two hundred pounds sterling, payable to Phipps in London, the treasurer paid Andrew Belcher, "on behalfe & for Account of W<sup>m</sup> Partridge Esq<sup>r</sup>," two hundred and eighty pounds, forty per cent being added "for y<sup>e</sup> Exchange."

On the twenty-third the Governor addressed the House as follows :—

"Mr Speaker & the House being come up, His Excy<sup>ty</sup> observed to them that he had seen the Resolve of the House for granting a Sum of Money to Constantine Phips Esq<sup>r</sup> in Consideration of what Service he has done & to assist him in farther serving as Agent for this Province. M<sup>r</sup> Phips is a Gentleman he knows very well, & has a respect for, But he cannot be an Agent for this Province, having no Commission or Warrant so to be since his Arrivall with her Majesty's Commission for the Government. the Assembly, in June, 1702, exceeded his instructions in expressly recommending a "settled, stated salary," for the secretary of the province. In his subsequent speeches of October, 1702, and May, 1703, it will be remembered he renewed the recommendation, in a general way, without specific mention of the office of secretary; but after this, up to the date of this chapter, he appears not again to have pressed the subject. The amount granted by this chapter is the same that the Secretary received the previous year. See resolve, 1702, chapter 63.

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed December 13, 1703, and by an entry in the province treasurer's account† it appears to have been duly paid.

Russell had been chosen, jointly, with William Payne ‡ "commissioner for the impost and excise" under the act of 1702, chapter 7, § 4, and was reappointed this year to act alone, as appears by the following entry:—

The petition upon which this chapter was founded is as follows:—

Humbly Sheweth

That whereas yo<sup>r</sup> Peticon<sup>r</sup> for above twenty years past hath been Improved on all publike Occasions to beat the Drum Vz Laws, acts, proclamations &c. and a very rare thing that any other Drum<sup>r</sup> was Improved, and as yet never had any allowance for that Service, which has been a great hui drance to yo<sup>r</sup> Peticon<sup>r</sup> being often Called out on y<sup>e</sup> Last day of y<sup>e</sup> week being his busiest day, and no other hand to help him Doth most Humbly pray this Hon<sup>ble</sup> Court to take yo<sup>r</sup> poor Peticon<sup>r</sup>'s Case into Consideration and if it may be to Grant him ten pounds for his s<sup>d</sup> Service, which at 12<sup>d</sup> a time yo<sup>r</sup> Peticon<sup>r</sup> dos think might have amounted to more money: However yo<sup>r</sup> Peticon<sup>r</sup> Submits to y<sup>e</sup> Prudence of this Court hoping there will be a reasonable allowance Granted him; and your petitioner as in Duty bonnd Shall not Cease to pray &c." — Mass. Archives, vol. 101, p. 247.

This petition was read, first, in the House, October 30, 1703, and on the nineteenth of November, the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the second of December it was concurred in and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council || for the payment of this allowance was passed December 13, 1703, and by the province treasurer's account ¶ it appears to have been duly paid.

The resolve of the July session referred to is chapter 48, ante.

The order which constitutes this chapter was passed in the House, November 30, 1703, and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the second of December it was concurred in and consented to by the Governor.

The province treasurer in his account** charged himself with the whole five thousand pounds in bills of credit ordered to be printed by the act †† of this year. See note to chapter 84, post.

Chap. 84. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 20. It has not been found in the archives.

The bills of credit retained by the committee, as mentioned in the preceding chapter, and which by that chapter they were ordered to deliver to the province treasurer, were probably retained as security for their expenses, for which no allowance had been granted. By the present chapter provision was made for their reimbursement.

The order in Council || for the payment of this allowance was passed December 13, 1703, and the treasurer's account †† shows that they deferred taking the allowance granted to them for their services by chapter 48, ante, until after the present grant, and then were paid for both.

The encouragement to volunteers given by the act* of September 8, 1703, was, by this chapter, doubled in the case of scalps taken, and also extended to volunteers from New Hampshire.

The "proposal" which constitutes this chapter was passed by the representatives on the twenty-sixth of November and sent to the Council for concurrence, where, on the twenty-seventh, it was read. The proposal added by the House † was in response to the Governor's declaration respecting the forces going into quarters preparatory to the winter campaign, in his speech of October 27, 1703, printed in the note to chapter 66, ante. It was not agreed to by the Council, and so is not part of the vote. Hence the Governor's caution in confining his signification of consent on the original draught to the "order for reward," and the action of the Secretary in omitting this proposal when he made up the record of the vote.

On the second of December, the Council concurred in the first proposal and the Governor signed it, as above stated. On the thirteenth Dudley wrote to Lieutenant-Governor Usher, soliciting the opinion of the council of New Hampshire as to the advisability of proceeding "upon the ice to beat up the Indian enemy's headquarters." The Lieutenant-Governor, in a speech to his council on the twenty-second, recommended the scheme, as a preventive of Indian raids in the spring, and mentioned "the Narraganset attack and Sir Edmund Andros's curbing the enemy" as evidence that it had ever "been judged the best season in the winter" to thus attack the enemy, observing, also, that "its known well the enemy cannot be pursued so well in the spring as in the winter." The council thereupon advised "that the forces abroad be continued, and that there be an addition ordered, and that this Board humbly desires his Excellency, Joseph Dudley, Esq. Governour, &c. would be pleased to order said forces with all expedition possible to march to the Indian enemy's head Quarters, being the only thing that in all probability under God, may secure our Frontiers and preserve the subjects. And that this Board at all times shall be ready and willing to give their assistance." †

Six days later Usher reported to the council that he had ordered out twelve scouts "at the heads of the rivers for ten days," and had issued orders for the inhabitants to repair to their several garrisons.

On the twenty-fourth the advice respecting the disbanding of the forces, which the Massachusetts House of Representatives had offered on the second, received the qualified approval of the Council, as appears by the following entry:—

"His Excellency communicated to the Council Letters he had received from the Colonels of the Militia in several parts, referring to a Winter's march to the Indian head quarters.

As also a minute of the Lt Governr and Council of New Hampshire adviseing thereto. And ordered the vote of the Representatives at their last session relateing to that matter to be read, proposing an encouragement to voluntiers, who being Commissioned by his Excellency shall set forth and maintain themselves free from the Province charge. And considering the great difficulty and hardship, that will unavoidably attend a march of the detached Forces during the Winter season, further proposing that the same may be desisted, and that his Excellency be humbly moved to disband such of the said Forces as are kept in pay for that designe.

And then the question was put to the Council, whether they did advise his Excellency to march with the detached Forces, and such voluntiers as should offer.

The Council do not advise thereto, The Assembly having pass'd such a vote.

But on consideration of the late Intelligence of further mischief done by the Indians in the Eastern parts, prayed his Excellency to keep so many of the Forces on foot, as shall be necessary for the defence of the Frontiers."—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 3, p. 508.

In order to offer further inducement for the formation of parties of volunteers both in New Hampshire and Massachusetts by giving wider publicity to the additional encouragement offered in this chapter, it was promulgated by proclamation agreeably to the following order in Council:—

"Jan. 3, 1703-4. His Excellency proposed to the Council the Emitting of the Order pass'd by the General Assembly, at their last Session, begun the 27th of October past, for the Encouragement of voluntiers against the Indian Enemy and Rebels, to be recited in a Proclamation, that it may be made publick. Which was accordingly Advised."—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 1.

On the twentieth, this proclamation and a letter from Governor Dudley to the council of New Hampshire "relating to fifty men to be sent out for ten days," were read at the Board, and an order was immediately passed that the Secretary write to Captain Shadrach Walton, Captain Winthrop Hilton and Captain John Gilman, junior, requesting them to encourage the obtaining of volunteers and to report their proceedings to the Board. The report of these officers was made on the twenty-seventh, Captain Gilman presenting a list of twenty volunteers, and stating that he expected twelve more by the "latter end of next week besides officers," that snow-shoes were preparing for thirty men and representing the need of "provision and blankets, a pilot and a doctor." Captain Samuel Chesley stated that forty or fifty volunteers from Dover and Oyster River, who had thirty pairs of snow-shoes and rackets already made, would enlist under him as captain, and their principal want was some bread and more snow-shoes. Captain Winthrop Hilton volunteered his services, but had not had sufficient notice to enable him to enlist volunteers. Colonel John March came in from Hampton to advise the Board that Lieutenant Joseph Swett had "beat up for volunteers" at Hampton and had the promise of thirty-nine or forty men provided with snow-shoes and ready to march with the others, if supplied with provisions.

‡ On the second of December.

Secretary Story was thereupon directed to issue orders "to the several Captains of Exeter, Dover, and Oyster River, to appear with their Company in each respective Town, next Monday, for the encouragement of Volunteers to be Listed under Capt. Gilman and Lt. Chisley, in order to goe agst the enemy,"* the captains to bring in a list of the volunteers within a week. The list having been brought in accordingly, the council met on the third of February, Governor Dudley presiding, and voted that the service of the volunteers should be well represented to the Assembly, that the wounded should be cared for at the charge of the province, assuring them of the bounty offered by Massachusetts, and that there was no doubt that New Hampshire would make it up to forty pounds. Orders were also issued for impressing blankets, and for a supply of ammunition from the public stores.

Meanwhile a successful movement in the same direction was started in Massachusetts. On the thirty-first of January tidings having reached Boston that on the twenty-eighth thirty Indians had assaulted a garrison at Newichawannock, and had been repulsed with loss and pursued by a party of English, after having killed one girl,† Dudley decided to proceed to the frontiers and take charge of the movements against the enemy. He informed the Council that several companies of volunteers in New Hampshire and the county of York had enlisted in the service upon the "encouragement and reward" of this resolve, and that he proposed to set out for New Hampshire the next day, "to put forward that designe."‡ By the twenty-first of February he had returned, for on that day he presided at the Council; and probably the expedition was ended by that time.

For defraying the subsistence of the Governor, his attendants and guards on this journey thirty pounds were advanced to the Commissary-General, and on the twenty-ninth of February an additional allowance was made to Colonel Thomas Packer of Piscataqua for entertaining the party.

Encouraged by the liberal bounty now offered, Captain William Tyng led a party of volunteers against the Indians in their winter camp, which, if the result was not equal to his expectations, brought to him and his companions a pecuniary reward so considerable as to remain the only important detail of the expedition that has been definitely recorded, and affording the means of ascertaining the number of the enemy's scalps taken by him, in an encounter, the precise date, place, and most of the other particulars of which have never been brought to light.

Of these expeditions from Massachusetts and New Hampshire, Penhallow gives the following account:—

"The general assembly being sensibly affected with the state of matters, and disposed to a vigorous prosecution of the war, enacted, that forty pounds should be given for every Indian scalp, which prompted some, and animated others, to a noble emulation. Capt. Tyng was the first that embraced the tender, who in the depth of winter, went to their head quarters, and got five, for which he received two hundred pounds. Major Hilton also with five companies more made the like essay, and so did Capt. Stephens,§ but returned with no other laurel than the safety of themselves and company."—Penhallow's Indian Wars, p. 22.

Chap. 86. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 21. It is preserved in archives, vol. 101, p. 254.

The resolve which constitutes this chapter contained, as originally drawn, besides a clause for printing, signing and delivering to the province treasurer the sum of ten thousand pounds in bills of public credit, the following final clause:—

"And That Mr Thomas Oakes, Capt Ephraim Savage, and Capt Samuel Phipps, be a Committee for the affair aforesd<sup>d</sup> who shall be upon Oath for the faithful management thereof, and be allowed Ten shillings, for every Hundred Pounds, by them Signed numbred Indented and Delivered as aforesd<sup>d</sup>."—Mass. Archives, vol. 101, p. 254.

In this form, November 12, 1703, it was sent to the Council. On the twenty-sixth it was returned with a message, conveyed by John Walley and Penn Townsend, "to the House to desire that the word (Levied) in the Fund proposed, might be altered to the word (Granted) and that three of the former Comm<sup>tee</sup> might be continued to sign the new Bills to be made" ||

It was thereupon amended to its present form not, it would seem, by the substitution proposed, but, as appears by the original on file, by omitting the words "to be levied" between the words "pounds" and "upon polls and estates." etc. Thus changed it was concurred in by the Council, and "allowed" by the Governor on the second of December.

On the thirteenth a vote was passed in Council ¶ advising that a warrant be made ordering and empowering the province treasurer "to issue forth the sum of ten thousand pounds, of the Bills of Credit on this Province that are or shall be received into the Treasury to be by him issued out, for the use for which the last Tax was granted &c."

¶ On the sixth of March Dudley thus enumerated those who had been in this service: Captain Tyng, 60 men, 17 days; Major Hilton, 200 men, 23 days; Captain Stephens, 90 men, 19 days — and Captains Butkley, Chesley and Harvey, and Lieutenant Wilder still out with 60, 100, 50, and 30 men, respectively. The present appointment was not of a general fast, but was exclusively for the Legislature, and was observed by both branches on the fifteenth of March† agreeably to the Governor's appointment. Twice subsequently during the sessions of the Assembly; viz., March 25 and April 20, 1704, the representatives sent similar messages urging the appointment of a public fast, only one of which appears to have been acted upon (chap. 124, post).

The present fast was proposed four days after the rumor of the Deerfield massacre of February 29, 1703-4, had been confirmed.‡

The executive records of the council from February 29, 1703-4, to June 6, 1704, "do not appear to have been preserved;" § but from the following entry in the province treasurer's account, it is evident that the Legislature made due provision for the refreshment of their members and of the clergy, who, by their invitation, officiated on the occasion:—

"Paid Edward Bromfield Esq; his Disbursements for a Supper for ye ministers & some refreshment for ye members of ye General Assembly on ye evening of their Fast . . . . . 6, 2, 10."

The report of the justices of the Superior Court of Judicature called for by chapter 47, ante, was submitted and read in Council on the seventh** of September, as follows:—

May it please y<sup>r</sup> Excellency,

The s<sup>d</sup> Justices humbly render their hearty thanks to y<sup>r</sup> Excy, and the Hon<sup>ble</sup> her Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Council, that you will be pleased to be Informed of the Proceedings in the Superior Court upon appeals from Non-Suits and abatements by the Justices of the s<sup>d</sup> Superior Court.

** By the record this date is the eighth; but the original entry on the report shows that it was read the seventh.

And the s<sup>d</sup> Justices humbly crave leave to Observe a few preliminary positions in Order to their reporting the method of proceeding in the s<sup>d</sup> Superiour Court upon appeals from Non-Suits and abatements

1. That Non Suits and abatements in the Courts of this province have bin generally (tho not so properly) taken for Synonymous terms.

2. That whenever a Non Suit or abatement is in any Court awarded, The Writt in Such action is by Judgment abated, Or the Non Suit or abatement is a Judgment of Such Court. So my Lord Coke calls it, If a Writt be by Judgment abated — and if this Judgment — be reversed.

3. That if a Writt be in an Inferiour Court by Judgment abated, The Plaintiff hath Liberty to appeal from such Judgment of the Inferiour Court to the Superiour Court of Judicature. For the Plaintiff is a Party to the Writt, and he may be aggrieved by such Judgment against his Writt; and it shalbe in the liberty of the Party aggrieved at the Judgment given in any Inferiour Court to appeal therefrom unto the Next Superiour Court of Judicature to be held &c. These are the very Syllables of the act for regulating Tryalls in Civil Causes, made 13 Guil. 3.

4. That appeals are accounted to be of the nature of Writs of Errour. This is manifest from the forms of Reasons of appeals, and the answers to them dayly given into the Courts by the Practisers of the Law, and duely allowed by the s<sup>d</sup> Courts. And appeals were Order'd to be so accounted by the Gen<sup>l</sup> Court of the Massachusetts Colony 2. 3. 1649. 'It is Order'd by this Court, That all appeals lawfully Obtained, are to be accounted in the Nature of a Writt of Error.'

5. The Superiour Court of Judicature in this Province is not under greater restriction and limitation as to the tryal of Causes, then the Court of Assistants was in the late Colony of the Massachusetts. For if under the present Constitucōn all Civil actions shal be heard & tryed Originally in an Inferiour Court of Common Pleas, Except in Suits where the King is Concerned: Even so all Civil actions under the late Constitucōn, without any Exception, were to be Originally heard and tryed at the County Courts of that Colony. And as the Justices of the s<sup>d</sup> Superiour Court now are to have Cognizance of Civil Causes or actions between Common Persons as they are brought before them by appeals &c, so It was Order'd Anno 1649, That the Court of Assistants shal take Cognizance of no Case or action tryable at any County Court unless it be by way of appeal; Or as it is Express in the Printed Book, The Court of Assistants are to hear & determine all and Onely actions of appeal from Inferiour Courts. p. 36.

6. The Superiour Court of Judicature within this Province hath Cognize of all matters as fully & amply to all intents and purposes whatsoever, as the Courts of Kings Bench, Common Pleas and Exchequer within her Majesty's Kingdom of England have or Ought to have. as appears by an act for establishing a Superiour Court of Judicature &c within this Province, made Anno 12 Guil. 3.

The Severall Preliminary Positions afores<sup>d</sup> being observed to your Excellency and the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Gen<sup>l</sup> Assembly, The s<sup>d</sup> Justices of the Superiour Court do humbly Inform your Excellency and this Hon<sup>ble</sup> Court of the method of proceeding in the s<sup>d</sup> Superiour Court upon appeals from Non Suits and abatements by reporting the severall points resolved by the s<sup>d</sup> Justices at the Last Superiour Court held in Boston for the County of Suffolk, In an action brought before them by an appeal upon an abatement of a Writt by a Judgment of the Inferiour Court of Common Pleas. Which cause being the first of that nature that the s<sup>d</sup> Justices remember to have bin before them since the Present Constitucōn, They Endeavour'd upon advisem<sup>t</sup> and mature Consideracōn to resolve these several points.

Cooper's Case.

1. That the Writt being by Judgment in the Inferiour Court abated, the Plaintiff had liberty to appeal from the Judgment of the s<sup>d</sup> Inferiour Court to the next Superiour Court within the same county.

2. That the Writt is good notwithstanding what is alledged by the Defendant to abate the said Writt; and the Judgment of the Inferiour Court is reversed.

3. That the Defendant shal plead to Issue, and the Cause proceed to Tryall.

And the s<sup>d</sup> Justices Say that this is the method of Proceeding in the like Cases both in the Queens * Bench, (the Powers of which Court are vested in the Superiour Court. By an act of this Province, ut supr.) and in the Court of Assistants under the Govern<sup>mt</sup> of the late Colony of the Massachusetts.

In the Queens Bench. For this The Incontestable authority of Sr Edw. Co. is in Point. Mag. Car. Cap. 11. Comunia Placita non Sequantur curiam nostram, Sed teneantur in Certo aliquo Loco. Upon this Chapter These are his Words. 'Albeit originally the Kings Bench be restrained by this act to hold Plea of any real action, &c, Yet by a mean they may. As if a Writt in any real action be by Judgment abated in the Court of Common Pleas, if this Judgment in a Writt of Errour be reversed in the Kings Bench, & the Writt adjudged Good, they shal proceed upon that Writt in the Kings Bench, as the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas should have don, wch they do in the default of others, for necessity, lest any party that hath Right should be without Remedy, or that there should be a failer of Justice, and therefore Statutes are always so to be Expounded, that there should be no failer of Justice, but rather then that should fall out, that Case by Construction, should be Excepted out of the Statute, whether the Statute be in the Negative or affirmative.' And the same author In the Chapter of the Court of Kings Bench, wherein his busieness is to describe and set forth the Powers of the s<sup>d</sup> court, and what causes matters and things fall within its Jurisdiction & Cognizance, thus expresseth the method of proceeding in that Court upon a Writt of Errour, of Which nature are appeals here from Non Suits and abatements. 'If a Writt in a Real action be abated by Judgment in the Court of Common Pleas, and in a Writt of Errour the Judgment is reversed, and the Writt is adjudged Good, This Court shal proceed upon this Writt, and is not restrained by Magna Carta, ut Supra, Ne Curia Domini Regis deficeret in Justitia exhibenda.'

Ch. 7.

In the Court of Assistants under the late Constitucōn of the Colony of the Massachusetts Bay, The magistrates who held that Court had Cognize of appeals from non suits and abatements and if in actions of appeal the Judgment of the County Courts were reversed and the attach<sup>ts</sup> Judged good, the s<sup>d</sup> Courts proceeded to tryall and gave Judgment upon the merits of such Causes. as is most plain by the Precedents in the s<sup>d</sup> Courts Vid. Brattle's Case,* &c.

So that upon the whole matter, It is manifest, that the afores<sup>d</sup> Resolutions are not new, tho' the first, that have bin ruled in the s<sup>d</sup> Superiour Court, Since the present Constitucion. And the afores<sup>d</sup> Justices in the Cause afores<sup>d</sup> have declared the same Law, where there was the Same Reason. By chapter 47, the hearing was continued to the second session, when it was again continued, by force of chapter 56, to the third session, which began on the twenty-seventh of October, and on the thirtieth the petition and report were read. On the sixteenth of November the judges' report was sent to the House of Representatives. On the eighteenth, the Council agreed to enter upon the consideration of the petition the next morning. On the nineteenth a bill relating to appeals from judgments in bar or abatement was introduced in Council, read three times "and debated," but on the next day it was again read, and rejected, "and the heads of a new bill were proposed, and the Secretary ordered to prepare one accordingly." On the twenty-second the Secretary having prepared a new bill, it had its several readings in the Council and by both branches was passed to be engrossed. On the twenty-third a committee of the Council was appointed to bring this bill, with others, before the Governor, for his consent, but two days later it was read again "with some alterations proposed to be made therein," and was voted to be anew drawn accordingly. The draught was prepared, voted and sent to the House for concurrence, but returned on the twenty-sixth with a message from the representatives that they "adhered to their engrossed bill." The Secretary entered upon the bill "nothing acted." On the thirtieth a message was sent from the Council to the representatives "to move that House to a reconsideration of the bill passed by the Council, relating to appeals from judgments in bar or abatement." On the second of December the House voted to concur in the bill as last drawn, and it was passed to be enacted and on the same day was consented to by the Governor.

The bill as first passed to be engrossed differed from the bill finally enacted in having a preamble wherein the purpose was avowed to enforce the observance of "the gradual process in the law," which provided "that all civil actions other than such as are cognizable before a justice of the peace shall be originally heard and tried in an Inferior Court of Common Pleas," etc.; the enacting clause being therefore expressly declaratory, the word "only" was added to the clause requiring pleas in bar and abatement to be originally made in the Common Pleas; the words "session of the" were omitted before "Inferior Court" in the clause requiring the case to be tried on the merits after judgment on appeal in abatement, etc., and "without any delay" omitted after "writ" in the same clause. In the next paragraph "or" was used instead of "and" after "attached;" and in the clause extending the act to appeals from justices of the peace, the phrase used was "like cases of appeal now depending, as also in appeals to be made," etc., instead of the phrase adopted, which did not include pending cases.

As finally amended and enacted, this bill, after providing that all pleas in bar or abatement should be originally made in the Inferior Court, "before any issuable plea made," afforded relief in cases like the one in controversy by enacting that upon reversal of judgment thereon by the appellate court the cause should be sent back to the Inferior Court for trial upon the merits. But neither this act nor any other legislative proceeding operated to stay or change the enforcement of the judgment of the Superior Court in the former action, or to stay the execution in favor of the appellants which had been regularly issued on the thirtieth of June.

Cooper and his wife having succeeded in the courts of law in maintaining her right to one-eighth of the three mills at Centre Haven sought to recover her undivided share in the two mills at Mill Bridge, of John Farnham, who, as tenant to Hutchinson, refused to acknowledge her right. They accordingly brought suit against Farnham, declaring as they had in their action against Stratton and Story, save that they omitted the recital of the devise from Thomas Clarke. The writ was dated August 30, 1703, and was made returnable at the October term of the Court of Common Pleas for Suffolk County, when the parties appeared, and Farnham pleaded in abatement for that the defendant "is a Servant and therefore that a Writt of Trespass and Ejectm<sup>t</sup> lyes not against him as such; & for that he can neither give to nor be putt out of the possession by a minor part of the owners or claimers of the premisses sued for." †

The judges ‡ allowed the defendant's plea, and the writ was abated accordingly. From this judgment the plaintiffs appealed to the Superior Court at the term to be held at Boston on the first Tuesday of November, following. Paul Dudley, who appeared for the appellants, filed their reasons of appeal on the nineteenth of October.

* The case here cited was the appeal of Thomas Brattle, appellant, versus Richard Knight, administrator of the estate of John Paine, deceased, and Oliver Purchis. The action which was originally brought in the County Court of Suffolk, April 24, 1677, was upon a bond given by Paine and Purchis to Brattle, the plaintiff. At the trial, Knight objected that as Paine's estate was insolvent and commissioners had been appointed, the action did not lie against him as administrator; and Brattle refusing to proceed against Purchis severally, the court ordered a nonsuit; whereupon the plaintiff appealed to the Court of Assistants. On the fourth of September the Court of Assistants allowed the appeal, and sent the case to the jury, who found for the plaintiff. Thereupon the Court ordered a stay of judgment and execution "untill there be an orderly Division of the said estate among the creditors thereto as the law hath provided referring to non solvent estates." — Records in the office of the clerk of S. J. C., Suffolk, p. 71.

‡ Elisha Hutchinson, John Foster, Penn Townsend and Jeremiah Dummer.

Omitting the formal and descriptive parts, these reasons were given in as follows: —

“The Appellee being found in ye present possession or occupation of the premisses sued for is the onely person that an Ejectm<sup>t</sup> lies against, let his Capacity Be what it will & no Ejectm<sup>t</sup>. Can be brought against the Proprietors for the Action is Possessory. and the Rule of law is that the Def<sup>t</sup> shall not abate the Pl<sup>t</sup>'s writ Unless he Can Assign him a Better . . .” — Suffolk Court Files.

To these reasons the appellee made answer as follows: —

“Suffolk ss To the Superiour Court of Judicature to be held at Boston 1st Tuesday 9th 1703

The term at which the cause was argued began on the second day of November, but it continued until the fourteenth of December. Meanwhile the act above referred to, went into operation, and no exception being made therein of pending cases, the Court sustained the appeal and remitted the cause to the Court of Common Pleas to be tried on the merits, according to the statute.

The following is the record of this judgment: —

At a Superiour Court of Judicature begun & held at Boston for and within the County of Suffolk on Tuesday November the Second Annoq; Dom 1703 —

The case was now brought forward in the Court of Common Pleas at the term held on the first Tuesday of January, 1703-4. Hutchison was permitted to assume the defence in the place of Farnham, and pleaded the general issue. From the following entry in Sewall's Diary it would seem that the case was given to the jury on the seventh of January and that on the eighth, they brought in the same special verdict that had been given by the juries in the former suit between the same parties, but that the bench (Hutchinson himself presiding as chief justice) refused to accept their verdict and sent them out again, and that thereupon they found a verdict for the defendant: —

“Jan<sup>y</sup> 7th Col. Hutchinson's case is put to the Jury of which Mr. Hirst Foreman. Jan<sup>y</sup> 8. They bring in a conditional verdict, If Madam Warren had power to alienat before Division &c. Court would not accept of it; but said that was it they were to Try: and sent them out again: Then they brought in for Col. Hutchinson, costs. Col. Hutchinson said upon the Bench, He would not be Try'd by Infer. or Sup<sup>r</sup>or Court; He would be Try'd by the Jury; they were his Judges.” — Vol. II., p. 92.

Except when hardened by superstition, Sewall was keenly sensitive to the injustice of oppression in any form, and was outspoken against it. His interest in the case of Saffin's slave Adam, wherein the master sat as a judge, as shown in the note to chapter 8, ante, justifies the inference that he is entitled to a full share of responsibility for the decision of a majority of the court against their associate. The present case is another instance of his evident condemnation of a practice which would not now be tolerated; and as late as 1713, when he made his memorable charge to the first grand jury impaneled in the new court-house, after the great fire, he did not omit the injunction “Let never any Judge debauch this Bench, by abiding on it when his own Cause comes under Trial” (Diary, vol. II., p. 382). For Hutchinson as well as Saffin it may be urged that in the cases mentioned neither of these judges appeared as a party of record, and that the doctrine was not then obsolete that the bench had no control of the jury, or as Thomas Maule maintained in his famous argument before the Superior Court, that they were “but as clerks,” to conclude the verdict “with amen.” On the other hand, this does not avail to excuse Hutchinson, since in his case the plea which he sustained in his own interest in the action first brought by Cooper and his wife raised a question of law which did not go to the jury.

The court awarded judgment in conformity with the verdict, and the plaintiffs appealed.

The appeal was to be entered at the next (May) term of the Superior Court, and the appellant's reasons, which were filed April 18, 1704, were as follows:—

“Suffolke ss To the honorable the Justices of her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Superiour Court of Judicature to be held at Boston for the County aforesaid the first Tuesday of May 1704./

The appellee's answer to these reasons has not been found.

When the case came up in the Superior Court, the issue was submitted to the jury after full hearing of the pleadings and the evidence offered. The jury returned the same special verdict which had been rendered in the court below. Thereupon the judges, applying the law as they understood it, ordered judgment to be entered as follows:—

During these proceedings in the second action, Hutchinson's petition to the General Court was read and the order passed thereon which constitutes this chapter. At that stage, assuming that the recent act was merely declaratory of the law (which it was unsuccessfully attempted to have asserted in the act itself), the final disposition of the case by the Inferior Court, in June, did Hutchinson a wrong for which he was entitled to redress. Accordingly service was made upon Cooper as required in this chapter. This appears by the following entry in the council records, March 16, 1703-4, viz., “The Answer of Thomas Cooper & Mehetable his Wife to the Petition of Elisha Hutchinson Esqr was presented & read.”†

Although the Assembly sat until the twenty-fifth of March, and, after prorogation, sat again from the eighteenth to the twenty-first of April, no trace of further action in this matter has been discovered. Before a new Assembly was convened the final decision of the Superior Court had been rendered in the second case, and the execution levied. This was probably accepted as conclusive and the judgment against Hutchinson allowed to stand.

All but the last five paragraphs of the resolve which constitutes this chapter were passed in the House March 16, 1703-4, and sent to the Council for concurrence, where “the Premium proposed” was forthwith “agreed to,” and “the other Articles thereof left to Consideration, & Ordered to ly upon the Board.”† On the twentieth the resolve was again read in Council "and voted" "with an addition made thereto by the representatives," and was consented to by the Governor. The addition referred to was the last five paragraphs,† which originated in the House on the same day.

The only considerable differences between the original resolve and the record are that on the former the word "provided" follows "boats," in the second paragraph; the word "pound" appears in place of "pounds," in the first line, and the word "the" is omitted before "other," in the fourth line of the third paragraph; and the word "river" is omitted after "Merrimac," in the fifth paragraph.

The result of the winter's campaign, described in the note to chapter 85, ante, like that of the previous expeditions of this year, was disappointing to the Governor. He therefore determined to inflict upon the enemy more severe and effectual chastisement with a superior force on their own territory, at the same time making all necessary preparations for the defence of the ports of the province, exposed to danger from invasion by sea by reason of the drawing off of so considerable a number of men fit for military duty.

The General Court had been prorogued from the second of December, 1703, to the eighth of March, 1703-4, when it met again, in the fourth session, and on the second day the Governor made a speech in which he addressed the Assembly as follows:—

"Gentlemen

I thought it necessary to see you at this time and to have your advice in the affair of the warr that presses hard and the season of the year advancing we may expect the Enemy both upon the fronteirs and on the seacoast

I am sorry we have done no more against the Enemy this Winter however the severall Marches that we have made into the woods in the hardest of the Winter has Convinced the Enemy as well as ourselves that English Men can bear the Cold and Travell upon the snow as well as they and I am glad to see the temper and Inclination of her Majestyes good subjects so forward and patient of hardship and I heartly thank the Commanders and every party of Volunteirs that have so freely vndergone the Travel and difficulty of the service . . .

I most earnestly desire you Gentlemen that you will speedily let me have your advice and assistance in these articles of the warr and Treasury which truly Import us to the Last degree as we Love the Honor of the Crown, the English nation and our own Estate and Country and other affayres may be referred to your stated annal assembly now not far off.

And we shall very Much honour our selves and serve her Majesty and promote the Welfare of the province if we shall proceed with all vnanimity and freindship which with the divine blessing is the Strength and procures the success of all Humane affayres."—Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 15.

In this speech the Governor also made the recommendations in regard to the transportation, by sea, of forces to the coast eastward, and the repair of the lines and batteries before the town of Boston, which are printed in the notes to chapters 112 and 105, post, respectively.

Major Benjamin Church having offered his services in a military capacity, his offer was accepted by the Governor, who requested him "to draw a scheme * for the ensuing action or actions," which he did, and was thereupon appointed to the chief command with the commission of colonel, as much perhaps on account of the prospect of accelerating private enlistments by engaging this popular commander, as on account of his superior military genius.

His commission was as follows:—

"JOSEPH DUDLEY Esq; Captain General and Governour in Chief in and over Her Majesty's Provinces of the Massachusetts-Bay & New-Hampshire in New-England in America, and Vice Admiral of the same.

To Benjamin Church Esqr; Greeting.

By Virtue of the Power & Authority in & by her Majesty's Royal Commission to me granted I do by these presents, Reposing special Trust and Confidence in your Loyalty, Courage and good Conduct, Constitute and Appoint you to be Colonel of all the Forces raised and to be raised for Her Majesty's Service against the French & Indian Enemy and Rebels, that shall be improved in the Service to the Eastward of Casco-Bay; And to be Captain of the first Company of the said Forces. You are therefore carefully and diligently to perform the Duty of a Colonel and Captain, by Leading, Ordering & Exercising the said Regiment & Company in Arms, both Inferiour Officers & Souldiers; and to keep them in good Order and Discipline. Hereby commanding them to Obey you as their Colonel and Captain; And with them to do and Execute all acts of hostility against the said Enemy & Rebels. And you are to observe & follow such Orders and Directions as you shall receive from my Self or other your Superiour Officer, according to the Rules & Discipline of War, pursuant to the Trust reposed in you. Given under my Hand & Seal at Arms at Boston the 18th day of March. In the Third Year of Her Majesty's Reign. Anno Dom. 1703, 4.

* Church's scheme, as given in full in his "History of the Eastern Expeditions," edited by Dr. Henry Martyn Dexter (Boston, 1867), p. 131, is dated "February 5, 1703-4;" but this is undoubtedly an error, that being not only during the time when Dudley was directing the winter campaign at Piscataqua, — a circumstance which renders such an interview improbable though not impossible, — but inconsistent with Church's previous statement (p. 128) that the attack on Deerfield (which occurred on the twenty-ninth of February) induced him to make his proposition to the Governor. The Governor's commission to Church, as will be seen, is dated March eighteenth, probably much nearer the actual time of the interview.

ments of the forces authorized by this chapter must be had to the records of the colony of Connecticut and of the province of New Hampshire. By the following extract from the records of the former, it appears that Dudley promptly applied to that colony for a detail of one hundred Indians:—

[March 15, 1703-4.] “Whereas the Govern<sup>r</sup> of Boston hath desired to have about one hundred Indians with some English volunteers out of this Colonie to goe against the common enemy at the eastward, which the Govern<sup>r</sup> and Council of this Colonie hath so farre encouraged as to offer to the English volunteers that shall present themselves for said service the usuall wages that our souldiers have, and to the Indians twelve pence p<sup>r</sup> day in pay, all which this Court approves of as an addition to the incouragement offered said volunteers by Govern<sup>r</sup> Dudley, and desire the Honrd Govern<sup>r</sup> and Council to see them fitted out with all the speed that may be; their number not to exceed one hundred, of which twelve or more to be English if they can be had; and their charge of fitting out (except provision and ammunition to carry them into the Massachusetts Province) to be paid by said volunteers out of their wages. The officers to be appointed and commissioned by the Govern<sup>r</sup>. And it shall be in the power of the Govern<sup>r</sup> and Council, in the intervalles of the Gen<sup>l</sup> Assembly, to call home said volunteers from the abovesaid service when they shall see occasion for it. And it is further ordered that if there be not a competent number of English volunteers, viz. the number of ten or twelve to march with the Indians, then it is left with the Honrd Govern<sup>r</sup> to agree with so many as to make up said number upon such incouraging terms as may be thought best. . . .

And it is ordered by this Court that a letter be sent to Coll Patrigg desiring him to give a meeting to those gentlemen appointed by this Court to conferre with them, at a time and place convenient, concerning the improvement of those sixtie men that are appointed to be posted in the townes of Hampshire countie both for garrisoning and scouting, so as they may be most serviceable for the preservation of that countie and this government, and in all things needfull to concert such measures with their chief comandars there as they shall judge for the mutuall defence of said countie and this Colonie, and to agree for a proportionable number of men to joyn with ours for our mutuall defence as the Council of Warre shall direct. And the men appointed by this Court to treat as abovesaid are Mr John Elliott, and Capt. Mathew Allin for the present, and for the future such as the Council of Warre shall appoint.”—Colonial Records of Connecticut, 1689-1706, pp. 456-458.

This small contingent arrived, under charge of Major Samuel Mason, about the middle of April, as appears from that portion of Dudley's speech at the beginning of the next session, printed in the note to chapter 119, post. See Dudley's letter to Winthrop showing that they were at Newichawannock on the eighteenth and the wants of the unequipped being supplied by Dudley.—Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 191.

March 27, 1704. “The Council, understanding that his Excellency the Governour intends a speedy expedition eastward agst the French and Indian Enemy, and has ordered Major Winthropp Hilton to list a party of Volunteers within this her Majesty's Province for the aforesaid service:

Ordered, that the Secretary give notice with all possible expedition, to Captain Henry Dow, and Capt. Jacob Green of Hampton, that they muster their several Companies under their respective Commands on Monday next, being the third of April, by ten of the clock in the forenoon, and that Major Winthropp Hilton, or such as he shall employ, may have liberty of listing Volunteers for the service aforesaid. And that Capt. John Woodman, Capt. John Tuttle and Capt. John Knight, of Dover, &c. muster their several companies at the Meeting House on Dover Neck on Wednesday, the fifth day of April next, by ten of the clock in the forenoon; and that Capt. John Tuttle be desired then and there to take a list of such as shall enter themselves Volunteers in the service aforesaid, and make return to the Council of his doing therein; And that Capt. John Pickerin and Capt. Tobias Langdon, of Portsmouth, muster their several Companies at Strawberry Bank, on Thursday, the sixth day of April next, in order to list Volunteers under the Command aforesaid. And that Capt. Winthropp Hilton, and Captain Theophilus Dudley muster their several Companies at Exeter, on Thursday, the 28th instant in order for the listing of such Volunteers as will enter themselves under the Command of said Major Hilton for the service aforesaid.”—Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II, pp. 425-427.

More than two weeks before this order of the council, Dudley, in the following letter, had imparted his designs against the enemy to his nephew, Major Winthrop Hilton, and requested him to enlist volunteers:—

“Sr—I intend with the blessing of God to raise a very considerable force to range the Eastern shore to destroy the enemy, and would be ready to march by the last of this instant. If you please to take to your assistance, Gilman and Coffin, my very good officers, and raise me a number of Volunteers to be ready against the time, they shall have all encouragement in the service—ammunition given them and sloops to convey them, and the premium for the enemy destroyed, that the Assembly of this Province have or shall give them. I desire you to proceed with all vigor in the affair, and let me hear from you by every post.

Boston, 12 March, 1703-4

I am, Sir, your affectionate Uncle,

For her Majesty's service.

J. DUDLEY.

To Major Hilton, Exeter.”—Ibid., p. 426.

Meanwhile, in Massachusetts, the Governor, dissatisfied at the slow progress of enlistments of volunteers, prorogued the Assembly in order to give the members opportunity to use their personal endeavors to fill up the ranks. The record of the proceedings on this occasion is as follows:—

“March 25, 1704. His Excellency sent a Message to the Representatives, That Mr Speaker & the House forthwith attend him in Council.

And being come, his Excellency intimated, That several Gentlemen feared that notwithstanding the large Premium offered for Volunteers the Number would fall short, Which he desired them to encourage in their several Parts; And therefore had Concluded to make a short Prorogation to see how that Matter would rise, That if it did not obtain, other Measures might be taken: — And accordingly Order'd the Secretary to declare that the present General Assembly be & is hereby prorogued unto Tuesday the eighteenth of April next at nine in the Mofning, Which was publish'd accordingly." — Council Records, vol. VIII, p. 38.

Upon the reassembling of the General Court the Governor, on the second day of the session (April 19, 1704), addressed them as follows: —

"Gentlemen

Since I saw you last I have used all possible means to Rayse a proper Number of Volunteers for the service upon the Honorable premium you allowed in the Last Session (and I hope you have done the same in the several parts) but without any Considerable appearance and by the Intelligence I have of the Enemy I am assured if wee keep not the warr at a distance they will Employ us nearer home,

I must therefore desire you will have some other Consideration of the matter, if you should see meet to revive the ten pound act made the Last year and allow the Transports, I beleive we might Immediately see a sufficient Number for the Summers Expedition otherwise I must have recourse to the ordinary Method of the Impress Least the summer be lost and the frontiers oppressed.

by the Intelligence I have it is necessary the forces be forth with sent away I shall therefore not trouble you further in this busy season I desire you to admit no private affayr what soever, that the session may have an End in two or three dayes." — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 17.

During the vacation the Governor exerted his authority to secure the prompt coöperation of his council of the province of New Hampshire, as appears by the following entry, which also shows the action taken by them: —

April 20, 1704. "His Excellency, Joseph Dudley, Esq. Govern<sup>r</sup> &c. his letter of the 15th instant and postscript of the 16th instant, intimating his Excellency being surprised to hear there is noe appearance of Volunteers for the Expedition upon soe honourable a premium offered by the Massachusetts Government, to goe against the French and Indian enemy, &c. desiring every person in his station to put it forward &c. as also that he hath news from Port Royal that the Enemy may be expected the beginning of May, in a great number, directing this Board to be very diligent upon the Frontiers, to Scout &c. was communicated at this Board.

Ordered, that Mr. Secretary write to the several Capt<sup>s</sup> of this Province requiring them to call their several companies together on Monday next, and to intimate to them that his Excellency is surprised to heare there is noe appearance of Volunteers, Considering the great premium the Massachusetts Government offers: And that the said Capt<sup>s</sup> use their utmost endeavours to procure what Volunteers they can, to goe with all expedition ag<sup>t</sup> the French and Indian Enemy, at Port Royal; it being highly reasonable for a proportion of Volunteers to goe out of this Province considering several hundreds are going out of the said Massachusetts Government upon such Expedition; and further, we being covered with a great number of forces out of the same; and this Expedition being forwarded will probably under God, prevent the enemy's attacking us this Summer; and that the several Capt<sup>s</sup> make returne of their doings herein to the Secretary by Thursday next at furthest.

Ordered, that the Secretary also write to the several Capt<sup>s</sup> of this Province, that all Frontiers be forthwith in Garrison, and that diligent scouting, watching, & warding, at their utmost peril, be constantly and strictly observed and kept upon the Frontier for fear of a speedy attack by the French and Indian Enemy." — Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II., pp. 427, 428.

On the second of May the council of New Hampshire again met and took further measures, of which the following is a record: —

"The several Militia Capt<sup>s</sup> of this Province, having appeared at this Board,* (excepting Capt. Dow and Capt. Woodman,) the Council thought meet to acquaint them that considering it was a very troublesome and dangerous time, and the Enemy might be Expected daily upon us, they had therefore called them to attend this Board, and desired them to give this Board their opinion what method was fittest to be taken for the security of the Province, to prevent the public Enemy attacking us by Land or by Sea; and to goe and consult together and deliver their opinion in writing to this Board.

The Major part of the Capt<sup>s</sup> present as above, made their returns under their hands, that they knew no better way than watching, warding, scouting, &c. upon all the Frontiers by Sea and Land, &c. as upon file.

Ordered, that three men be forthwith Imprest to keep constant scouting and watching by night, (till further order) — strictly and constantly betwixt Rendezvous point at Little Harbor, and Little Boars Head, for the observing the motion of the Enemy in making any attack upon this Province. And that Thomas Westbrook, of Ports<sup>m</sup> who offers himself to serve her Majesty in scouting and watching betwixt the places abovesaid, be Corporal over the said three men, and that they observe said Westbrook's orders and directions, as the said Thomas Westbrook shall receive from his Excellency our Governour, or the Commander-in-Chief for the time being, from time to time at their peril, and that the Secretary issue forth orders to Capt. Pickerin for impressing one able man out of this Town, and also to Capt. Dow, to impress two men out of Hampton, for the service aforesaid, with provision, Arms and Ammunition for scouting as the Law directs; to be ready on Monday next, at the house of John Fosse's at Sandy Beach, by 12 of the clock at furthest.

* The order for their appearance (on the second of May, at noon) was passed at a council held on the twenty-ninth of April. — Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II., p. 430.

Ordered, that all listed Troopers within y<sup>e</sup> Province doe duty in Watching, warding and scouting, in the several Towns they live in; and to be ordered so to doe by the several Capt<sup>s</sup> of the Militia Company's in each Town till further order." — Ibid., pp. 430, 431.

This action, and an order on the twelfth for a general fast to be kept on the eighteenth, throughout the province, upon advice of the Governor communicated in his letter of the fifth, were the last public acts of the government of New Hampshire, previous to the departure of the expedition.

Upon receiving his commission Church had immediately set about recruiting within the limits of what was formerly Plymouth Colony. By the fourth of May he received his instructions, as follows:—

"By his Excellency JOSEPH DUDLEY Esq; Captain General and Governour in Chief in and over Her Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts-Bay, &c. in New-England, and Vice Admiral of the same.

Instructions for Colonel Benjamin Church in the present Expedition.

In Pursuance of the Commission given you to take the Chief Command of the Land and Sea Forces by me raised, equipped and set forth on Her Majesties Service, against her open declared Enemies the French, and Indian Rebels. You are to Observe the following Instructions.

First. You are to take care, That the duties of Religion be attended on board the several Vessels, and in the several Company's under your Command, by daily Prayers unto God, and Reading his holy word; And that the Lords Day be observ'd & duly Sanctified to the utmost of your power, as far as the circumstances and the necessity of the Service can admit; that so you may have the presence of God with, and obtain His Blessing on your Undertaking.

You are to take care, That your Souldiers have their due allowance of Provisions & other necessaries; That their Arms be well fixt, and kept fit for Service, and that they be furnished with a suitable Quantity of Powder and Ball, and be always in readiness to pass upon duty.

That good Order & Discipline be maintained; And all disorders, drunkenness, prophane Swearing, Cursing, Omission or neglect of Duty, disobedience to Officers, Mutiny, Desertion, and Seditious be duly punished according to the Rules & Articles of War: The which you are, once a Month or oftner, to cause to be published & made known to your Officers and Souldiers for their Observance & Direction in their duty. Let notorious & Capital Offenders be sent away to the next Garisons, there to be Imprisoned until they can be proceeded with.

Let the Sick and wounded be carefully look'd after, and accommodated after the best manner your circumstances will admit of, and be sent either to Casco Fort, or to Mr. Pepereels at Kittery, which may be easiest, so soon as you can.

You are forthwith to send away the Forces & Stores by the Transports, with the Whale-boats to Piscataqua, on Kittery side, there to attend your coming; whither you are to follow them with all Expedition.

You are to Embark on the Province Galley, Capt. Southack Commander, And let Lient Col. Gorham go on board Capt. Gallop; who are both directed to attend your Motion on the French side; after which they are to return. Let the Commanders of all the Store Sloops & Transports know that they Sail, Anchor and Serve at your direction.

When you Sail from Piscataqua, keep at such distance off the Shoar, that you be not observed by the Enemy to Alarm them. Stop at Montinicus, and there Embark the Forces in the Whale-boats for the Main, to range that part of the Country, in search of the Enemy, to Mount Desart; sending the Vessels to meet you there; and after having refreshed & recruited your Souldiers, proceed to Machias, and from thence to Passamequado; And having Effectuated what spoils you possibly may upon the Enemy in those parts, Embark on your Vessels for Menis and Signecto, touching at Grand Manan, if you see cause, and from Menis & Signecto to Port Royal Gut; And use all possible Methods for the burning and destroying of the Enemies Housing, and breaking the Dams of their Corn grounds in the said several places, and make what other Spoils you can upon them, and bring away the Prisoners. In your return call at Penobscot, and do what you can there, and so proceed Westward.

This will probably employ you a Month or Six Weeks; when you will draw together again, and by the latter end of June consider whither you can march to Norriguack, or other parts of their Planting to destroy their Corn & Settlements: And keep the Expedition on foot until the middle of August next.

Notwithstanding the particularity of the afore-going Instruction, I lay you under no restraint, because I am well assured of your Courage, Care, Caution and Industry; But refer you to your own Resolves, by the Advice of your Commission Officers, not under the degree of Captain's, and the Sea-Commission Captains (whom you will, as often as you can, Advise with) according to the Intelligence you may receive, or as you may find needful upon the Spot.

You are by every opportunity, and once a Week certainly, by some means, either by way of Casco, Piscataqua, or otherwise to acquaint me of your proceedings and all occurrences, and what may be further necessary for the Service. And to observe such further & other Instructions as you shall receive from my Self.

As often as you may, Advise with Capt. Smith and Capt. Rogers Commanders of Her Majesty's Ships.

Let your Minister, Commissary & Surgeons be treated with just respects.

I Pray to God to preserve, prosper and succeed you.

Given under my hand at Boston, the Fourth Day of May, 1704.

History of Eastern Expeditions, vol. II., pp. 141-145.

Agreeably to Dudley's orders Church marched his force to Nantasket, and embarked his main body in the transports for Piscataqua. Having forwarded his stores, he escorted the Governor thither overland, enlisting one company of recruits on the way.* On the fifteenth † the expedition sailed from Piscataqua in the transports, Church proceeding in the Province Galley, Captain Cyprian Southack, and Lieutenant-Colonel John Goreham in the brigantine Adventure, Captain Joseph Gallop. They were accompanied by the brigantine John and Abiel, Captain Nathaniel Jarvis. Two ships of the royal navy ‡ remained at Piscataqua to follow later, — so as not to draw the attention of the enemy to the movements of the pioneers, — and to rejoin Church at Passamaquoddy.

By the seventh of June he had visited the coast, in whaleboats, from Matinicus (where the fleet came to anchor) as far east as Passamaquoddy, the western harbor of which he entered towards evening. Here he captured some families of the old French settlers and took prisoners or killed others of the enemy, and penetrated the country some miles further north in the hope of engaging a large body of the Indians, who, however, receiving notice of his approach, fled, leaving a great quantity of fish. This he took or destroyed. The ships of war and transports arriving, at this juncture, under orders to proceed to Port Royal, he (when they left) embarked on the John and Abiel for Minas. On the twentieth he drew up and signed on board the Adventure, then lying in the channel, a summons to the town of Minas § (now Horton) and to Port Royal, to surrender without delay. This summons was served on Minas the same evening under a flag of truce, and, not being complied with, the town was destroyed by fire the next day, and the enemy routed.

Besides destroying the dikes and buildings along the Minas Basin, he, on the two following days, took possession of two villages besides Minas and destroyed the crops and stores of the enemy there. Meanwhile the ships of war which had proceeded towards Port Royal were overtaken by Church and his men in the transports which had followed Church to take his men on board.

At Port Royal the enemy was found so strongly fortified that it was finally decided, at a council of war, held on board the Province Galley, on the fourth of July, that it was imprudent to attempt to attack their position with the four hundred men which comprised the effective force of the expedition. Church's force therefore proceeded to Chignecto and having despoiled that region sailed back to Mount Desert, by way of Passamaquoddy. At Mount Desert they found that the men-of-war had sailed for Boston, whither Church followed them, stopping at Penobscot and Casco Bay but finding no traces of the enemy there. At the latter place they found, awaiting them, an order from the Governor to dislodge the enemy at Norridgewalk; but this order was disregarded, upon advice of a council of war. Church reached Boston with part of his forces, August 10, 1704. ¶ Besides the account given by Penhallow and Niles as above mentioned, the following extract from Dudley's speech to the General Court, August 16, 1704, is perhaps as satisfactory a summary as could be given of the results of this memorable expedition: —

“Gentlemen

Since your Last recess The forces eastward vnder Colonel Church with the Assistance of her majestyes shippes have past thro' all the Eastern parts of Iacadie & Nova Scotia and have burnt and Destroyed all the french settlements except The Town of port Royall & Killed their Cattle & broken their dames, & have brought home about 100 prisoners & a good plunder so that I am not sensible There are five houses left in any part of the french settlements out of sight of the fort, nor any maner of support for the Inhabitants, which was what we projected in the spring & the forces are return'd & Disbanded without the Loss of any more than six men for which we have all reason to render thanks to Almighty god.” — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 21.

† Penhallow, and Niles after him, state that the expedition sailed from Piscataqua on the fifteenth. Dudley, however, in his speech to the General Court, June 1, 1704, declares that it sailed “about ten days since.” This discrepancy may be reconciled by supposing that the Governor referred to the departure of the regular ships of war, which, as shown above, were to remain behind for a short time. Church states that he “requested the commanders of her majesty's ships . . . to tarry at Piscataqua a fortnight.” They may have shortened their stay a few days. The following proclamation shows that up to the twelfth of May these ships had not received their complement of men: —

“By His Excy. JOSEPH DUDLEY Esq. Capt. General and Gov. in Chief of the Province of the Mass. Bay.

: This petition and certificate were read, first, in the House, March 20, 1703-4, and referred to the standing committee on petitions, who reported as follows : —

" In Answer to This petition the Comittee Do propose that There be ffour pounds allowed to the Petitioner out of ye Province Treasur." — Ibid., p. 10.

On the twenty-third the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed by both branches and consented to by the Governor.

In his speech at the beginning of the fourth session of the General Court this year (March 9, 1703-4), the Governor suggested the precaution of repairing the fortifications in and about Boston, as follows : —

" There is also the Consideration of the fortifications of this Town the seat and security of our Trade that the Lines before the Town and the batteryes especially that at the North be reformed and repayed Least we be Insulted by the Enemy." — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 16.

A resolve had been passed the preceding year, on a similar recommendation by the Governor, to authorize the calling a meeting of the proprietors of the neglected outwharves (described in the note to chapter 6 of the acts of 1722-3*) fronting the cove between the North and South batteryes, in order to raise the means, by tolls or otherwise, for rebuilding and maintaining those dilapidated defensive structures.†

Following the repeated suggestions of the Governor, this year, the Council, March 11, 1703-4, passed "Several Resolves for Encouragem<sup>t</sup> of the Repair of" these outwharves "by laying a Toll upon Vessels coming into Harbour there &c"‡ which resolves were sent to the representatives for concurrence.

On the thirteenth the inhabitants of Boston, in town meeting, passed the following vote:—

"Elisha Cook Esqr., Collonoll Elisha Hutchinson, Coll. Pen Townsend, Coll. Thomas Savage & Capt. Timothy Clark, are appointed to be a Committee to view the Fortifications of this Town, and Advise about the repaires thereof, and the Selectmen are to Expend thereon not exceeding the Sum of fifty pounds." — Town Records, 1700-1728, p. 31.

This vote was presented to the Council on the following day, read, and sent down to the House by Eliakim Hutchinson, with a message "to desire that House to make some Addition thereto, as also to allow the Disburse of Cap<sup>t</sup> Timothy Clark on the South Battery to the Value of about Twenty Pounds."§

All these legislative proceedings, however, would seem to have been abortive, unless, as is conjectured, the following resolve, passed by the House contemporaneously with this chapter, was advisory, merely, and put in execution as an order of the Commander-in-Chief with the approval of the Legislature:—

"In the House of Representatives March 23: 1703.

Resolved That the Sum of Twenty Shillings P ann, be Allowed, and Paid out of the publick Treasury to Capt Timothy Clark, for three years last past, in Consideration of his having had the charge & Custody of Stores of War, belonging to the Province.

Sent up for Concurrence.

March. 24th 1703. Read in Council." — Mass. Archives, vol. 71, p. 31.

The sentinels employed under the provisions of this chapter were paid agreeably to the resolve of 1704-5, chapter 100; q. v., and the note thereto.

The Sconce, or South Battery, which, besides the purposes of defence, was used for storing powder,|| flanked the "outwharves" on the south, near the foot of Fort Hill. It was reached by a way, still known as Batterymarch Street, leading over the salt marsh near the foot of Milk Street. Its origin is shown in the following report made to the General Court in May, 1666, by a committee appointed by them apparently the year preceding:—

"Wee, the subscribers, being appointed a committee by this honoured Court to veiw the batterjes lately erected by Major Generall Jn<sup>o</sup> Leneret, wth the aduice of the committee of militia in Boston, accordingly attended that service, and vnder the conduct of the sajd major generall, wee entred a well contriued fort, called Boston Sconce; the artillery therein is of good force & well mounted, the gunner attending the same; the forme thereof suiteable to the place, so as to scower the harbour, to the full length of their shott, enery way; it is spacious wthin, that the traourse of one guune will not hinder the others course; and for defence, the foundation is of stone, & well banked wth earth for dulling the shott & hindering execution; finally, wee apprehend it to be the compleatest worke of that kind which hitherto hath been erected in this country. . . . .

To conclude: wee judge the defence to be considerable, & the offence to be avajleable (by Gods blessing) for the thing intended, for w<sup>ch</sup> the actors & contrivers, whereof Major Generall Lenerit hath bene the cheife, both in contriving, acting, & disbursing, deserues the thanks of this Court, & all due encouragement. This petition was read, first, in the House, on the twenty-first of March, when the resolve was passed and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the twenty-fourth it was concurred in and consented to by the Governor.

The "accounts" of Colonel Römer referred to in this chapter, the last of which, by an entry in the journal of the Council, appears to have been presented to that Board and sent to the representatives as early as March 16, 1703-4, have not been discovered, neither has the accompanying "memorial" by him nor the "plan of Casco Fort," both of which are mentioned in the entry aforesaid.

When the results of Römer's management of the fund put at his disposal by chapter 40, ante, are compared with his promises, printed in the note to that chapter, it is difficult to reconcile with a belief in the honesty and independence of the General Court their vote of thanks to him and their readiness to approve his accounts, except by the supposition that, perceiving in him those traits which had made Clarke and Brattle unwilling to continue in service with him, they were glad to be rid of this insatiable and extravagant servant as quietly as possible and at whatever cost.

Since Römer had been intrusted with the exclusive management of the expenditures on the Castle the records show a growing uneasiness in the House in regard to the manner in which that service was being performed. A committee of the representatives visited Castle Island November 25, 1703, and on the same day the House sent to the Council the following protest: —

"Whereas this Court Pass'd a Resolve at their session in March last, Granting 500<sup>l</sup> for the fortifying of Castle-Island, to be Improved for finishing those works, which are most necessary to be done for the present Defence of the same, particularly the Platforms, and Carriages to be done in the first place.

And whereas both the sd<sup>d</sup> sums are almost Expended, the Platforms, and Carriages are not yet made, particularly the south East Platform on the Hill, slighted and almost broken up, which seems to be of great Consequence, and the Platform in the south East Bastion of the old works, not laid, altho<sup>ugh</sup> we were Promiss<sup>d</sup> the first £500. should be Improved for that end, nor necessary Lodgings provided for the souldiers, but instead thereof a new Boat, and a House for Entertaining it are built to the Expence of many Pounds, being none of those things Enumerated in the Computation afores<sup>d</sup> but very unnecessary, the Castle being before sufficiently provided with Boats.

Resolved That the neglect of the finishing the Works afores<sup>d</sup> so necessary for the present Defence, and for which the Grants afores<sup>d</sup> were made, and the application, and Expence of the money afores<sup>d</sup> to other and unnecessary uses is a Grievance." — Mass. Archives, vol. 70, p. 660.

This paper was read in Council on the twenty-sixth, but nothing further appears to have been done.

On the second of December the House renewed their complaint of Römer's management in a declaration, addressed to the Governor, of grievances which they prayed to have redressed. The clauses in this paper which refer to the work and discipline at the Castle are as follows: —

"The Mony Last Granted (to ye vse of ye Fortification at Castle Isle being 700<sup>l</sup>) to be drawne out by Coll. Romer & M<sup>r</sup> Bratle for ye finishing of sd<sup>d</sup> Coll. projections then layd before ye Court: m<sup>r</sup> Bratle not accepting yt betrustm<sup>t</sup> this house are at a Loss who shall Informe them of y<sup>e</sup> Regular drawing of ye same: or whether any Remayne. And y<sup>t</sup> not any Person may be there allowed to sell strong drink for ye Impoverishing; ye parents, masters or families of such as are posted there." — Ibid., p. 666.

This declaration and petition was read in the House on the day it was presented and sent to the Council, where it was immediately read, but no action taken until their next meeting, eleven days later, when it came up for consideration and the Governor proposed that Colonel Römer be served with a copy "and that the same be referred to him to answer."

The second of December was the last day of the session, and, according to custom, the Governor, after signing, in the presence of the Speaker and representatives, who had come up to the council chamber, the several acts of the session which had not previously been approved by him, "acquainted the House that the Money that they had granted to Several Persons & Occasions was agreed to by the Council."* He then replied specifically to certain of their objections, but made no further allusion to the work at the Castle.

The fourth session began March 8, 1703-4, and on the next day Dudley delivered his speech to the Assembly in which he declared "I think there is but a very small Matter remaining to be done at the Castle the Disburse for which as well as the General state of your publiq; accounts I have directed the Treasurer to Lay before you."†

The account thus submitted by the Governor may have been kept with the province treasurer by Zechariah Tuthill, lieutenant of the Castle, to whom money was paid on Römer's account, after Brattle had declined to have further charge of it. It appears that Römer's "account of the disburse of the last grant of seven hundred pounds" was presented to the Council and sent down to the representatives on the sixteenth, as stated in the beginning of this note.

The two hundred and fifty pounds allowed by this chapter is charged as paid to Brattle in the following entry in the province treasurer's account from May 26, 1703, to May 31, 1704:—

In his speech to the representatives on the second day of the session (March 9, 1703-4) the Governor made the following suggestion as to the need of an enlargement of the military and naval forces of the province:—

"we are now to Look forward and I think it necessary beside the standing forces upon the frontiers especially in the province of Mayn which are necessary to keep off the Impression of the Enemy There will be needfull very speedily a good force of English and Indians with sloopes to attend the Coast Eastward to keep the Indians from the benefit of the sea and Trade with the french which must be soon dispatcht and after that may be drawn together to prevent their planting." — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 15.

On the fourteenth the Council sent a message to the representatives to move them "to revive the Bill they offered the last Session for an Establishment of the Pay for Vessels taken up for War & Transports & Officers & Mariners Pay."‡

The order which constitutes this chapter was therefore passed and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the sixteenth the Council referred the order to a committee consisting of John Foster, John Walley, Eliakim Hutchinson and John Higginson. On the next day the committee made the following report, which was read and approved and sent down to the representatives:—

On the twentieth the representatives returned the order as originally drawn “without any Amendment agreeable to the Report of the Committee.” The Council thereupon ordered it “to ly upon y<sup>e</sup> Board.”* On the twenty-second “The Secretary, John Walley & Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>s</sup> were sent on a Message to the House to move their further Consideration of the Bill,” † etc.

The House again sent up the bill “with some further addition made thereto.” Apparently the alterations were the changing of “forty” to “fifty,” in the seventh and ninth lines; correcting a clerical error in the twentieth line; changing “six” to “seven,” in the twenty-first line; striking out “mate that is,” before “gunner,” and substituting “fifty shillings” for “a five three pounds,” after “gunner,” in the thirty-fourth line; substituting “forty” for “five and thirty,” after “boatswain,” in the thirty-fifth line; and adding the final clause beginning with “and all vessels,” in the thirty-seventh line.

Finding the House firm in thus insisting upon the substance of their original draught, the Council, on the twenty-fourth, voted to concur in it, in the form in which it appears in this chapter, and it was consented to by the Governor.

An account of the military and naval expedition under Colonel Benjamin Church, which was the immediate inducement to the passage of this chapter, is given in the note to chapter 100, ante. Chap. 113. This chapter is from archives, vol. 47, p. 245. It is minuted in council records, vol. VIII., p. 34.

By the eighteenth article of the royal instructions to Sir William Phips he was required “to take care that drunkenness and debauchery, swearing and blasphemy be severely punished,” etc. Substantially the same direction was contained in the twenty-second article of Bellomont’s instructions and in the thirty-seventh of Dudley’s. Queen Anne’s instructions to Dudley were reinforced by her proclamation against profaneness (March 26) which may be seen in the London Gazette. That it was known in New England appears by an entry in Sewall’s Diary* under date of December 8, 1702.

Profaneness, it will be remembered, was one of the offences for the suppression of which the clergy had repeatedly memorialized the General Court, and which led to the enactment of chapter 15 of the acts of 1696. See note to resolves, 1696-7, chapter 57.

The declaration which constitutes this chapter was drawn and passed in Council March 23, 1703-4, and sent to the representatives for concurrence. It was concurred in on the following day and signed by the Governor.

After prorogation of the General Court July 31, 1703, the Governor, apparently in response to his representation of his ill-success in securing the establishment of permanent salaries in conformity to his instructions, received a letter from the queen dated April twentieth, communicating to the Council directly that article of his instructions.

This letter has not been found, but the following copy of the representation of the Lords of Trade, dated April second and approved by the Privy Council on the tenth, is given by Palfrey :—

“As to the Province of the Massachusetts Bay, which is a charter government, the inhabitants have been always averse to any compliance with the directions that have been frequently sent from hence for settling a fixed revenue for the support of that government or the Governor; and upon application made to the Council and Assembly by Colonel Dudley, your Majesty’s present Governor, pursuant to your Majesty’s instructions to him, they have wholly declined the same, persisting in their usual way of making only temporary provisions for the charge of the government, whereby they have kept your Majesty’s Governors there in a continual dependence upon them for voluntary presents, which to the present Governor have been as yet very inconsiderable.

Whereupon we humbly offer that your Majesty would be pleased, by a letter under your royal sign manual, directed to the Council of that Province, to be communicated likewise to the Assembly, to require them that, in consideration of the great privileges they enjoy, they do settle a constant allowance, suitable to the character and dignity of that government, without limitation of time, upon the Governor, together with a fitting provision for the Lieutenant-Governor or Commander-in-chief for the time being; in which letter it may be intimated to them that, if they neglect this opportunity of complying with your Majesty’s just expectations, your Majesty will be obliged to have recourse to such remedies as may be proper and effectual in order to a due provision herein.” — Hist. of New England, vol. IV., pp. 254, 255, note.

This letter the Governor mentioned in his speech to the Assembly on the first of September at the opening of the second session. By the following entries in the council records it will be seen that the letter was first submitted to that Board, and, agreeably to their advice, communicated to the Assembly on the next day :—

“Sept. 2, 1703. Her Majesties Letter read Yesterday at the Board was sent down to the Representatives by James Russel Esq<sup>r</sup>.” — Ibid., p. 431.

The earliest action of the representatives upon this letter was on the sixth, and is recorded as follows :—

* “Enclos’d the Gazette that had the Queens Proclamation against Profaneness.” — Vol. II., p. 69.

† Probably the Secretary’s mistake for the twentieth, which was the date of the letter referring to salaries. Possibly the letter which came by the fleet, referring to Pemaquid, was dated the eighth.

"Sept. 6, 1703. A Message was brought up from the Representatives by Mr Jewett, Cpt. Savage & Mr Denison, To Acquaint his Excy. That the House desired That the Consideration of the Matter contained in her Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Letter referring to Stating a Salary for the Govern<sup>r</sup> might * refer'd to another Session, The House being small & many of their Members absent." — Ibid., p. 432.

This message would seem to have been oral, since, on the next day, the representatives sent a written message to the Council, as follows:—

"Sept. 7, 1703. . . . this House have read & considered her Majesties Letter to his Excy. dated April 20th 1703, Referring to the Settling of a Salary for the Governour &c, But forasmuch as the Members of four entire Counties & also sev<sup>l</sup> other Towns are at this Time prevented attending her Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Service in this House by Reason of y<sup>e</sup> Troubles with the Indians & otherwise, Do apprehend it their Duty to defer the further Consideration thereof until a fuller House shall appear." — Ibid.

On the ninth the General Court was prorogued to the twenty-seventh of October, without further action upon the subject of the queen's letter.

During the recess the fleet homeward bound from Jamaica (the speedy arrival of which the Governor, in his speech at the beginning of the first session, had mentioned as a reason for hastening his visit to the frontiers) had reached Boston, bringing further orders from the Privy Council.

In his speech at the opening of the third session (Oct. 27, 1703) the Governor, having summoned the House before him, addressed them as follows:—

". . . I have to Communicate to you her Majestyes repeated Command, which I have receiv'd by these shipp's of her Just Expectation that you do settle a salary upon your Governour for his honorable support as you tender her princely regard and favour for you . . ." — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 11.

He then directed the Secretary to read the queen's two letters — one requiring fixed salaries for the Governor and the Lieutenant-Governor and the other the building of a fort at Pemaquid, † after which he delivered to the Speaker a copy of his speech and dismissed them.

Having received no response to this communication, on the fourth of November he sent a message to the House, "by John Higginson & Isaac Winslow Esq<sup>rs</sup> viz<sup>t</sup> That at the Opening of this Session he had communicated two several Letters from her Majesty, the one relating to Salaries for the Gov<sup>r</sup> & other Officers, & the other relating to Pemmaquid, which are now lying before that House, & had in his Speech recommended the Consideration thereof, & desired that those Matters might be proceeded upon, & that no Member might be dismiss'd until Answers were made thereto —

The Messengers returned Answer that the House were upon Consideration thereof." ‡
Eleven days more elapsed without any responsive communication from the House, when another message was sent to them, by Samuel Sewall and the Secretary, to inquire what they had done "upon consideration of her majesty's commands" contained in the queen's two letters, to which the Speaker answered that "the weather had prevented many of the members coming and that they had not a full house at present but were preparing their answer to those two letters." On the same day Samuel Legg having informed the Governor and Council "that the House of Represent<sup>es</sup> have addressed her Majesty referring to the Affair of Pemmaquid, & that the said Address hath been forwarded by several Conveyances," § it was "Ordered that a Message be sent to the House forthwith to lay a Copy of the said Address before the Board." §

On the sixteenth another message from the Council was sent, in which the return of the two letters from the queen, which had been laid before the House at the beginning of the session, was requested. The House immediately returned the two letters, and on the same day sent up the following message, from which it will be inferred that they had suspected the Governor ¶ of being the instigator of the threat of coercive measures by the Lords of Trade:—

". . . That this House Prays the Copys of His Excellency's Letters, sent to Whitehall, referring to the affaires of this Province may be laid before them, which His Excellency was Pleas'd at the session of this Court in Cambridge, to say he would favour them with." — Mass. Archives, vol. 70, p. 661.

This was followed by an oral message from the House on the same day, which contained no reference to the Governor's salary but was responsive only to the message requesting a copy of the address of the House to the queen. This message the Governor declined to receive, on the ground that being in reply to a written message it should likewise be in writing.

Upon the rejection of this oral message the House sent up a message in writing, relating to the subjects of both the queen's letters, of which the following is the first part:—

† See note to chapter 52 of the resolves of 1705-6.

¶ The files and journals of the Lords of Trade, now open to the public, show that the suspicions of the House were not wholly unfounded. December 10, 1702, while smarting under the rebuff received from the representatives, by whose firm refusal to yield to his request for an increase of salary he had been forced to accept their grant of two hundred pounds less than a week before, as shown in the note to resolves, 1702, chapter 61), Dudley wrote to the Lords of Trade as follows:—

"The figure this government makes is by no means so good as an ordinary head-borough in the kingdom of England, while they are a very important Province, and have the best harbors and outlets to the sea in all North America. The major part of the people by far would rejoice to be annexed, and brought under her Majesty's immediate commission, if her Majesty please so to command. . . . The Council being of the people's election, many of the most loyal people and of the best estates are not employed, and those that are so, many of them are Commonwealth's men, and all do so absolutely depend for their station upon the people that they dare not offend them, and so her Majesty has no manner of service from them." — Palfrey's Hist. of New England, vol. IV., p. 252.

"Nov. 16, 1703 . . . May it please your Excellency; In Answer to that part of your Excys Speech, referring to settling of perpetual Salaries, & building a Fort at Pemnaquid, Inprimis, It hath been the Priviledge from Henry the third & confirmed by Edward the first, & in all Reigns unto this Day, granted, & is now allowed to be the just & unquestionable Right of the Subject, to raise when & dispose of how they see Cause, any Sums of money by Consent of Parliament, the which Priviledge We her Majesty's Loyal & Dutiful Subjects have lived in the Enjoymt of, & do hope always to enjoy the same, under Our most gracious Queen Ann & Successors, & shall ever endeavour to discharge the Duty incumbent on us; But humbly conceive the Stating of perpetual Salaries not agreeable to her Majesty's Interests in this Province, but prejudicial to her Majesty's good Subjects. . . ." — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 10.

Two days later the Council once more moved the House on the subject of the Governor's salary. The record is as follows:—

"Nov. 18, 1703. Elisha Hutchinson, John Walley, John Foster, Penn Townsend, Daniel Pierce & Edwd Bromfield Esq<sup>s</sup> were sent on a Message to the Represent<sup>es</sup> to move the House to consider of a suitable Allowance to his Excellency the Governour &c." — Ibid., p. 13.

After waiting five days the following entry was made in the records of the Council, which seems to indicate that the House had asked for a reply to their request of the sixteenth, the entry being a sentence in the Governor's speech to the House:—

"Nov. 23, 1703. . . . As to the Houses Motion to see the Copies of his Letters sent to Whitehall referring to the Affairs of this Province, his Answer is, that he made no such Promise. . . ." — Ibid., p. 15.

Although the session lasted until the second of December no record of further action on the subject of the governor's salary has been discovered until the last day, when a message was sent down to the House respecting the salaries of the governor and lieutenant-governor, as follows:—

"Dec. 2, 1703. Wait Winthrop, James Russell, John Phillips & Penn Townsend Esq<sup>s</sup> were sent on a Message to the Represent<sup>es</sup> to ask, whether the House had had Consideration of the Message sent them a Fortnight since for a suitable Allowance to be made to his Excy the Governour & the Lieut Governour." — Ibid., p. 20.

The following is the record of the reply which the House made to this message:—

"Dec. 2, 1703. The Messengers reported that M<sup>r</sup> Speaker said, he was instructed by the House to say, They had a Paper of Grievances to send up, & when they were redress'd they would further consider that matter." — Ibid.

In his speech at the beginning of the fourth session (March 9, 1703-4), the Governor seems to have studiously avoided any allusion to the subject of permanent salaries, nor has any legislative action upon the subject been discovered until the eighteenth, when the following entry appears:—

Upon the last day of the session the following proceedings are recorded:—

"March 25, 1704. A Vote sent up by the Represent<sup>es</sup> granting an Allowance of two hundred Pounds to his Excellency the Governour for & towards his Support in the Government, being read, The Council express'd themselves not satisfied with the Sum, And desired that all the Gentlemen at the Board that went not on the Message the eighteenth Current, would carry the said Vote back to the House & move their Reconsideration thereof, to Augment the Sum, Also to move their Consideration of an Allowance for the Lieutenant Governour, There being nothing allow'd to him as Captain of the Castle in passing the Muster-Rolls of that Garrison." — Ibid., p. 37.

"March 25, 1704. The Vote of the House for an Allowance to his Excy. was brought up again without any Addition made by the Represent<sup>es</sup> to the Sum." — Ibid.

"March 25, 1704. Andrew Belcher & Samuel Hayman Esq<sup>s</sup> were desired to go on a Message to move the House to a further Consideration of the Allowance proposed for his Excellency, . . ." — Ibid.

"March 25, 1704. A Message from the Representatives by Mr Blagrove & others, That the Mind of the House had been tried, And they have resolved not to raise any further Money this Session:— And the said Messengers brought up again the Vote for an Allowance to his Excellency without any Addition made to the Sum." — Ibid.

Upon the receipt of this last message the resolve as originally drawn was concurred in by the Council and consented to by the Governor.

The executive records of the council, from February 29, 1703-4 to June 6, 1704, are missing, but an entry in the accounts* of the province treasurer shows that the amount allowed by this chapter was duly paid. See note to chapter 46, ante.

The petition referred to in the preamble to this chapter is as follows:—

This petition was read in the Council on the nineteenth and the order which constitutes this chapter was passed thereon and sent to the representatives for concurrence. On the following day the order was concurred in by the House and consented to by the Governor.

The will* of Thomas Baker, ironmonger, dated November 11, 1696, was admitted to probate April 23, 1698,† and letters testamentary were thereupon issued to his son Thomas and to his daughter Rachel, wife of George Waldron. His wife was Leah, daughter of Thomas Clarke, senior. Thomas the son and co-executor died January 10, 1702-3,‡ leaving sons Thomas and John and a minor daughter Mary.

Henry Bridgham was appointed guardian of Mary, October 14, 1703.§ She is described as being then "about fifteen years of age."

Ten days before the passing of the order which constitutes this chapter all the persons interested as above in the real and personal estate of Thomas Clarke had joined in executing an agreement|| for partition and distribution of the said estate, mutually covenanting to forfeit seven hundred pounds in case of failure to fulfil the stipulations agreed upon. It is probable that a doubt as to the power of the guardian of the minor to bind his ward in this manner induced the parties to apply to the General Court for the necessary authority.

The following extracts from conveyances expressly made under the authority of this chapter show the bounds of the several premises conveyed by the grantors, who are described as "George Waldron of Bristol in the county of Bristol within the province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England, blacksmith, and Rachel his wife, the only surviving child of Thomas Baker late of Boston within the county of Suffolk in New England, aforesaid, blacksmith, and Leah his wife, both deceased, Thomas Baker, brazier, John Baker, merchant, Henry Bridgham, tanner, guardian to Mary Baker, spinster, all of Boston (which said Thomas, John, and Mary are the three surviving children of Thomas Baker, deceased, the eldest son of Thomas and Leah Baker, abovenamed)." These deeds also show the consideration paid for the several estates conveyed and the names of the grantees. For the location of these estates, as given after each description, the editor is indebted to Mr. Henry H. Edes.

The first conveyance was to John Mico of Boston, merchant, and was dated Aug. 25, 1704. The consideration was one hundred ninety pounds, "in current money of New England." The estate is described as, —

" . . . All that their Messuage or Tenem<sup>t</sup> Land and orchard Scituate lying and being at the upper end of School House lane so Called, on the Southerly side thereof in Boston afores<sup>d</sup> abutting and fronting Northerly on the said Lane where it measureth in breadth about Sixty Six foot little more or less, Southerly in the rear by the Land of Samuel Sewall Esq<sup>r</sup> where it measureth in breadth about Seventy foot little more or less; Easterly bounded by the Land of Elisha Cooke Esq<sup>r</sup> and Westerly by the Lands of Arthur Mason Robert Orchard Anne Pollard Widow and others; Measuring on each of the said two sides in Length or Depth Two hundred ninety five foot little more or less; or howsoever otherwise the same is butted and bounded or reputed to be bounded, late in the Tenure and Occupation of Thomas Baker dece<sup>d</sup> (Eldest Son of Thomas and Leah Baker) being, and was formerly parcel of the Estate of Thomas Clark of Boston afores<sup>d</sup> Shopkeeper Father of the said Leah Baker, and whereof he dyed Seized, Together with all and Singular

This estate is included in the present site of the Parker House. It was a part of the original possession of "John Synderland," and lay between that of "Zacheus Bosworth" (which made the southeasterly corner of School and Tremont streets) on the west, and the site of the Boston Public Latin School on the east.

The second conveyance was to John Foster and Andrew Belcher of Boston, "trustees named by Dame Mary Phips, * now Sergeant," and was dated September 8, 1704. The consideration was four hundred pounds in New-England currency. This estate is described as, —

" . . . All that their Messuage or Tenement and Tenements with all the Land yards Gardens backside housing Shops Edifices buildings Slaughter houses Easements and fences Standing thereon and thereto belonging & adjoining Scituate standing and being in Boston aforesaid in the present tenure and occupation of Thomas Cox Butcher Martha Cox Spinster William Bissick Barber James Jarvis Blacksmith & others Fronting butted and bounded on and by the broad Street, leading from the Town house to the Southerly end of the s<sup>d</sup> Town westerly by the housing and Land in the present Tenure & occupation of the widow of Joseph Russell deceased northerly, by the Land of Anne Hawkins widow, and Mary Savage (late Ofield) Easterly, and by the high way or Lane that leads from the broad Street aforesaid to Peter Olivers Dock, commonly so Called; or however otherwise bounded or reputed to be bounded; Measuring in breadth on the aforesaid broad Street Seventy one feet and a half; by the housing and Land in the present Tenure & occupation of the widow Russell (sometime the house and Land of Samuel Oliver deceased) Seventy-Seven feet, measuring along by the house of the s<sup>d</sup> Anne Hawkins Twenty one feet, thence along the North end of the s<sup>d</sup> house to the Land late of Thomas Ofield Twenty feet; and thence Easterly by the Land of the said Ofield Twenty one feet; and measuring by the aforesaid highway or Lane Seventy Six feet and half be the dimensions on either side little more or less: (which housing and Land aforesaid were Sometime the Estate of m<sup>r</sup> Thomas Oliver of Boston deceased Together with all and Singular the ways allyes passages waters watercourses" etc. — Ibid., lib. 22, fol. 33.

This estate is on the easterly side of Washington Street, and makes the northerly corner of Water Street. Its northern boundary is the lot bequeathed, in 1660, by Henry Webb to Harvard College, and long leased by it to Messrs. Little, Brown & Co., the present tenants. The office of the "Boston Journal" is now (1895) on a part of the estate, while the Fleets (printers) owned, at one time, the part which makes the corner of Water Street.

The third conveyance was dated October 23, 1704. It was by all the above grantors, except Waldron and his wife — they being the grantees named therein. The consideration was fifty pounds, New-England currency, and the premises were described as three undivided fourth parts of, —

" . . . all that certain Close or Pasture Land of the s<sup>d</sup> Thomas and Leah Baker, and whereof they dyed Seized, Scituate lying & being at the Lower end of the common or Training Field in Boston abovesaid, butted and bounded on the East by the Land of Edw<sup>d</sup> Bromfield Esq<sup>r</sup> on the North & West by the s<sup>d</sup> Common or Training Field, and on the South by a highway or Lane leading into the s<sup>d</sup> Common or however otherwise the same is bounded or reputed to be bounded. This close includes the burial ground and deer park at the southerly end of the Common, its frontage being on Frog Lane, now Boylston Street, opposite the old Public Library Building.†

The fourth conveyance was to Nathaniel Byfield of Bristol, and was dated September 29, 1704.‡ The consideration was seventy pounds in New-England currency.

After reciting that, — " . . . Whereas Thomas Clark sometime of Boston aforesaid Shopkeeper Father of the said Leah in and by a certain Deed of Gift § bearing date the Twenty Second day of November Anno 1676 . . . This lot is on the westerly side of Washington Street. It is contiguous, on its southern boundary, to the Ames Building on the southwesterly corner of Court and Washington streets.

Mary Baker was married to Jonathan Simpson as early as June 14, 1707. This appears by Simpson's discharge to the guardian on record as of that date.†

The section of the act † referred to in this chapter applied only to the land forces. The order (chapter 112, ante) by which the wages of officers and mariners employed in the naval service of the province were fixed, contained no provision for granting them the benefit of plunder and the proceeds of the sale of prisoners, and offered no bounty for scalps.

In the extract, printed in the note to chapter 100, ante, from Dudley's speech to the General Assembly on the second day of the fifth session (April 19, 1704), it appears that he recommended the revival and further continuance of the extra inducement to volunteers enlisting for the autumn campaign. The act by its own limitation would expire at the end of the next May session; but it had been continued by chapter 100 to the last day of November, following. This resolve, however, had expressly excepted from the “encouragement” offered by the act “such as embark upon any expedition in vessels,” etc.

On the same day that the Governor delivered his speech, the representatives prepared, passed, and sent to the Council, for concurrence, the resolve which constitutes this chapter, the purpose of which was to repeal the excepting clause and, by an express declaration, to remove any doubt as to the right of the naval forces to claim, equally with the land forces, the benefit of the second section of the act. On the twentieth it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

Chap. 117. This chapter is from archives, vol. 15 A, p. 14. Council records, VIII., 41.

Besides the captives expected to be brought in by Colonel Church's forces and those Frenchmen who had been captured in previous encounters, and who were either prisoners or domiciled residents in the province, perhaps the sudden accession of Frenchmen, shown by the following entry in Sewall's Diary, accounts for the summary and strict precautions provided by this resolve against treachery on the eve of the great expedition which was planning with the utmost secrecy in order to surprise the enemy:—

“April, 10. 1704. The Seven and Thirty French privateers are brought to Town, who were put a-Shore at Marshfield last Friday in the vehemency of the Storm.”—Vol. II., p. 99.

Penhallow, whose account of these privateers is given below, and Niles, who seems to have followed him, give their number as twenty-seven; but Sewall, who was on the spot, is more likely to have stated the number correctly:—

“While the Indians by land were every way distressing of us, the French by sea were as industrious to impoverish us.

April 7th, 1704, they fitted out a privateer shallop with twenty seven men, to intercept our southern trade as they came laden with provisions; which if they had succeeded in, would not only have supplied their own indigent forces, but the Indians also; (who were then forming a desperate design against us) but through the favor of God to us, they were cast way on Plymouth shore.”—Indian Wars, p. 25. See, also, Niles's History of the Indian and French Wars, p. 254, and Palfrey's History of New England, vol. IV., p. 265.

An order § in the very language of the memorial is recorded as having been passed on the same day and consented to by the Governor.

See, further, resolves, 1704-5, chapter 25 and note.

Chap. 118. This chapter is from archives, vol. 71, p. 42. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 41.

This is the first legislative order relating to the works on Castle Island that has been discovered since Brattle and Clarke were reinstated in their superintendency, upon the retirement of Römer, as related in the note to chapter 111, ante. The representation mentioned in the preamble to this chapter has not been discovered. The order originated in the House on the day of its passage, and was immediately consented to by the Governor.

The resolve which constitutes this chapter and which originated in the House and was consented to by the Governor on the day of its passage was passed upon the following recommendation by Dudley in his speech to the Assembly at the beginning of this session (April 19, 1704):—

“I have the Last week from the Government of Connecticut 100 ¶ Indians under the Care of Major Mason who serve upon the forty pound a head, I shall post them in the province of Mayn as Conveniently as I can to Cover those towns and Desire you will have a Just

¶ Though Dudley thus affirms that he received the whole number of men called for, Penhallow makes the contingent a little smaller, and gives further particulars as follows:—

“As the spring advanced, it was thought necessary to guard the frontiers with fresh troops, upon which, Major Mason with ninety five of the Pequod, and Mohegau Indians, were posted at Berwick, who at first were very terrifying to the enemy.”—Indian Wars, p. 26.

Consideration of Major Masons service upon whom those Indians do absolutely depend. . . . — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 17.

The action of the Connecticut legislature upon Dudley's application for this force is given in the note to chapter 100, ante.

The following is the authorization of a warrant for paying the money allowed by this resolve:—

“July 24, 1704. Pursuant to a resolve pass'd by the General Assembly at their session begun the 18th of April in this present year 1704.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to Mr Treasurer to pay the sum of twenty pounds to Simeon Stoddard Esq<sup>re</sup> and Elias Heath Merchant on behalfe of Major Samuel Mason (and at his desire) for his good service in disposing and conducting the Connecticut Forces into her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s service within this Province.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 49.

Apparently there was no “wine” in the province treasury, since the entry of payment to Stoddard and Heath in the treasurer's account* is for twenty pounds only.

The bills of credit to which this order applies were those the printing and emission of which were authorized by the act of 1703-4, chapter 16. This act required “the committee formerly named and appointed,” † “they or any three of them,” to prepare these bills and deliver them to the province treasurer. The bills were to be “of the form and tenor by law prescribed.” The act of 1702, chapter 8, had prescribed that the bills issued under that act should be “in suitable sums from two shillings to five pounnds.” No change in the proportions of the different denominations was made by the resolve, chapter 22, ante, for a new emission, nor by chapter 3 of the acts of this year ratifying the provisions of that resolve. The preamble to the order which constitutes this chapter indicates that the public had begun to feel the inconvenience of a dearth of small change, which had been driven out of circulation by the increase of paper money, and that therefore the need of a large proportion of small bills as a substitute for small coin was urgent. It was consented to by the Governor on the day of its passage.

In the official record of the proceedings which are given in this chapter some important details that appear in the original paper in the archives are omitted, but it shows the consent of the Governor.

By acts ‡ passed in 1694, 1695 and 1697, the friendly Indians had been restricted to certain territorial limits under severe penalties for transgressing the prescribed bounds, and by the act of 1695-6, chapter 3, the Governor and Council were empowered “to prescribe such limitations, and appoint such place and places for the residence of the Indians of the several plantations of Natick, Hassanamiscox, Kekamoochock and others, and to put them under such inspection and regulations, as they shall think fit.” These acts, however, were temporary and had expired when all apprehension of danger from the communication of intelligence to the enemy was past, upon the cessation of hostilities in King William's war.

The purpose of the order which constitutes this chapter was evidently to prevent intelligence being conveyed to the enemy, of the progress of the contemplated expedition under Colonel Church. From the following entry it would seem that some of the Indians in that expedition had been drafted into the service from Natick and Puncapoag:—

“Aug. 9, 1705. An Account was presented by John Leverett Esq<sup>re</sup> of service done by sundry persons on several Journy's to Natick & Puncapoag, and marching of several partys of Indians drawn for her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s service by his Excellency's order, and for Corne supplied to the sd Indians Anno 1704 and in this present year, amounting in the whole to eight pounds and three pence, examined by Mr Commissary General, was presented. And.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out thereupon to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of eight pounds and three pence to the said Mr Leverett on behalfe of the persons respectively in the said account named.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 208.

As a rule, the Indians did not look upon military service as a hardship, but that the friendly Indians could not be depended upon by the whites as cordial allies in contests with other aborigines had been proved by experience in King Philip's war; and in the present instance neither the drafted red men nor their brethren on the plantations could regard with satisfaction the superior compensation offered to the white volunteers in the expedition.

As the following extracts show, the provisions of this chapter were put in force in 1706 and again in 1708:—

“In the House of Representatives July 13: § 1706.

Ordered That His Excellency the Governour be Desired, to Restrain the friendly Indians, according to the Order of this Court pass'd the 21th day of April 1704,

† The names of the committee are given in the note to chapter 8 of the acts of 1702, and the same committee was retained by resolve, chapter 48, ante, which was virtually sanctioned by the act of 1703-4, chapter 3, § 5. Their compensation was fixed by the act, 1703-4, chapter 16, § 2.

‡ Province Laws, 1694-5, chapter 10, 1695-6, chapters 3 and 14, and 1697, chapter 12.

§ The original order is endorsed “12th July,” although, on its face, it is dated as above. The former date agrees with the statement in the preamble of the order which provides for subsistence money.

“ July. 12th 1706. The Friend Indians of Natick Puncapoag and Hassanamisco, being by his Excellency's order; at the Desire of this House, strictly confined to their several Plantations during the present Hurry and Danger.

Ordered, That the Treasurer do Advance so much as the Governor & Council shall Direct, for their necessary Substantance, by the Space of one month next coming to be put into the hands of John Leverett Esq<sup>r</sup> to be proportioned and distributed among them.” — Ibid., p. 11.

The progress of the order is shown on its face as printed. The Governor signified his consent the same day.

No report of the committee named in this chapter has been discovered; but from the following items in the accounts of the province treasurer — the former being an acknowledgment (probably authoritative), in his statement of the liabilities of the Province, of the charges approved by Römer — it appears that the article in Römer's “grand account,” which was objected to by certain creditors, was adjusted to the satisfaction of the Assembly, and payment made accordingly:—

The “mortar-pieces” and “shells” mentioned in this chapter were undoubtedly the same that Church thus describes as having seen on Boston Common:—

“ He [Church] happening one day to be at Capt. Belchers, where his Excellency happened to come; who was pleased to order Col. Church to put on his Sword, and walk with him up the Common; which he readily complied with: where being come, he saw two Mortar pieces with Shells, and an Engineer trying with them, to throw a Shell from them to any spot of ground where he said it should fall: Which when Col. Church had seen done, gave him great incouragement & hopes that it would promote their going to Port Royal, which he had solicited for; and returning from thence after they had seen them try'd by the said Engineer, and performing what was proposed. Coming near to Capt. William Clarks-house over against the Horse-shoe, his Excellency was invited by Capt. Clark to walk over and take a Glass of Wine; which he was pleased to accept of, and took Col. Church with him; and in the time they were taking a Glass of Wine, Col. Church once more presumed to say to his Excellency; Sir, I hope that now we shall go to Port Royal in order to take it; those Mortars being very suitable for such an Enterprize. His Excellency was pleas'd to reply; Col. Church you must say no more of that matter, for the Letter I told you of I writ by the advice of her Majesty's Council, now lyes at home on the board before the Lords Commissioners of her Majesty's foreign Plantations, &c." — Church's History of Eastern Expeditions, vol. II., pp. 140-141.

The account which Taylor sent in against the committee is made out in the name of James Taylor and Company, and is signed James Taylor, junior. Probably the mortars and shells were cast at the iron works in Lynn — Taylor having purchased those works in 1658 of Mr. Samuel Appleton, for five hundred * pounds, and presumably he continued to carry on the business of smelting ore, and founding. See the note to resolve, 1704-5, chapter 1.

The order which constitutes this chapter and which originated in the House was passed by both branches and consented to by the Governor on the same day.

See resolves, 1704-5, chapter 49.

Chap. 124. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 37. It has not been found in the archives.

The same reasons exist for including this message among the resolves of the General Court as for inserting among the resolves of the year 1700-1, chapter 103 of that year. Although no action of the Council upon this motion of the representatives appears in the record of either this or the preceding session it is certain that a proclamation, bearing upon its face the evidence that it was advised and consented to by the Council, was issued on the twenty-seventh of April. The executive records of the council are missing for a period covering both sessions; hence the date of the action of the Board must be determined by external evidence. The proclamation was not issued until after the Legislature had been prorogued, and but for the fact that the following draught of an order by the House, dated the twentieth of April, remains in the archives, any time during either session, after the reception of the first message, might be assigned for the concurrence of the Council: —

“Thursday April 20th 1704 A :M : —

Ordered, That the Committee last named go up with a message to the Board and move that a day of Publick fasting and prayer be appointed thro' the Province on the Various Occasions of it particularly for a Blessing on our Endeavours to Suppress our Enemies and Defend our Selves And for a blessing on the Rising Year.” — Mass. Archives, vol. 11, p. 191.

This second message implies that at its date the House had received no response to the former message, and warrants the inference that the Council concurred on that or the following day; most likely the latter, it being the last day of the session.†

The proclamation is printed, in full, below: —

A PROCLAMATION for a General FAST.

Chap. 1. This chapter is from archives, vol. 71, p. 53. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 49.

The vote which constitutes this chapter originated in the Council and was based upon the following estimate or proposal by an enterprising merchant of Boston, son of Reverend William Hubbard of Ipswich: —

Hubbard was the proprietor of the iron works at Braintree, having purchased two thousand four hundred acres of land belonging to the works in 1682 of Captain Ephraim Savage of Boston for five hundred pounds.* It may be surmised as probable that his offer to furnish these shells was at a much lower rate than had been paid by the province to Taylor,† although it is impossible to ascertain this from Taylor's account in which the prices of the mortars and shells are not separately stated. Henry Despard, for whose services Hubbard stipulated, was evidently the same inhabitant of Lynn who is called "Dispaw" by Felt and the historians of Lynn.‡ The name has a French sound, and it is not unlikely that he was a foreman or skilled workman at the Lynn iron works, of which Taylor and Company were the proprietors. There were many deposits in the province of iron ore, chiefly nodules of hematite known as bog ore, besides those in Lynn, and a considerable business of smelting had been carried on elsewhere, as at Braintree and Taunton.

Chap. 2. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 49. It has not been found in the archives.

The "accounts" [account] referred to in this chapter have not been discovered, although they properly belong to the state archives. The following is the order in Council for the issuing a warrant for payment of this allowance which the province treasurer's account § shows to have been paid accordingly:—

"July 7, 1704. To Capt<sup>n</sup> George Turfrey one hundred sixty four pounds, one shilling and five pence, in full of his account of repairs and worke done to her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Fort Mary at Saco, by order of Council of August 7th 1701."—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 39.

Turfrey was appointed captain of Fort Mary at Saco to succeed Captain John Hill. This being a military commission it is not preserved in the legislative archives; but his instructions in regard to trading with the Indians are recorded in the executive records of the council as follows:—

"April 8, 1700. Instructions for Mr George Turfrey, appointed by His Excellency to be Captain of his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Fort Mary at Saco in the room of Capt<sup>n</sup> Hill, who has praved a dismission from that Post, relating to the said Turfrey's managing of Trade with the Indians were read, and with some alterations and amendments therein made were consented to by the Board.

In the same volume, under date of August 7, 1701, is the following minute respecting the orders he received for making the repairs, for reimbursing him the expense of which provision was made by this chapter:—

"An order directed unto Capt<sup>n</sup> George Turfrey Commander of his Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Fort Mary at Saco for the making several reparations at the said Fort, to set the same in order for defence was made out and signed by fifteen of the Members of Council, present at the Board."—Page 232.

Chap. 3. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 50. It has not been found in the archives.

Usher's petition, printed in the note to resolve, 1700-1, chapter 47, was probably prepared and presented to the Legislature upon an intimation from Bellomont that he had received the following special instruction from the Lords of Trade, included in their letter of instructions dated August 26, 1697:—

"We have been lately petitioned in behalf of Mr John Usher to recommend unto you the examination of the state of his accounts with the Government of the Massachusetts Bay, pursuant to the Orders of Council that have been made upon that subject. Whereupon we have thought fitt herewithall to give you Copies of the said petition as also of the Order of Council therein mentioned dated the 12th Octr 1691, And of a letter from the Lords of the Council to the Governor of that Colony, by his Majesty's Command, dated the 26th March 1694, from all which you will understand what has been required and accordingly be enabled to give a proper answer thereunto."—"New England, Board of Trade," vol. 30, p. 346, in Public Record Office.

Undoubtedly the papers presented by Usher at that time were those mentioned in this instruction as forwarded therewith, and by which the facts, found by the committee appointed June 27, 1702,|| were substantiated to the satisfaction of the committee.

The business was still pending, however, when the Legislature of 1702-3 was prorogued. Since the order of the Council for the payment of Landlord Tyley's ¶ account was passed August 5, 1703, about ten days after the date of the resolve, it may be inferred that the committee continued their sittings to about the date of their report, which was made at the next session, as required by the resolve of November 21, 1702,** as follows:—

Two days after the date of this report it was read in Council, accepted and sent to the representatives for concurrence. No action thereon having been reported by the House, November 16, 1703, Usher appeared before the Governor and Council and “made his Motion to the Board with reference to his Accompts.”* A message was immediately sent to the House for the return of the report, which being sent up November 22, 1703, “was again read & anew voted an Acceptance, & sent down for Concurrence.”† From the following memorandum on the original, dated December 2, 1703, it would seem that the report only had been transmitted to the House, without the accounts:—

Here the matter seems to have rested until the fourth session, when the following entry appears in the council records:—

“ March 14, 1703-4. A Motion was made for reviving the Consideration of the Claim of John Usher Esq; heretofore Treasurer of this Territory, And the Report of the Comm<sup>tees</sup> on his Acco<sup>ts</sup> † & Papers were sent down to the Representatives.” — Vol. VIII., p. 28.

On the twenty-second an order passed by the representatives, that the consideration of Usher's petition and accounts “be deferred till the next session of this Court, was sent up and read.” On the seventh of June, 1704, which was the eighth day (including Sunday) of the first session of the next Assembly, the order which constitutes this chapter was passed. On the ninth, Eliakim Hutchinson was substituted upon the committee for Andrew Belcher, to represent the Council. Finally, on the twenty-eighth, the committee appointed under this and the next chapter made their report as follows:—

“ In Obedience to an Order of the Great & Generall Assembly held Maye 31st 1704./ Ap- pointing us the Subscribers to be a Comitte to Examine ye Acc<sup>ts</sup> of John Usher Esq; Late Treasurer of the Territory of New Engl. & to make a report what we thinke proper to be done by the Court Concerning them

With the exception of the plan, under Bellomont, in 1700,* to evangelize the western Indians, only one attempt to confirm the alliance with them had been made since the treaty with the Five Nations August 13-15, 1694.† This was the grant to them of fifty pounds, which was forwarded by Lieutenant-Governor Stoughton through Governor Fletcher, September 30, 1695,‡ as a token of approval of their design to dislodge the French at Cadaraqui. The present scheme was first proposed by Johannes Schuyler to the governor of Connecticut April 24, 1704. — Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 194, and see chapters 8, 23, 35 and 101, post.

The barbarous massacre at Deerfield February 29, 1703, O. S. (March 11, 1704, N. S.), by a party of French and Indians, which has been mentioned § as the chief inducement to the retaliatory expedition eastward the next year under Colonel Benjamin Church, would probably not have occurred but for the facilities for secret incursions into the western frontiers of the province afforded to the French and Indian enemy by the state of neutrality, to which, for the purposes of trade, the New York government had bound itself in its treaties with the Indian tribes of the north and west. The reprisals made by Church led to the exchange of prisoners, particulars of which are given in the note to private act, number nineteen. ||

Although Cornbury is justly blamable for this impolicy he is entitled to credit for his successful espionage of the enemy's movements and his prompt warnings to the Massachusetts authorities of all symptoms of danger. As early as May, 1703, ¶ he notified Dudley of an intended descent upon Deerfield, and appears to have kept the latter informed, ** from time to time, of the progress of this projected invasion. The inhabitants of Deerfield as well as of the other western settlements of Massachusetts were not inclined to disregard these warnings and seem to have been fully aware of their danger.

In October Rev. John Williams of Deerfield, Rev. Solomon Stoddard of Northampton and Colonel Partridge of Hatfield, successively, represented to the Governor, or to the Assembly, the precarious condition of Deerfield, the need of constant vigilance and of taking extraordinary measures for defence, and also the great expense arising therefrom, and pleaded for pecuniary assistance either by a grant or the reduction of the province taxes. Mr. Williams, indeed, represented as the unavoidable alternative the abating his salary, as he had done years before, if the Legislature did not make an equivalent provision for the town. The result of these representations was the passage of resolve, 1703-4, chapter 75, †† and the detailing of sixteen soldiers to garrison the stockaded house of Captain Jonathan Wells, in an exposed part of the town.

The billeting of these soldiers until the sixth of December was paid for by the province. †† These soldiers, according to custom, undoubtedly helped in constructing the defensive works.

Mr. Williams was instant in reminding his flock of the perils of their situation; §§ but as winter approached there appears to have been, from a knowledge of the almost insurmountable difficulty of traversing the wilderness from Canada during that inclement season, an increasing sense of security in the town. From December to near the end of February all the soldiers detailed for garrison duty there were withdrawn. |||| Four days

† In June, 1698, the General Court proposed an address to Bellomont to use his influence to induce the Schaghticoke and other Indians to quit the vicinity of Winnepesaukee and the White Hills, where they were in a position to assist the Pennecoocs and other tribes who were under the influence of the French. †† This allowance, though granted before the attack on Deerfield, was not paid over until after Mr. Williams had been carried captive to Canada. Hence the order of the Council that it be paid, on his behalf, to his brother Samuel.

before the attack, however, Dudley "had enforced the place with twenty souldiers,"* probably upon a notice from Cornbury of the setting out of a war party from Canada for the western frontiers of the province.

The enemy got possession of the fortifications very early in the morning, after all, or nearly all, of the watch had turned in. The surprise, which was complete, was facilitated by a recent fall of snow, a drift of which against the palisades afforded easy access, on snow-shoes, to the enclosure and to the fastenings of the gates, which were thrown open to the invaders without alarming the sleeping garrison.† The hostile party consisted of more than two hundred and fifty Indians ‡ from Canada led by the Sieur Hertel de Rouville, the younger, and four of his brothers. The most careful estimate of the losses of the English is forty-nine killed and one hundred and eleven taken captive. This includes the wounded and those who fell while in pursuit of the enemy,§ after the sacking of the town.

Fugitives from the burning town spread the tidings of the attack as far as Hatfield and the settlers and garrisons throughout the neighboring country quickly joined in pursuing the departing enemy, as set forth in the following petition:—

"To his Excellency the Governour together with the Hon:<sup>d</sup> Council & Representatives met in the great & general Assembly at Boston, may 31. 1704

pany who encountered the french & Indians at Deerfield. febr: 29. 1703, Sheweth first, That we understanding the extremity of the poor people at Deerfield made all possible haste to their reliefe, that we might deliver the Remnant that were left, & doe spoil on the enemy.

2<sup>ly</sup> That being joyned with a small number of the inhabitants & Garrison Souldiers, we forced the enemy out of Town, leaving a great part of their plunder behinde them, & persuing them about a mile & an halfe did great execution upon them, we saw at the time many dead bodies, & we & others did afterwards see the manifest prints on the snow, where other dead bodies were drawn to an hole in the River.

3<sup>ly</sup> That the enemy being reinforced by a great number of fresh men, we were overpowered & necessitated to run to the fort, & in our flight, nine of the company were slain & some others wounded, & some of us lost our upper garments, which we had put off before in the persuit.

4<sup>thly</sup> That the action was over & the enemy withdrawn about fourscore Rods from the fort, before any of our neighbours came into the fort.

wherefore we doe Humbly supplicate this Hon:<sup>d</sup> Assembly, that according to their wonted justice & bounty, they would consider the service we have done, in preserving many lives & much estate, & making a spoil on the enemy: the hazzard that we run, the losse we sustained, the afflicted condition of such as have lost near relations in this encounter, & bestow upon us some proportionable recompence, that we & others may be encouraged upon such occasions, to be forward & active to repell the enemy & rescue such as shall be in distresse, though with the uttmost peril of our lives, & your Petitioners shall pray &c:

JONATHAN WELLS
EBENEZER WRIGHT

In the Name of the Rest." — Mass.

Archives, vol. 71, p. 46.

This petition was read, first, in the House, on the second of June, and probably referred to the standing committee on petitions, whose report, without date, was as follows:—

"In Answer to y<sup>e</sup> Petition of y<sup>e</sup> souldiers that persued y<sup>e</sup> Enemie at Dearfield the Committee are of opinion that due encouragement be given them that is to say that their losses to y<sup>e</sup> value of £18-07<sup>s</sup>-0<sup>d</sup> be Repaid out of y<sup>e</sup> Treasury And that y<sup>e</sup> sum of Three pounds be Given to Each surviving souldier engaged in that service and that five pounds be allowed to y<sup>e</sup> widdow of each of y<sup>e</sup> slaine in that encounter." — Ibid., p. 51.

It was not until the eighth that the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council for concurrence. It was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor the next day.

With the petition were filed a list of those who were engaged in this pursuit of the enemy; a first and a supplementary account of losses of arms, clothing, etc., by the provincial soldiers, in their encounter and retreat, and an account of plunder taken from the enemy and sold, with the names of those who brought it in. These papers are given below in the order in which they are mentioned:—

* Letter from Isaac Addington to Governor Fitz-John Winthrop, March 6, 1703-4: Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 180.

† Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 176. An exhaustive account of the attack and pursuit, prepared by Hon. George Sheldon for the Greenfield Gazette and Courier, is given in a revised form in his History of Deerfield, now in press.

‡ Accounts differ as to the proportion of Frenchmen in this party. Charlevoix, who had the best means of a-certaining the fact, is silent on this point except so far as to admit the loss of three Frenchmen. — Histoire (Shea's translation), vol. V., p. 161. Col. Farley estimates that there were about three hundred Indians and twenty or thirty Frenchmen. — Documents Relating to the Colonial History of the State of New York, vol. IV., p. 1083. Rev. John Williams says, three hundred French and Indians were present at one time. — Sheldon's History of Deerfield, in Greenfield Gazette and Courier, No. 33.

§ Tidings of the return of the enemy to Canada are thus reported in the Boston News-Letter of May 8-15, 1704:—

"Albany, By a Letter to His Excellency Governour DUDLEY the 12. Currant. acquainted, That the Enemy French & Indians, who did the mischief last Winter upon Dearfield, were got safe home to Canada with their Prisoners; And that notwithstanding the negligence of our People, they do acknowledge to have lost Two of their principal French Officers and 50 French & Indians in the action." — No. 4.

While the reconnoitring party under Caleb Lyman were on their way to Cowassie § two letters were received by Major Whiting and Mr. Richard Lord || from Colonel Peter Schuyler at Albany, “intimating a design of the French to infest the plantations of New Hampshire.”¶ Neither the originals nor copies of these letters (which are the letters mentioned in this chapter) have been discovered, but copies were promptly forwarded to Dudley, together with the copy of a letter from Vandreuil to Schuyler, and their purport and the manner of their transmission are shown in the following correspondence:—

The report of the committee mentioned in the preamble to this chapter was signed by Penn Townsend, for the committee, as first drawn, and had between the words "to" and "renew," in the third line, the words, "treate with ye moques &c. and," and the words "Treaty & provide A Sutable present on their parts," instead of "negotiation," at the end of the first paragraph. These omitted words were underlined, evidently to indicate that they had been stricken out in committee. The concluding formula of the report, "we<sup>ch</sup> is humbly Submitted," was not retained in the Secretary's record of the vote.

On the fourth of September, 1704, John Foster, Penn Townsend and Andrew Belcher of the Council were appointed a committee "to invest the money granted for a present to the Five Nations of Indians, in such things as they Judge to be proper & that will be most acceptable."* This committee rendered an account of their doings on the twenty-first, whereupon the following vote was passed in Council:—

"Sept. 21, 1704. Pursuant to a resolve passed by the Great & General Court or Assembly, at their Session, begun the 31st of May past that a sutable present be provided to be made to the Maquas &c<sup>o</sup> about two hundred pounds value.

An Account of the Cost thereof being presented by Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>re</sup> Commissary General, amounting to one hundred thirty two pounds, fourteen shill<sup>s</sup> and three halfe pence, over and above six halfe barrels of Powder of the Province Stores.

Advised and Consented That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of one hundred thirty two poun<sup>d</sup>s, fourteen shillings & three halfe pence to the said Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>re</sup> accordingly." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 76.

The province treasurer's account † contains the entry of a charge of this amount as paid to Belcher.

In the House of Representatives June 9th 1704

Resolved That the Sum of Thirty and three Pounds, fifteen Shillings and eight Pence be allowed and Paid out of the publick Treasury to Lieut: John Wyatt, in full of his acc<sup>o</sup>: on the other Side

When the account was first presented does not appear, but it would seem to have been referred to the standing committee on petitions, of the House, as early as the ninth of June, since on that day the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed by the representatives, evidently upon the following report: —

& he haueing payd Adams & Hornibrook y<sup>r</sup> wages as he Informs If it be not allowed in their debenters we are of opinion y<sup>t</sup> it ought to be there allowed: when debenters are granted . . . . . £33 15 8.”

This account is made clear by the clews which this report affords. The items allowed by the committee are in the right hand column which foot up £10 16s. 0d.; † £11 10s. 9d.; £3 8s. 3d. and £2 6s. 0d. respectively, — a total of £28 1s. If to this total are added the differences between the footings of the two columns; viz., £4 16s.; £2 14s. and £8 2s. 8d., the sum will be the amount claimed by Wyatt. Evidently the representatives were unwilling to concur with their committee in striking out the payments to Adams and Hornebrook, £5 14s. 8d., which the committee had deemed proper to be passed upon, and to be paid by debentres duly issued, by the commissioners for war, so that, accepting the committee's report on all the other charges, and restoring these last, the amount allowed was £33 15s. 8d.

The order in Council ‡ for payment to Andrew Belcher, commissary-general, of the amount allowed was passed July 7, 1704, and the province treasurer's account § shows a charge of the amount as paid to Belcher, “on behalfe of Several persons for materials & work done at Black point Garrison & other disburstments as p<sup>r</sup> Lt John Wyatt's Accompt.”

An account of Wyatt's services as lieutenant is given in the note to chapter 51, post.

Chap. 10. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 55. It has not been found in the archives.

The following is the first instance discovered in the records of the province of the oath required of the province treasurer to the correctness of his accounts: —

“Feb. 26, 1704-5. Mr Treasurer Taylor was sworn before his Excellency and Council to a Certificate by him signed, that the severall publick Accompts by him rendred to the Deputy Auditor, for each year successively, during the time of his having sustained the Office of Treasurer & Receiver General of this Province, commencing from the Month of May 1693. and continued unto May 1704. are just and true accompts in the severall articles of Receipt and payments therein respectively mentioned, and that he has as well charged himselfe with the full of all the publick money which he received within the s<sup>d</sup> severall years, as duely discharged himselfe, in issuing thereof by orders and Warrants from the Government.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 148.

* Whether these figures were inserted by mistake of the transcriber, or of the committee, does not appear, but the eleven shillings were not added in by the committee.

† The last entry 1. 0. 0, evidently should come into the right hand column under “£. s. d.”

This petition was read first in the Council on the day the order thereon was passed.

For a statement of the law during the provincial period for the sale of estates of minors, see private act, number fifteen, vol. VI., p. 101, note.

Edmund Mountfort, senior, whose will is dated August 8, 1690, named his widow, Elizabeth, his executrix. His death occurring in the troublous period just after the overthrow of Andros's government accounts for the delay in proving the will, which was not done until April 2, 1691. The will contained the following clause:—

“I give and bequeath unto my loving wife my whole estate both reall and personall to possess & enjoy durning her naturall life my houseing and all the land belonging to them I purchased with my money. And my will is they shall be as chattells or as any other part of my moueable Estate. Also I give unto my Beloued wife full & ample power to sell my house in the Lane comonly called the black horse Lane. And my will is that after the decease of my Deare & Loving wife my whole Estate after due appraisement Bee equally diuided Amongst my children, both sonns & daughters to have like portion only if my Elder Son Edmond shall survive his mother he shall have a double portion.”— Suffolk Probate Files, No. 1832.

By virtue of the authority thus given, the widow, describing herself as widow and executrix, conveyed, September 4, 1690, to James Berry of Boston, mariner, for seventy pounds, a message at the north end of Boston fronting forty feet south “on the street that leadeth from the North meeting house towards Center Haven” and so running back the same width, north, to land late of Richard Bennet, deceased, eighty-six feet on the west line, and seventy-eight feet on the east line, bounding east by land of “Ezechiel Hamling,” and west by lands in possession of Richard Towt, senior.* This seems to have been a portion of the homestead estate.†

No other deed conveying any portion of the estate appears of record until December 4, 1754, when a release to Hannah Mountfort of Boston, mother of the grantors and widow of Jonathan Mountfort, late of Boston, shopkeeper, was recorded.‡ In this release the following is the description of the grantors:—

“Newman Greenough and Elizabeth his Wife . . . Sarah Gardner Widow . . . Jonathan Mountfort Apothecary [eldest son of the deceased] and Sarah his Wife . . . Samuel Sarvis and Joanna his Wife . . . Abigail Mountfort Single-woman . . . Nathaniel Mountfort Merchant . . . and Lydia Mountfort . . . all of Boston aforesaid.”

The released premises are described as follows:—

“All that Dwelling House with a Small Scurt of Land thereunto belonging on the Front next the Street going up to the Old North Meeting House (so called) at the North End of the Town of Boston aforesaid formerly purchased by our said Honoured Father . . . of his Brother Henry Mountfort and John Mounfort and his Sister Sarah Mountfort, one moiety or full half part of the whole; and of Joseph Bridgham, Guardain . . . one full sixth part of the whole and one sixth part of the whole Recovered by the Law for the heirs of Joseph Wadsworth, Esquire deceased and paid and satisfied by our said Honoured Mother . . . since our said Honoured Father's . . . Death and the other sixth part of the whole being our said Honoured Father's . . . part by Inheritance which said House and

† As to the location of this estate the editor is indebted to Mr. Henry Herbert Edes of Charlestown for the following authentic statement:—

“The Mountfort estate was on the northeasterly side of Prince Street formerly called Black-Horse Lane, on the site of the buildings numbered 37 and 39, between the St. Francis Roman Catholic Church (southeast) and Samoset Place.”

The resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed in the House June 13, 1704, and "sent up for concurrence." It was concurred in and consented to by the Governor on the sixteenth.

The order in Council † July 7, 1704, included the order for payment of the bill of Benjamin Eliot provided for by the next chapter; and the province treasurer's account ‡ joins Phillips and Eliot in the charge of payment, which was for one sum — £14 11s. §

These sermons were preached before the Council and House of Representatives at the fast kept by the Legislature pursuant to resolves, 1703-4, chapter 87. The title of Samuel Willard's sermon was "Israel's True Safety."

John Danforth's sermon, the text of which was from Jer. xxxi. 21, was printed with a long title beginning "The Vile Prophanations of Prosperity by the Degenerate among the People of God," etc. — See Sibley's Harvard Graduates, vol. II., pp. 33 and 512.

The resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed upon the following petition of the representatives from York:—

The order in Council † July 7, 1704, was for payment of the allowance to Moody, and to allow to the town of York five pounds out of the tax levied on the town the previous year. The province treasurer's account ‡ shows the charge of ten pounds as paid to Moody.

Moody had been paid the previous year as chaplain at Fort Mary in Saco, at Casco Fort and in the eastern expedition, for fifty-nine weeks' service, as appears from the following entry in the province treasurer's account:—

In his speech to the Assembly of 1703-4, at the beginning of the fifth session, the Governor made no allusion to the subject of his salary nor was any action had thereon in either branch during that short session. That Assembly was dissolved April 21, 1704, the fifth and last session lasting but four days. Although in his speech at the beginning of the first session of the next Assembly the Governor continued reticent on the subject of his salary, the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed in the House of Representatives on the sixteenth of June, and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the seventeenth it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council § for the payment of this allowance was passed July 7, 1704, and the province treasurer's account || shows that this grant and another of two hundred pounds, allowed by chapter 125, post, were paid to him in one sum of five hundred pounds.

Chap. 16. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 58. It has not been found in the archives.

The order in Council † for the payment of this allowance was passed July 7, 1704. The following charge appears in his accounts as treasurer:—

* The following notice of it appeared in the first Boston News-Letter:—

“The 20. the Rd. Mr. Pemberton Preach'd an Excellent Sermon on 1 Thes. 4. 11. And do your own business: Exhorting all Ranks & Degrees of Persons to do their own work, in order to a REFORMATION: which His Excellency has ordered to be Printed.”—April 17-24, 1704, No. 1.

A perusal of this admirably-written sermon, — which was reprinted in his collected sermons, — intended to show the need of due subordination in the performance of diverse duties and callings in life, and specifically applied to the mutual relation of those who are invested with executive and legislative powers, leaves no room for conjecture why Dudley ordered it to be printed. It was a most opportune  caveat  against the inclination to usurp what he claimed to be the constitutional functions of the executive, which the House had been manifesting by its protests against his supposed infringement of its privileges.

Dudley in his speech, June 1, 1704, at the opening of the Assembly described the operations on the frontiers as follows:—

“ . . . The Frontiers of the Province are reduced to strict Garrisons and Covered with three Hundred & fifty Men, who meet every Day in small Parties from the two Extrems Woodstock & Wells: And if it were possible for me by any Means to bring the Queens good Subjects in the several Parts to their Duty in Watching & Scouting, I have no doubt We might be in a great Measure safe from the Incursions of the barbarous Rebels

The Advice from the Enemy on the Western Parts of the Province give Notice of their Approach & Settlement upon Connecticut River, Who must if possible be dislodged, And I believe the Government of Connecticut will join a proper Force with some of ours for that End. . . .” — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 47.

The “advice” referred to by the Governor was the news from Albany, sent by Captain Minor from Woodbury, Connecticut, and received May 18, 1704, that the enemy had “come over the lake & many Indians joyning with them,” † etc. The Connecticut volunteers were thereupon increased from one hundred and fifty to four hundred.

Connecticut followed the example of Massachusetts in patrolling her frontiers near the Connecticut River, and extended her scouts far beyond the limits of her territory. A company of thirty scouts under the command of Lientenant Peter Aspinwall had been sent out by that colony to range the woods on the east side of the river, “according as the Committee of safetie shall order.” § It is probable that these, or a contingent added to this force under the same general order, were the men that Major Fitch proposed to apportion as above, he being a leading member of the Committee of Safety for the county of New London, where Aspinwall's company was raised.

On the twenty-fourth of June Dudley wrote to Winthrop approving Fitch's proposal, and promising to adopt it if agreeable to Winthrop. ||

The order which constitutes this chapter was passed by the representatives on the twentieth of June, sent to the Council for concurrence and concurred in on the twenty-second.

The resolves which constitute this chapter were prepared and passed in the Council June 22, 1704, and sent to the House for concurrence. On the same day they were read in the House and on the twenty-third they were read again, passed and sent back to the Council, and consented to by the Governor.

The doubt, to remove which these resolves were passed, had been rather increased than diminished by the failure to pass the following bill in addition to the act of 1692 for the better observation and keeping the Lord's day:—

Whereas in ye sd Act it is Enacted That all and Eevery person and persons whatsoever shall on y<sup>t</sup> day Carefully apply themselves to dutys of Religion and Piety Publickly and priuately, to which sd Article or Clause (it is apprehended) there is not in ye sd act any penalty Annexed :

Archives, vol. 11, p. 173.*

This bill which was read a first and second time in the House November 11, 1702, and on the next day read a third time, and passed to be engrossed and sent to the Council for concurrence, failed to receive the approval of the Board. It would seem, however, by the following entry that this bill, or another like it, was read in Council some two years later:—

“June 17, 1704. A Bill in Addition to the Act for the better Observation of the Lords Day, pass'd in the House of Represent<sup>es</sup> & sent up, Was Read.” — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 58.

The progress of the bill was arrested at this stage, undoubtedly, because of the substitution of the declaratory resolves forming this chapter, which answered the purpose for the time being.

No trace of further legislative action upon this particular subject-matter has been discovered until the passage of the act of 1716-17, chapter 13, by which the purpose of the resolves was substantially effected by expressly prescribing a penalty for wilful neglect of public worship on the Lord's day.

This report appears to have been read first, in the House, on the day the resolve was passed.

On the seventh of July an order was passed in Council* for paying to Thomas Brattle "of the Committee for the Fortifications on Castle Island" the three hundred pounds granted by this resolve, and the province treasurer's account † shows a charge to him of that amount.

For an account of the arrival of some of the more recently committed of these prisoners see the note to resolve, 1703-4, chapter 117. The number of prisoners was soon after greatly increased by the captives of war sent to Boston by Colonel Church. The following extracts from the executive records of the council show what arrangements were made for the comfort of these prisoners previous to their exchange, and the expense of keeping them down to the close of the year:—

"June 14, 1704. Upon consideration of the great number of French prisoners of War now within the Prison at Boston, and the danger of Infection by their close confinement, now in this hot Season of the year.

The following is the record of Dudley's report to the Council (and the action of the Council thereon) of his reasons for sending Livingston, Shelden and Wells to Canada in the manner described in the note to private act, number nineteen: —

"Dec. 19, 1704. His Excellency acquainted the Council, that since their last setting and advice for sending Messingers to Quebeck with Letters to the Governour of Canada, and to negotiate the affair about the Exchange of Prisoners, he had discoursed that matter with Capt<sup>n</sup> John Livingstone, now in Town, who had been several times there, was well acquainted in the several parts, and the way thither from the upper Towns of this Province, which he accounted to be more safe than to Travail through the Eastern Country; and that said Livingstone would undertake that service accompanied with Mr Shelden and Wells, without any Frenchmen, to have a hundred pounds for his service, and his expences borne.

Upon consideration of the greater safety & certainty of this way, and the charge saved of a Vessel and Men that must necessarily be Employed the other way, besides the fitting out the Frenchmen, and the inconveniencies that might happen upon their going; as also the accomplishment of Capt<sup>n</sup> Livingstone for such a service.

Advised. That he be employed accordingly.

The despatches from Vandreuil and two of the three messengers sent to Canada which the Governor received as early as May 15, 1705, as described in the note to private act, number nineteen (and communicated to the Council), have not been found in the state archives; but the first is preserved in the Collection de Manuscrits, etc., from which it is translated in the note to chapter 36 of the resolves of 1705-6.

From depositions filed in some of the actions hereafter described, it appears that William Penn, wheelwright, mentioned in this chapter, removed from Birmingham, England, to Braintree, before the middle of the seventeenth century † and died in Boston on or about December 18, 1688. It also appears by one deposition that he was the son of Anthony Penn of Birmingham, shoemaker; that he survived his brothers, Guy, John and Anthony, and his only sister Elizabeth; that John and Elizabeth died without issue; that Guy left two children, — Elizabeth and Mary; that this Mary became the wife of James Ensor of Deritend, a village adjoining Birmingham, and survived her sister and her uncle William; that Anthony left several children, of whom only one son, Anthony, survived his uncle;

† Savage (Gen. Dict. sub nom. Penn) is of the opinion that he probably came in the fleet with Winthrop in 1630. This, perhaps, he inferred from the list of original inhabitants of Charlestown (printed in Frothingham's History of Charlestown, p. 59). Wyman, a most scrupulous genealogist, agrees with Savage in supposing that the Charlestown William Penn removed to Braintree; but one of the neighbors of William Penn of Birmingham, England, deposed in 1700, when he was seventy-five years old, that the latter "went into New England" "above fifty years ago." This deponent, who seems to imply that he knew Penn, could not have been more than five years old when the founders of Charlestown and Boston left England. Although the records of Braintree show that Penn was a landholder there as early as 1642, it is not probable that if at that time he had been here twelve years his former neighbors in Birmingham would have thought of the year 1650 in connection with the time of his emigration, nor that the deposition of one of them born in 1625 would have been adduced to prove his identity.

and that both this nephew, and the niece, Mary Ensor, were living at the date of the deposition.

In another deposition taken six years earlier and subscribed by one of the same deponents, the only brothers of William Penn mentioned are Anthony, and Thomas the father of Deborah; and the deponents aver that Anthony had died leaving an only son Anthony, and that Deborah had survived her brother John, the only other issue of her father, and was "married to Edward Hill, late of Birmingham aforesaid, cordwainer, but now of Boston, in New England." This apparent though not necessarily real discrepancy in the depositions arose from the fact that by the English common law of male primogeniture prevailing in the colony at the date of the alleged will, by reason of the revocation of the colony charter and the consequent abrogation of the colony laws of inheritance which regarded with equal favor collateral kindred of both sexes, it was only necessary to ascertain the nearest male heir in order to determine the succession. By the law of England Anthony Penn was unquestionably the sole heir, and could be divested of his title to the real estate of which his uncle died seised only by a testamentary instrument properly executed.

On the fourteenth of February following the decease of Penn, Edward Hill, who appears to have arrived in this country certainly as early as 1680, and who had risen to the dignity of clerk of the first Episcopal society in Boston, propounded for probate an instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of the deceased.

The following are copies, respectively, of the alleged will,* of the jurat, and of the formal "probate" or letters testamentary to which the will was annexed after probate:—

* Although by the English practice the original was not retained in the prerogative office, as is now the custom in Massachusetts, this will seems to have been filed with the register and to have been recently abstracted from the probate files. Joseph Dudley, commissioner or judge for the granting of probates of wills, etc., held that office by delegation from Sir Edmund Andros, his successor in the administration of the affairs of the territory and dominion of New England, who, by virtue of his office of governor, was supreme ordinary.

That no mention of a third subscribing witness was made in the jurat was unimportant, since, by the common law as it stood before the Statute of Frauds, any memorandum, though most informal and without subscribing witnesses, was sufficient to establish a devise if its due publication could be authenticated; and as that statute did not extend to the colonies proprio vigore, and was not adopted in Massachusetts until after the arrival of the province charter in 1692, the probate of wills in 1688 was granted according to the ancient law. Even by the obsolete colony ordinance of 1652, two witnesses only, and those not subscribers, were sufficient for the proof of any will.

There were, however, other important circumstances affecting the validity of this instrument which do not appear to have been brought to the notice of the judge. These were the part that the proponent took in its preparation (including his conduct towards the deceased just previous to his death); his direct interest in having the paper admitted to probate; his dealings with the subscribing witnesses; his omission to have it appear that there were kindred of Penn entitled to opportunity to object to the probate; and the fact that Penn had executed a former will nurevoked except by a provision in the instrument now produced.

About three years after the probate, some particulars transpired leading to the belief that the alleged will was a forgery, committed, after the decease of Penn, by Hill and one John Potwine, a physician; that by the direction of these two the instrument was prepared by one Doctor John Lee; and that Hill had given his bond to Potwine and the subscribing witnesses to pay the former for inventing the will and the latter for subscribing and swearing to its execution.

These suspicions being communicated to the heir apparent he sent over from Birmingham a power of attorney to Joseph Hill, “varnisher,” and Richard Draper, “tobaccoist,” both of Boston, fully authorizing them to bring and defend suits in his behalf for recovery of the estate descended to him from his uncle, and to do all other things needful or convenient for the management of his property and interests in New England.

By this time a new government under the province charter had been established in Massachusetts, and probate courts had been erected in each county, to be held by a judge and register acting by a delegation of functions from the governor, according to the rule of the civil law to which all courts of ecclesiastical jurisdiction were subject. For the county of Suffolk, William Stoughton, who also held the office of lieutenant-governor and chief justice of the Superior Court of Judicature, was appointed judge, and Isaac Addington, who was at the same time secretary of the province and one of the justices of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas for the county, was appointed register.

On the twenty-eighth of March, 1694, therefore, Penn’s attorneys applied to Stoughton for a revocation of the former decree of probate, as follows:—

Stoughton immediately gave his register, Addington, the following written order to issue citations:—

The bearers being concerned in relation to the Estate of W<sup>m</sup> Pen late of Braintry, & intending to bring the probate of a pretended will of his unto further examination &c.: pray citations to be granted to several persons in order thereunto, w<sup>ch</sup> please to cause to be done, as they shall give you more particularly to vnderstand folk Probate Files, No. 2127.

The citations appear to have been made returnable on the fifth of April, when, after a hearing, the court passed the following decree:—

"Suffolk ss.

Edward Hill Excec<sup>r</sup> of the Will of the abovenamed W<sup>m</sup> Penn being cited, and upon Examination of two of the Witnesses subscribed to s<sup>d</sup> Will, and such other Evidences as were produced by each party. folk Court Files.

After this unsuccessful effort the prospect of recovering any portion of his uncle's estate would have been utterly discouraging to the heir had not this failure of his attorneys to procure a revocation of the probate of the spurious will apparently reassured and thrown off their guard the conspirators who had contrived the forgery and supported it by perjury.

Who the two subscribing witnesses were that appeared before Stoughton is nowhere mentioned; but it can scarcely be doubted that they were Tucker and Sea, although a deposition by the former, dated April 21, 1694, is on file showing that sixteen days after this hearing he was at Oyster Bay on Long Island. It seems almost certain that both these witnesses left the province soon after the hearing before Judge Stoughton, and that Tucker afterwards forwarded his deposition to be used by Edward Hill as occasion might require.

The evidence produced against the will at this hearing had been mainly hearsay or conjecture, and to sustain their suspicions of fraud the petitioners relied upon such facts and inferences as the following: that the deceased "did acknowledge near relations in England;" that the mark of the testator subscribed to the will was not of the form usually made by Penn; that Penn had declared, as his settled intention, that Edward Hill "should have none of his estate;" that Edward Hill's wife had declared to one witness who questioned the genuineness of the will that she and her husband did not claim to hold under the will, and that she had consulted another witness as to the advisability of sending her husband away "in case the will should be proved a forgery;" that Pottwine had declared that he "contrived the thing," and "that Thomas Sea had a bond of ten pounds for swearing to" the instrument.

By another deponent it was charged that Tucker had received a bond similar to Pottwine's; that the husband of the subscribing witness, Marsh, had said "that he knew said will to be a forgery;" that he refused to live with his wife if she perjured herself to sustain it, and that she had disclaimed all purpose to commit such wickedness, and that he had insisted on her rejecting a bribe offered by Hill to induce her to swear to its execution. The petitioners also relied upon the further fact that Thomas Sea, instead of acknowledging his signature, demanded of them "proof that he is a witness to said will;" that Doctor Lee, the scrivener, and his wife, had declared "that old Penn was dead before the will was finished;" that money was paid to Lee for writing the will and to the subscribing witnesses for signing it; and that Pottwine and Mr. and Mrs. Hill instructed Lee as to the testamentary disposition of the estate.

But before another year had passed other indications of the guilt of the conspirators transpired, so direct and circumstantial as in the judgment of the attorneys of the heir to warrant proceeding against them by indictment for perjury, conspiracy to defraud, and forgery, and to encourage him to attempt to recover the estates by proving his title before a jury. As above intimated, it seems certain that Mary Marsh failed to testify in open court or by deposition, either at the probate of the will or upon the hearing for its revocation, which of itself was a suspicious circumstance. About six months after the hearing Sea was in Newport, Rhode Island, where, in the course of conversation about the will, with one Phillips, he freely declared that Penn was dead before the will was signed, and that "it was a damned cheat." This his interlocutor deposed to on the twenty-eighth of November, before two of the leading magistrates of Boston. The next spring, Gilbert Colesworthy, husband of Frances Colesworthy, whose deposition was one of the "evidences" produced before Stoughton, made a deposition, which he subsequently swore to in open court, as to a conversation between himself and his wife after her return from Doctor Lee's, at the time the latter was drawing the will, in which she told of the merriment of the persons present on that occasion and of their unseemly eagerness to have the will executed. He added the results of his own observation of the hasty proceedings at the funeral, and that Lee had told him that Hill and his wife and Pottwine dictated the will; "that he [Lee] was not with old Penn about it," and that "they put a pen into the old man's hand and held his hand while he made the mark."

Though not disclosed in court, these fresh developments evidently were not concealed from those whose suspicions they confirmed; and those suspicions must have been still further strengthened by the fact that Hill relied upon two presumably fraudulent documents to sustain the will. One of these was a deposition, dated as far back as 1680, made before Governor Bradstreet, and Major General Daniel Denison one of the colonial assistants, by Richard Thayer of Braintree, a notoriously untrustworthy person, in which he averred that William Penn, on a certain occasion, had pointed out to him Edward Hill's wife as his kinswoman whom he had sent for from England to be his heir. The other was a full and absolute power of attorney from Penn to Hill, ostensibly executed about eighteen months before Penn's death, witnessed by "Jhon Poidunine"* and probably invented by Pottwine or by Hill. Both of these papers seem to have been deliberately contrived for the purpose for which they were now adduced.

Notwithstanding the inevitable presumption arising from these circumstances it seems to have been deemed prudent to wait for more conclusive evidence. The wisdom of this course was shown about ten months later, when some remarkable disclosures were made by one Ann Despard, who had entered the service of Edward Hill, as a domestic, shortly after Penn's decease.

From her deposition before Mr. Justice Samuel Sewall of the Superior Court, it appeared that Hill's wife, whose life had been made intolerable by his dissolute and wasteful habits, and particularly by the transfer of his devotion to Mary Marsh, had, in the presence of his servant, severely upbraided him, directly charging him with murdering her uncle, and then conspiring to make "that devilish will," by which she had been deprived of her rightful inheritance and both of them made "slaves unto a parcel of rogues," and had incurred the curse of God for their wickedness, and she declared that she was "no more regarded than a dog by" him, "nor by that rogue Pottwine," and that she had "better live in hell than live with him any longer." In her rage and despair she threatened to drown herself, but was thwarted in the attempt by the deponent and the witness Tucker, — who boarded in Hill's family for a twelvemonth after the probate, by agreement with Hill, as part recompense for his testimony, as the deponent declared she had heard him assert to Mrs. Hill. The deponent testified to other damaging statements made by Tucker. One was that Hill gave him his bond for ten pounds, for the payment of which he was tired of waiting. This was coupled with a threat to assign the bond to one who would put it in suit, which coming to the knowledge of Mrs. Hill, the bond was paid, and further to conciliate Tucker he was furnished with a new suit of clothes, whereupon he departed for Rhode Island — Pottwine lending him his horse to carry him part way. Sea, also; according to her testimony, demanded ten pounds of Mrs. Hill, on a similar bond to him, threatening, if he was put off any longer, to divulge "the business," which threat Mrs. Hill reported to her husband, saying, "some course must be taken to pay Sea or else he would discover all." Hill treated Sea's menace with professed indifference, declaring Sea can do us "no hurt; now the business was done and he [Hill] had got the estate in possession, all that Sea could do by a discovery would but bring his own ears to the pillory, and therefore he did not fear him."

Edward Hill having, both before and after Stoughton's decree, made sundry conveyances † of the lands which he claimed by devise, the attorneys of the heir determined to avail themselves of the above new evidence, and of such additional proof as they might be able to adduce in the course of the trial, first, in a civil suit against one of these grantees.

Now, by the common law, a devise could be established by evidence in any proper action at law; and this evidence must be produced anew in every new trial. While the common law prevailed here during Andros's administration, this was undoubtedly the rule in Massachusetts, but the province charter, by conferring upon the Governor and Council authority to "doe execute or performe all that is necessary for the Probate of Wills," etc., had impliedly deprived the common-law courts of jurisdiction over matters pertaining to the courts of probate, and this separation of functions was rendered still more conclusive by certain acts ‡ of the provincial Legislature, ratified by the Privy Council, directing that appeals from the probate courts be made to the Governor and Council. But this operation of the charter was not at that time clear either to the bar or the bench, though it gradually came to the apprehension of both in the course of the proceedings which follow in this narrative.

Penn's attorneys, therefore, commenced a suit against Clement Cock, one of the above-named grantees, for the recovery of the message conveyed to him by Hill. The action was brought in the Inferior Court of Common Pleas for Suffolk County. The writ was dated March 11, 1696-7, and was returnable at the April term, 1697. Anthony Checkley, attorney-general, who had succeeded Thomas Newton in the prosecution of the alleged witches, five years before, appeared for Penn, the plaintiff, and Benjamin Bullivant, apothecary and lawyer, one of the founders and first churchwardens of the parish of which his client was clerk, and who had held the office of attorney-general during the short presidency of Dudley, appeared for Cock, the defendant. The declaration was "trespass upon the case;" for that the defendant "hath illegally entered into the possession and keeps . . . the plaintiff out of the possession of a certain piece or parcel of" land (describing the premises) "now in the possession and occupation of the" defendant, "which said woodland and meadow the said William Penn died seised of in his own right in fee simple and now of right descends to the plaintiff (heir at law unto the said William Penn deceased), yet, notwithstanding, the said Clement Cock unjustly keeps the plaintiff out of, and withholds the possession of, the said woodland and meadow from said plaintiff; and said plaintiff is thereby damaged one hundred pounds in money," etc.

The plea of the defendant was as follows: —

* Possibly Pottwine's son — the spelling and handwriting being quite unlike those of the Pottwine who "contrived" the will.

The case was given to the jury with a ruling of the Court that the testimony of all three subscribing witnesses was not necessary if the fact of their subscription appeared by the testimony of two only, which indicates that the chief point in issue was as to that section of the Statute of Frauds* which required that all devises be attested by three or four subscribing witnesses.

The jury found for the defendant, and the plaintiff appealed to the Superior Court of Judicature to be held on the twenty-seventh of the same month. The plaintiff's reasons of appeal and the defendant's answer thereto, given below, are curious as illustrating the progress of the art of pleading in our highest judicial court: —

(2). To the Second Reason, wherein they would insinuate to y<sup>e</sup> Hon<sup>d</sup> Court & Jury that the witnesses are not Sufficient in Number, because y<sup>e</sup> Statute requires 3 or 4 credible witnesses. We answer that Surely Anthony Penn wanted his Spectacles, when he asserted this for one of his Reasons of Appeale Since any Schooleboy of 7 yeares old might tell, that Tucker, Sea, & Marsh make 3 persons. And though the Law doth require 3 at Least to be present & witness The testators act when he signs, Seales, & publishes, & declares his Last will & testament Yet it doth not require that every one of these 3 be sworne to y<sup>e</sup> probate of the will, for one, or 2 swearing at the probate, y<sup>t</sup> they were present & saw the third there also is good & Legall prooffe as was the Opinion of the Judges on the tryall of this case before them in the Late inferior<sup>r</sup> court of Comon pleas. But to obviate all Difficulties as to that matter, the 3<sup>d</sup> person namely Mary Marsh (a witness to the before Controverted will) & who was sick, & out of towne, at y<sup>e</sup> time of y<sup>e</sup> Probat, & hindred by the act of God from attending that service at that time, is now ready in her own P<sup>er</sup>son to Corroborate the said probatation, though before good & valid in the Law to all intents & purposes, And All cavills against it dismissed on a 2<sup>d</sup> hearing lately before y<sup>e</sup> Hon<sup>ble</sup> Judge of Probats

* As has already been stated the English Statute of Frauds was inoperative here; but this statute had been substantially reënacted here in 1692. — Province Laws, 1692-3, chapter 15. This, however, was nearly four years after the alleged execution of the will.

& therefore yo<sup>r</sup> Appelleè humbly hopes this Honoured Court & Jury will see very just Cause to Confirm the former Judgement and Dismiss him with his Additional Costs./

The record of the judgment of the Superior Court concludes as follows:—

"Both partys now appeared by their Attournys; and the Writ, Inferiour Courts Judgment, Reasons of Appeal, Evidences and Allegations on both sides being fully heard, The Case was Committed to the Jury who were sworn according to Law to try the same; and Returned their Verdict therein upon Oath That is to say, They find for the Defend<sup>t</sup>; Confirmation of the former Judgment, and Costs of Courts. It's therefore Considered by the Court, That the s<sup>d</sup>. Clement Cock shall recover against the s<sup>d</sup>. Anthony Penn Costs of Courts taxed at Three pounds Eleven shillings & four pence." — Records of the Superior Court of Judicature, 1686-1700, p. 109.

Pending these proceedings, or before, clews were obtained to still more damaging evidence against Hill. John Chadwick who had deposed at the hearing before Stoughton that Pottwine had confessed to inventing the will, now further declared that Pottwine had told him that if he told all he knew concerning Hill, the latter would have to "fly for it or he would be hanged," for that Hill went up stairs to where Penn was lying sick, just before his death, "and made the poor old man cry out,"* and when he came down again he brought a purse of money in his hand, and said "look here, I have gotten some of the old rogne's money." Lambert Despard, husband of Ann, whose important deposition before Judge Sewall has been described above, declared that as early as 1693 Pottwine had solemnly protested to him that he "got Penn's estate for Edward Hill, and that he was to have three hundred pounds for his pains and to marry said Hill's daughter, and that if he had not been a fool he might as well have got it for himself." He also corroborated the testimony of his wife as to the demands made by Sea and Tucker for the payment of their bonds; to the threat made by Tucker, and of his claim on Hill for board as by agreement; and to Hill's wife's charging her husband with the murder of her uncle. He also told of Pottwine's repeated declarations that he knew he could hang Hill if he would; that "for any bodily disease or distemper" Penn might "have lived several years longer;" and that he had often heard Sea say that he was to have received ten pounds for swearing to Penn's will, "of which he never received but forty shillings."

As has been shown, Tucker left the province soon after the probate of the will. Sea, who, as has been said, was in Newport in 1694, appears to have returned and again absconded sometime in 1696. Only Mary Marsh (if, as the evidence implies, she had preferred the home of Edward Hill to the society of her own husband) and the chief conspirator, Edward Hill, remained. As Mrs. Marsh had not at any time testified to the execution of the will she could not be charged with perjury, as could Tucker and Sea, nor was there sufficient evidence to sustain against either her or Pottwine an accusation of criminal conspiracy — at least until after an attempt to convict the principal offender. Moreover, it seems that Pottwine, who had married Hill's eldest daughter Sarah, — thus far corroborating the testimony in regard to the reward he was to receive for his agency in contriving the will, — had gone to England.

It is probable that by this time Marsh had removed to New York, so that neither he nor Tucker could be brought to testify in court, nor the latter be brought to the bar — there being then neither law nor comity between the colonies by which extradition of witnesses or of persons accused of crime could be effected.

Tucker's deposition, however, which Edward Hill had procured in April, 1694, was still available in Hill's defence. Sea probably stood ready to appear, when wanted, to corroborate Tucker, since, as will hereafter be seen, he was actually in Boston at the time of the trial of Hill upon the indictment hereinafter described.

Under these circumstances it would seem that the declarations of Edward Hill, Marsh and Sea (in case the latter failed to appear as a witness), though hearsay, were thought admissible, as being the best evidence obtainable. Accordingly all the statements furnishing additional clews were reduced to writing and sworn to in court by the several deponents, including Joseph Hill, who now further swore that Marsh had declared to him that Pottwine, in his presence, had told the subscribing witnesses, after the will had been placed upon the dead man's lips and then taken away, that "they might lawfully swear that these were the last words that came from his mouth."

A significant memorandum, made by the clerk on a copy of the record of this case, is the following, which indicates that Mrs. Marsh had at length appeared as a witness, either in court or before the clerk:—

"M

Memorandum that this mark was made in Court by Mary Marsh at the time of the Tryal of this Case; and she affirmed upon Oath that this was hir usual mark —

The urgency that brought her to this was the institution of criminal proceedings against Edward Hill.

On the day after the trial of the action against Cock in the Inferior Court of Common Pleas, a warrant for Hill's arrest, to answer to a "presentment by the grand inquest for the body of this County of Suffolk", had been issued, returnable at the Court of Sessions on the eighth of April. This indictment, on which Hill was to be tried at the same term and court at which was to be heard the appeal in the case of Penn, has not been found on file, but the following copy of the record of the case sufficiently shows its import:—

Edward Hill:*

The grounds for this verdict of acquittal and for awarding Clement Cock the judgment on appeal are not stated. The want of evidence against Edward Hill, more positive and direct than his own declarations and the admissions and declarations of his accomplices, was probably the fatal defect in both cases, and the inferential proof was not allowed to preponderate against strong circumstantial evidence, and the positive sworn deposition of Tucker, which appear to have been adduced in rebuttal. Sea, who seems to have again returned to Boston as a witness for Hill, does not appear to have been called upon to testify; but on the day on which Hill was arrested for forgery, etc., he, also, was taken into custody on the charge of perjury, which gave him opportunity to avail himself of his privilege of exemption from testifying to any circumstance likely to criminate himself. There is no record of his trial on this indictment, which was placed on file where it still remains. It ran as follows: —

Criminal proceedings against Sea, however, were not abandoned. At the next October term of the Superior Court another indictment was found against him, as follows: —

Probably Sea had again disappeared after the April term of the Court, since the warrant to the constable of Boston for his arrest to answer to this presentment of the grand jury bears date July 22, 1698. Five days after this date, Sea either voluntarily appeared, or was brought, before Jeremiah Dummer, a justice of the peace, and "committed to the prison in Boston for want of security." His trial took place at the next (October, 1698) term of the Superior Court, and ended in his acquittal and discharge.

While Sea was thus being prosecuted, Penn's attorneys continued to pursue their civil remedies against Cock. Having failed in the appeal, they resorted to the only civil process remaining untried; that is, an action of review.

The act * for reestablishing the courts gave either party to any civil action the right to review it once in each of the courts in which it had been tried, and so, availing himself of this privilege, Penn sued out a writ of review against Cock, bearing date April 11, 1698, and returnable before the Superior Court, at Boston, on the last Tuesday of the same month. This final contest with Cock was the first in which the heir came off victorious. He succeeded in getting judgment for the land conveyed by Hill to Cock, and was put in possession thereof by the sheriff August 2, 1698. The conclusion of the record in this case is as follows: —

"The Defend<sup>t</sup> appeared by Benj<sup>e</sup> Bullivant his attorney; and pleaded That the Judgments sought to be Reversed by this Writ are good and just, and ought not to be reversed; are in no wayes erroneous but ought to be affirmed. The Writ Defend<sup>t</sup>s plea former Courts Judgments Deeds Evidences and Allegations on both Sides being fully heard, The Case was committed to the Jury who were Sworne according to Law to try the same; and returned their Verdict therein upon Oath That is to say, They find for the pl<sup>t</sup> possession of y<sup>e</sup> Land in Controversy, and Costs of Court. Its therefore Considered by the Court That the pl<sup>t</sup> Anthony Penn shall recover ag<sup>t</sup> Clement Cock the Defend<sup>t</sup> possession of the Land in Controversy; and Costs of Court taxed at Two pounds Nineteen Shillings and Three pence." — Records of the Superior Court of Judicature, 1686-1700, p. 173.

The acquittal of Sea and Hill seems not to have been deemed a reverse so great as to extinguish in the minds of Penn's attorneys the hope of eventual success in their civil proceedings which this judgment on review had inspired. There are indications in the record of this action of review, and of later actions brought against others claiming under Edward Hill as devisee, that the Court had not recognized the effect of the charter provision in respect to probate jurisdiction and appeals, but had adhered to the common-law doctrine that the decree of the probate court was not conclusive, and that the will might be impeached in any issue at law in which its genuineness or the regularity of its execution was directly involved in proving a devise. By the intimation that this view was entertained by the bench, the heir and his attorney were encouraged to believe that Cock's case would prove a binding precedent. They therefore decided to bring other actions to recover the real estate granted by Hill as devisee.

At that time the Superior Court of Judicature and the Inferior Court of Common Pleas had concurrent original jurisdiction of such cases. Penn's attorneys brought suit in the higher court for the recovery of lands, against John Bowditch. They also brought a joint action against Thomas and Samuel French, whom they had sued in like manner, in the same court and for the same cause of action, at the October term of the year before, and again at the June term of the present year; but had suffered nonsuit in each case. All these defendants claimed title under Hill.

The writs in these last actions were dated October 10, 1698, and were returnable at the same term at which Sea was tried upon his second indictment. The declaration in each case was "trespass on the case," as in the original suit against Cock, but the pleas instead of affirming the defendant's title denied the descent of the land to the plaintiff, as follows: —

Apparently the cases were committed to separate juries. In the case of Bowditch, a verdict was returned for the defendant, who recovered costs. The second jury, however, brought in their verdict that "they find for the plaintiff the land sued for and costs of court," which, in the record of the judgment, were taxed at £4 10s. 6d.

Each of the defeated parties in the above cases now brought writs of review returnable at the Superior Court to be held on the last Tuesday of April, 1699. Penn's writ against Bowditch was dated March fourteenth, and the Frenches' writ was dated April eighth.

At the trial of Sea upon the second indictment some new evidence, tending to sustain the theory of forgery and conspiracy, had been put in which must have strengthened the plaintiff's hopes of ultimately prevailing. Some of the depositions in which evidence of this kind was shown are missing from the files; but the deposition of Doctor John Lee, the scrivener who drew the will, corroborated Joseph Hill's testimony as to Pottwine's declaration that but for him his father-in-law would not have had "any more right" to Penn's estate than he. Lee also deposed that Pottwine had requested him to say to Hill "that if he would not give him sixty or more pounds in money then he would overthrow that will;" but that he studiously evaded all questions concerning the knowledge he had formerly professed as to the spuriousness of that instrument, and had given as his reason for * Province Laws, 1697, chapter 9, § 3.

† This was the form of Bowditch's plea. In the Frenches' plea (which was probably drawn by John Leverett, a leading member of the House of Representatives, elevated to the bench of the Superior Court a few years later, and later still one of the Executive Council, but better remembered as President of Harvard College and one of the few early Americans admitted to fellowship in the Royal Society), the words "and prmisses" were omitted.

not subscribing as a witness, that he was about to marry Hill's daughter. The deponent testified that his own suspicions as to the genuineness of the will had been awakened some two years after its execution, and that he then told Pottwine that he "feared that the signing" thereof "was not rightly performed." He now recalled the fact that Edward Hill had dictated its provisions, had called for the completed draught in a hurry, "but desired not the deponent to go with him," and that "on the fore part of the next day" he "heard that said Penn was dead." Richard Gridley's deposition was purely hearsay; but in it he averred that one Elizabeth Critchfield had stated that she was knowing to the drawing of the will and that it was brought to the place where Penn lay dead, and that Edward Hill took the dead man's hand and guided it to make the mark which was supposed to be Penn's own act.

This cumulative testimony in the plaintiff's favor, which was undoubtedly availed of in the actions of review, would seem by what appears on record to have had its full influence upon the Court.

The cases came on for trial on the return day, April twenty-fifth, when the jury rendered the following verdicts: for Bowditch, "the jury find for the defendant costs of court;" and for the Frenches, who were the plaintiffs in review, "the jury find for the plaintiffs possession of the lands sued for and costs of court." As the former affirmed the verdict in the original action, and the latter reversed the previous verdict, both seem to have been contrary to the law as expounded to the jury by the judges, who evidently still held to the doctrine that a devise might lawfully be set aside in a suit at common law notwithstanding the probate of the will. The Court, therefore, ordered the actions to be continued, directing the jurors to reconsider their verdicts. The following memorandum of this ruling was entered upon the record just after the case of Bowditch, which appears to have been last recorded:—

"Upon Delivery of the two foregoing Verdicts, the Justices sayd to the Jurors that they Observed their Verdicts did not agree with the Law, nor the Evidences in the Case and therefore desired them to Reconsider the Case." — Records of the Superior Court of Judicature, 1686-1700, p. 251.

At the same term an action was entered by Penn against John Hollis, for recovery of the lands derived by him from Hill. The writ was dated March 20, 1698-9, and the declaration was substantially the same as in all the former suits. A new name, however, appears as counsel for the defendant. This was Thomas Newton, an accomplished lawyer, who had a greater influence in molding our early jurisprudence than any of his contemporaries. He did not adopt the form of special plea put in by the other counsel for the defence, but regularly pleaded the general issue, thus: "The Defend; pleads not guilty in manner & forme as is sett forth in the writ.*"

No minute of the entry of this action has been found in the record, but the writ itself bears evidence that it was entered and the case continued. The continuance of these cases beyond the term was made imperative by the tidings received on the twenty-sixth, and communicated to the Council by the Lieutenant-Governor on the twenty-seventh, that the Privy Council had disallowed the provincial act † of 1697 for establishing courts of justice, by which decision the whole judicial system was abolished.

Some evidence still further derogatory to the claim of the devisee seems to have been adduced in the trials at this term. In a second deposition Ann Despard averred that she had seen Mrs. Hill deliver a pair of stockings, a hat and hatband to Sea, after he had made his threats, for the purpose of keeping him from divulging the fraud concerning Penn's will. She also defined the phrases in her former confession so as to have them apply unequivocally to Penn's alleged will and to connect the persons and circumstances named in that deposition with the criminal contrivance and the probate of the instrument under which Hill claimed as devisee. Both she and her husband explicitly deposed that Sea had declared to them that he was to have ten pounds for swearing to Penn's will; and the latter reaffirmed that Sea had as often complained that he received only forty shillings. Thomas Banister deposed that Mary Marsh had declared to him that her professed inability to recognize her mark subscribed to the alleged will was not because she could not tell her mark, but because she "would not swear to that will for all the world."

A new Superior Court of Judicature was established by the act ‡ passed June 26, 1699. Sewall § records that he received his commission as one of the justices of this Court on the twenty-fifth of July following. By this act terms were to be held in Suffolk, in May and November, annually. On the fifth day of the November term the Court adjourned to the twentieth day of the month, and then ordered that the cases between the Frenches and Penn, and Penn and Bowditch "be tried at this Court;" but the parties not being all present the cases were again continued to the next (May) term. The case of Penn versus Hollis was continued in like manner, on motion of the defendant, "that he may have time to summons the person of whom he bought the land and premises sued for, to defend the same." The name of Samuel White, Hollis's granior, immediately follows, on the record, as defendant at the suit of Penn, but the entry closes with this memorandum: "the defendant being dead the action fell." The continued case against Hollis was also recorded, but appears to have been discontinued by agreement of the parties, "the defendant by his attorney remitting his costs." Penn had been nonsuited in an action brought by him against White at the October term, 1698.

The record of another continued case brought forward at the November term conclusively shows that the Court were of opinion (upon what theory it is difficult to conjecture) that either the ordinance of the late colony, or the statutes of the province, governed the descent of lands of an ancestor dying after the revocation of the charter and while the government of the colony was in the hands of a representative of the crown appointed by virtue of the royal prerogative upon the assumption that the right had reverted to the king. This case was the action of Penn versus Thomas Gould, in which Edward Hill appeared, and, taking upon himself the defence, pleaded in bar, "for that he the said Penn sues as heir at law, and there being two other persons living who have right to the said estate and with said Penn;" whereupon it was considered by the Court "that the plaintiff can take nothing by this writ and that the defendant go without day, and recover costs," etc. This new line of defence against the plaintiff's claim as sole heir, under the common law, seems to have been followed in all subsequent cases, and nothing has been found of record to show that it was objected to as untenable.

At the May term, 1700, the Superior Court seems to have abandoned the intention to have the cases of Bowditch and the Frenches tried again at that bar. The reason for this determination, probably, is to be found in the provisions of the new act* under which the Court was reëstablished, which gave it only appellate jurisdiction. Accordingly, judgment was awarded to the original defendants, respectively, with costs against Penn, taxed at £13 11s., in the case of the Frenches, and at a sum not shown in the judgment for Bowditch.

At the next term (November) of the Superior Court held at Boston, Penn appears to have entered another writ against the Frenches, which was abated on the defendant's motion. A writ of review, also, dated October 11, 1700, entered at this term by Penn, against Bowditch, was not prosecuted by the plaintiff, and accordingly a nonsuit was entered against him.

More than two years elapsed before Penn again applied to the courts to be put into possession of his inheritance. Before August 27, 1700, Pottwine died,† apparently without divulging his guilty secret in such manner as that his testimony could be used to right the wrong done to Penn's heir.

About one year after Pottwine's death, Stoughton, who, as judge of probate, had refused to revoke the probate of the forged will, and who had held the first seat on the bench of the Superior Court as well as in the Council, died;‡ so, for the future, nothing was to be feared from his influence over his associates by either of the parties interested in sustaining or defeating the will.

The first of the new suits brought by Penn was against Hollis, and was marked by two noticeable departures from the form of declaring previously followed. He no longer counted upon his sole right or seisin, but claimed only an undivided third of the land sued for, and he declared on "trespass and ejectment,"§ instead of "trespass on the case," as formerly.

The new statutes for establishing courts, etc., required that actions should be originally brought in the Court of Common Pleas, and so the writ which was dated December 17, 1702, was entered at the January term of that Court, in Suffolk. The declaration was substantially the same as in the former cases, save that it contained an allegation that possession of the premises claimed had been demanded and refused. Newton appeared for the defendant and pleaded the general issue. The jury found for the defendant and the plaintiff appealed to the Superior Court.

In this case, for the first time, the judges ruled that the probate of the will was binding upon the Court and that evidence to invalidate the will could not be admitted in this collateral proceeding. This appears from the plaintiff's reasons of appeal which were as follows:—

"Suffolk ss To the Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Superiour Court of Judicature to be holden at Boston for the County of Suffolk on the first Tuesday in May: Anno Dom: 1703.

To his widow, whom he named his executrix (directing that his father-in-law, Edward Hill, "assist and aid her"), he left all his estate, real and personal, except his silver-headed cane, one gold ring, and his "chirurgeon's chest," which he bequeathed to his son John. In this will he piously expressed the belief that he should "be pardoned for his sins and be saved by the precious death and merits of" his "blessed Savior and Redeemer," etc. The son's name appears occasionally in the town records as late as 1734, in connection with various offices to which he was chosen, the duties of which he could be excused from performing by paying a fine—such as scavenger, constable, and clerk of the market.

The defendant's answer to these reasons was prepared by Newton who therein appears to have first raised an important point based upon that view of the law which has been since generally accepted as sound, and to which the practice of the courts has conformed down to the present day. The answer was as follows:—

"Suffolk ss

2 That it is true, that the Defend<sup>t</sup> (amongst other things) and to bring downe the title of the Land in Question to him) did produce an authentic Copy of the sd William Penns Will under whom the appell<sup>t</sup> p<sup>t</sup>tends to Claime, w<sup>ch</sup> will the appell<sup>t</sup> would p<sup>t</sup>tend to set aside, w<sup>ch</sup> the Defend<sup>t</sup> humbly conceives, was not in the power of the Inferiour Court appealed from, nor (with submission) in the power of this hon<sup>ble</sup> Court, for that by a Law of this province, if any will is contested it is thereby referred to the Govern<sup>r</sup> and Council of this Province, to decide the same and the abovesd Will has been attempted by the appell<sup>t</sup>s attorney to be set aside, but he could not obtaine the same, as will appear to your honors in this Cause

3 That the appell<sup>t</sup> cannot prove the will of the sd W<sup>m</sup> Penn to be forged (tho: as before) he has often strenuously endeavoured the same and so the said will continues in force and full Effect.

4 That the aforesd will is proued in due form of Law, and tho: Mary Marsh one of the witnesses to the sd will, (being an illiterate person) and under surprize) did not know her mark, yet she offered her oath she saw the sd W<sup>m</sup> Penn signe seal & publish the same & that she subscribed her mark, thereto. yet it is proved by two other legall witnesses w<sup>ch</sup> is as much as our Laws then required and being proved in form of Law, the same cannot otherwise be contested then before the Gov<sup>r</sup> and Council as aforesd: all w<sup>ch</sup> with what further may be offered to this hon<sup>ble</sup> Court & Gent<sup>ys</sup> of the Jury ag<sup>t</sup> the appell<sup>t</sup>s insufficient Title ag<sup>t</sup> a lawful purchase the Defend<sup>t</sup> hopes they will see good grounds to confirm the former Judgm<sup>t</sup> with additionall Costs

From this answer it appears that Newton very properly had argued that the English Statute of Frauds was not in operation here* at the date of the execution of the will, and hence that two witnesses to its publication were sufficient, whether under the common law, the civil law, or the colony ordinance; and that by the operation of the province charter, and the act † made to render more effectual the first provincial act ‡ respecting the probate of wills, the probate in this case could only be revoked by the county probate court, or by the Governor and Council sitting as the supreme court of probate.

The term of the Superior Court to which this appeal was taken was begun at Boston on Tuesday, May 4, 1703. The case proceeded to trial, and judgment was awarded to the defendant. The conclusion of the record in this case is as follows:—

"Both Parties Appeared the Writ Inferiour Courts Judgment Reasons of Appeal & all things touching the same being fully heard the whole was Committed to the Jury who were Sworne to try the same & Returned their Verdict therein upon Oath, That is to say They find for the Defend<sup>t</sup> Confirmation of the former Judgment & Costs of Courts. It's therefore Considered by the Court That the s<sup>d</sup> John Hollis shall recover of the s<sup>d</sup> Anthony Penn Costs of Courts Taxed at _____." — Records of the Superior Court of Judicature, 1700-1714, p. 95.

The plaintiff, not satisfied with this verdict, resorted to the only remedy which yet remained to him; that is, an action of review, which under a recent law § he, as the party aggrieved, must bring in the Superior Court within "three years from the time of rendring the judgment to be reviewed."

Accordingly a writ of review, dated April 3, 1704, was entered at the term begun on Tuesday the second of May. Joseph Hearne had succeeded Newton as counsel for the defendant. The trial resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff. The following is the conclusion of the record of this case:—

"... the Case after a full hearing was Committed to the Jury, who were Sworne to try the Same & Returned their Verdict therein upon Oath That is to say they find for the Pl<sup>t</sup> the Land Sued for & Cost of Courts. It's therefore Considered by the Court That the s<sup>d</sup>

Anthony Penn shall recover against the s<sup>d</sup> John Hollis the Land sued & Cost of Courts Taxed at nineteene pounds Ten shillings & Eleven pence." — Ibid., p. 121.

It is impossible to account for this change of attitude on the part of the jury except by the surmise that the Court differed from their brethren of the Common Pleas in their view of the law, and admitted evidence to impeach the will. If such evidence were at all admissible the sufficiency of the new testimony which the plaintiff produced at this stage can hardly be questioned.

On the tenth of February previous to the trial, Thomas Sea, on his deathbed, sent for the plaintiff's attorney, and confessed to him, in the presence of four witnesses, that William Penn was dead when the instrument purporting to be his will was signed, which was the night after he died; and though repeatedly questioned as to the fact, and most solemnly and impressively adjured to tell the truth, he remained steadfast in this declaration. About a month later the testimony of two of the witnesses to this confession was reduced to writing and the depositions were severally sworn to before a magistrate — Edward Hill being present in each instance. By the most rigid rules respecting the exclusion of testimony for want of notice to the adverse party, or as being but hearsay, or as not being seasonably or regularly authenticated, this dying declaration duly testified to before a proper magistrate and in the presence of the executor and devisee was wholly unobjectionable.

These depositions were sworn to again in court, together with others of like import — save that in one of the latter there was some evidence that at the approach of death, and just before he ceased speaking intelligibly, Sea faltered in his declaration. But this was after Edward Hill and some of his friends, including Mary Marsh, had had an interview with Sea and after he had been left alone for a short time with the latter.

On the twenty-seventh of April, a new witness, — Ann Doubleday, the person in whose house Sea remained throughout his last sickness, — made a deposition, which she afterwards swore to in court, in which she not only corroborated the testimony of other deponents as to Sea's dying declaration that the will was made the night after Penn died, but added the important statement that Sea, on his deathbed, when asked by Joseph Hill, the plaintiff's attorney, if he remembered his statement to the questioner, some time before, that when he (Sea) went with Mary Marsh to lay out Mr. Penn, the dead man lay in his blood, and had a wound in his back deep and wide enough to admit the length and turning about of his two fingers, with other marks of violent and painful death, Sea turned his head to the wall and evasively replied, "what I did I was hired to do."

The injustice which would be done to the plaintiff by allowing the will to stand against this accumulation of subversive testimony was so obvious that the court and jury appear to have been agreed that he should prevail in his cause.

On the twenty-second of May a writ of habere facias possessionem was signed by the clerk of the court, upon which, besides a receipt signed by Joseph Hill for the "full contents of the within execution," the following return was made by the sheriff: —

"Suffolk ss

By Vertue of this Execution — I have Levied it upon the Land withinmentioned and have delivered possession thereof to the plt and have also satisfied him for his Costs & damages as <sup>p</sup> Receipt GILES DYER Sheriff." — Suffolk Court Files.

Penn's attorneys, relying upon the conclusiveness of the evidence which after so long developing had culminated in the recent trial, now determined to apply for some legislative provision whereby the heir might be granted an opportunity, in a rehearing of the causes he had lost, to avail himself of the new testimony by which he had sustained his case against Hollis.

On the other hand Clement Cock, whose defeat in his litigation with the heir has been heretofore described, had applied to the General Court for the passage of an act enabling him to have a new trial. Cock's petition was as follows: —

This petition appears to have been lodged with the Secretary of the province July 15, 1703, but besides a memorandum of its being read in Council on the next day, no record of action upon it has been discovered. He, however, filed a similar petition, later.

The petition of Joseph Hill, one of Penn's attorneys, was as follows:—

The above petition was read in the House of Representatives June 14, 1704, and again on the fifteenth. On the twenty-seventh it appears to have been sent to the Council with the order thereon which constitutes this chapter. On the next day it was concurred in and consented to by the Governour.

Another unsuccessful attempt at legislation upon this subject appears to have sprung from a suggestion by Dudley, November 19, 1703, who, being unable to be present at the Board, was waited upon by the Secretary, by whom he sent a message to the Council expressing his wish to “have the Court to bring forward the things lying before them, as to . . . directing the method for payment of the soldiers.” He subsequently made the same intimation to a committee of the Council which “attended him” with a message praying “his direction for the Court’s procedure.” On the same day it appears a bill “was drawn up, read and debated” in Council. For this, apparently, there was substituted the following bill, which originated in the House, where, on the twenty-fifth, it was read a first and second time, and on the twenty-sixth read a third time, passed to be engrossed, and sent to the Council for concurrence, and there read the same day: —

“An Act Directing how Debentures shall be Granted for souldiers, and Seamen’s Pay &c.

Whereas by reason of the frequent Reforms, and Removes, made of the Forces Imploied in Her Majesty’s Service, and the Taking up of Cloths of Severall Commissaries, the method at present Directed for Granting Debentures, is found not so practicable.

Be it therefore Declared and Enacted by His Excellency the Governour, Councill & Representatives in Generall Court Assembled, and by the Authority of the same, That every Colonel, or chief Officer of any Regiment, from whence any souldiers are or shall be Detached, shall forthwith Transmit to the Auditors of Accounts relating to the War a List of their names, with the Places of their Dwelling, and the Daies on which they were respectively Detached,

And a proper Generall Entry of all Accompts by them so Adjusted, shall be made in Books by them Kept for that end, as well of the whole grosse sum: as what remain<sup>s</sup> due, after subduction as afores<sup>d</sup>

Any Law, Usage, or Custom to the Contrary notwithstanding.

And Be it further Enacted, That where souldiers shall be Posted in small Parties, in the Frontier Towns and Places, not belonging to any Captain of a Company under Pay, the Colonel or chief Officer of the Regiment, within which such souldiers are Posted, shall Certify their Names, and the Time of their service, to the Auditors aforesd<sup>d</sup> in order to the Xmaking out of Debentures for their service.

Provided also that this Act shall Continue in force, untill the last day of November in the Year 1704, and no longer." — Ibid., vol. 101, p. 249.

On the twenty-ninth, after "some amendments proposed," this bill was returned to the House. By the first of December it had got back to the Council, for on that day a message was sent to the House proposing amendments, as shown below. On the second the Council ordered it "to lie for consideration till the next session of this Court," but no further action thereon has been discovered.

The amendments proposed by the Council appear to be the following clauses, written on a separate sheet bearing reference marks corresponding to others on the bill: —

James Russell was relected † commissioner of impost June 28, 1704.

The account referred to in the preamble to this chapter has not been discovered.

The order in Council ‡ for the payment of this allowance was passed July 7, 1704, and the province treasurer's account § contains a charge of payment of £135 3s. 3d. in full for his services as commissioner of impost to June 23, 1704, and "in discharge of his acco<sup>t</sup> of Paym<sup>ts</sup> & Disburstm<sup>ts</sup> allowed by y<sup>e</sup> General Assembly." This is the sum of the allow-ances made to him in this and the following chapter.

The following is the petition mentioned in the preamble to this chapter: —

This petition appears to have been read first, in the House, on the seventh of June. It was read again on the twenty-eighth, when the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the next day it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council * for the payment of this allowance was passed July 7, 1704.

See, also, note to chapter 30, ante.

By resolves, 1703-4, chapter 49, Povey had received a grant of one hundred pounds. That resolve was passed on the thirty-first of July. The Governor's instructions respecting a permanent salary for the Lieutenant-Governor, and the representation of the Lords of Trade for a letter from the queen reinforcing this article of his instructions, and his communication of the same to the Legislature and their action thereon down to the second session, have been given in the notes to resolves, 1703-4, chapters 46 and 114.

In the third session, while the subject of settling a fixed salary upon the Governor was being considered, the Council proposed, as a rider to a resolve which had passed the House for a new issue of bills of credit, that three of the committee that had signed the last issue of bills be retained to sign the new bills, "as also to ascertain the pay of his honor the Lieutenant-Governor as commander of the Castle." This proposal failed, however, and the resolve passed in the form in which it appears on page 38, ante.

The House having expressed their desire that the consideration of the salary of the Lieutenant-Governor be deferred, no other action thereon was had in the fourth session than that shown in the note to resolve, 1703-4, chapter 114; but during the short fifth session of four days, notwithstanding, as has been shown, the Governor, in his opening speech, refrained from mentioning the unwelcome subject of stated salaries, the following entry appears of record:—

"April 21, 1704. John Higginson & Edward Bromfield Esq<sup>s</sup> were sent on a Message to the Representatives, To move the House to the Consideration of an Allowance to his Honour the Lieut: Govern<sup>r</sup>." — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 43.

During the first session of the next Assembly † the Governor "Recommended to the House the Consideration of an Allowance to the Lieut. Governour for his Service." On the twenty-seventh of June the following minute of proceedings appears in the record:—

"A Message was sent by Joseph Lynde Samuel Hayman & Isaac Winslow Esq<sup>s</sup> to move the House to the Consideration of an Allowance to his Honour the Lieut. Gov<sup>r</sup> to the Commissary General & to the Judges." — Ibid., p. 64.

This was followed, two days later, by another message to the House, conveyed by Penn Townsend, "to remind" the representatives of these allowances, and, apparently in response to this message, the resolve which constitutes this chapter was immediately passed in the House. On the thirtieth it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council * for the payment of this allowance being the last to Povey granted by resolve, was passed July 7, 1704, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was duly paid. It was for his services not as lieutenant-governor but solely as commander of the Castle. Although, as is shown on the next page, he left for England in February, 1705-6, he is mentioned as captain until the thirtieth of April following. ‡ Zechariah Tutbill, his successor, continued in command as lieutenant until Colonel Adam Winthrop succeeded as captain, May 1, 1708. §

After a warrant upon the province treasurer for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter had been ordered, the Council, on the last day of the second session, sent the following message to the House :—

To this the House made the following response, which was read in Council on the same day :—

“ In the House of Representatives Augst 19 1704

Notwithstanding this explicit declaration of the House, the Council during the intermission of the Assembly proceeded to affix to Povey's name on the pay-roll of the garrison the sum of fifty pounds as a half-year's salary. The following is the record :—

“ Oct. 9, 1704. A Muster Roll of the Garrison at the Castle, containing an Account of their pay, from the sixth of January 1703. to the fifth of July past, was presented, with blankes for the sum against the names of the Captain & Lieuten<sup>t</sup>. And upon perusal and consideration of the Act of Establishment for that Post, made in the year 1700, and the Grant made by the General Assembly in the year 1703 to his Hon<sup>r</sup> the Present Lt<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> and Commander of the Castle. Advised that the sum of Fifty pounds, be incerted against his name for his Salary that halfe year according to the s<sup>d</sup> Establish<sup>t</sup>.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 88.

The third session began on the twenty-fifth of October. After waiting more than two weeks the representatives sent to the Council the following emphatic protest, which was there read on the tenth of November :—

Whereas, at a Councill held at Boston upon Monday the 9th of Octo<sup>r</sup> 1704, It was advised that the sum of fifty Pounds should be Inserted in the Muster-Roll, against the name of the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Thomas Povey Esq<sup>r</sup> Capt<sup>y</sup> of the Castle, for his salary from the 6th of January to the 5th of July past, as by the Journall of the Councill more at large appear's pursuant whereunto the s<sup>d</sup> sum of fifty Pounds hath been drawn out of the publick Treasury contrary to a vote of this House pass'd the 19th of August being the last day of the last session of this Court.

Resolved That the s<sup>d</sup> Proceeding is arbitrary, and Illegall, a violation of our English, and Charter Priviledges, & Rights and if Precedentiall, of pernicious and fatell Consequence, to all her maj<sup>ties</sup> subjects within this Province, And That This House Expects the s<sup>d</sup> sum of fifty Pounds should be Refunded into the Treasury, by those that drew it out

In the name & by order of the House.

Archives, vol. 71, p. 93.

To this the Council immediately prepared the following reply, which they adopted unanimously, and sent to the House on the eleventh, by a committee consisting of Jonathan Corwin, Samuel Partridge, Ephraim Hunt and Samuel Appleton :—

“ Nov<sup>r</sup> 10th 1704. In Council. Voted,

Resolved That it appears, by an act of the Great and Generall Court or assembly begun and held at Boston the twenty-sixt of May 1703 : &c, for the granting to her Majesty a duty upon wines &c, That the same is granted amongst other vses therein enumerated for the subsisting & paying of wages to soldiers in her majestys service at the Castle, and forts within this province/

That it appears by the Great Charter granted by the Late King William & Queen Mary, upon which the present Government of this province is founded That all moneys raysed by the Generall assembly shall be Issued & Disposed of by warrant under the hand of the Governour with the advice & Consent of the Council for the necessary expense of the province according to such acts as shall be in force. in the province/

That the establishment of the salaries and payments at the Castle and pericularly one hundred pounds per annum to the Captain there was passed by a vote of the Representatives and agreed to by the Council & Consented & subscribed to by the Earle of Bellomont late Governour of this province, in July 1700, & is entered of Record accordingly/

§ Mass. Archives, vol. 122, pp. 299 and 325.

That the order signed by the Governour Thursday y<sup>e</sup> 12th of October pas't for fifty pounds payable To the Honorable Thomas Povey Esq; Captain of the Castle was for six months pay according to the said establishment as by the muster Roll upon file appears

That any Resolve of the representatives Contrary to an act and order of the Governour Council and assembly without the Consent of the Council & agreement of the Governour, is of no force or value in Law according to the establishment of the present Governm<sup>t</sup>

That the Resolve of the House of Representatives Dated the Ninth of November 1704. charging the said warrant & proceeding to be arbitrary and Illegal & a violation of our English and Charter Priviledges &c are altogether mistaken & a very vnjust Reflection upon the Governour and Council, & so farr from being pernicious and of fatal Consequence, that It has been a Just and Due proceeding according to the Charter the Laws of the province & the Just & necessary methods of proceeding to which The Governour and Council are obliged by their oaths." — Ibid., p. 94.

Six days after the Council sent down the foregoing resolves, the following answer was returned by the representatives: —

Resolved, In answer to ye Resolue of ye Councill Non<sup>o</sup> b<sup>r</sup> y<sup>e</sup> 10th 1704 That ye duty of wines, &c was Granted for the Ends mentioned to be drawne out by his Excel<sup>ty</sup> & Councill according to such Acts as should be in force, in y<sup>e</sup> province, & y<sup>t</sup> ye Act for Establishment<sup>t</sup> of salaries at ye Castle made July, 1700 was in force ye 12th of octobr<sup>r</sup> Last when his Excell<sup>ty</sup> & Councill signed ye order for ye Fifty pounds

That ye Establishment<sup>t</sup> was not Intended for more then one year & doth not in strict Construction of ye words reach further; for when it is sayd  $\Psi$  Ann<sup>u</sup> unless it be sayd for some Tearme more or in Generall from time to time  $\Psi$  Ann<sup>u</sup> cannot be vnderstood for more y<sup>n</sup> one year: as for example If a bequest is made of 100<sup>li</sup>  $\Psi$  Ann<sup>u</sup> If it be not sayd for more then one year, ye bequest Cannot be Legally demanded for more

Read in Council." — Ibid., vol. 48, p. 367.

A vote+ of advice and consent was passed by the Council, January 12, 1705-6, for the issuing of a warrant to pay the muster-rolls of the garrison under his command from January 4, 1704-5, to October 31, 1705. His name heads the roll as captain. At the same time a vote† of advice and consent was passed that a warrant issue to reimburse the province treasurer for £708 10s. 8d., which he had paid to Tuthill in advance of the approval of the account of subsistence of the same garrison from April 6, 1705, to January 6, 1705-6. Povey's last appearance at the council board was January 28, 1705-6, on which day a warrant§ on the province treasurer was advised and consented to for paying him twenty-five pounds for three months' service from the thirty-first of October, he designing to sail from Piscataqua "by way of Lisbon."

His intention to return to England was thus published in the News-Letter: —

"Piscataqua, Febr 15. On Monday 11 Currant arrived here Samuel Dutch in a Sloop from Boston, having on Board the Hon. Col. Tho. Povey Esqr. Lieut. Gov. of Her Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts-Bay, who intends on Thursday next to Imbark on Board Capt. Jarvenin for Lisbon, and so to England." — No. 96.

A later issue of the same paper announced that Captain Jarvenin sailed on the day of the date of the above entry.

The controversy above described, which was started by Dudley's instructions, assumed a graver import later on, and was one of the grievances which led up to the separation from the mother country.

* See note to resolves, 1703-4, chapter 14. There is no express record of the concurrence of the Council in this amendment by the House; still, the action of the Council in conformity with one part of the resolves implies that they accepted the whole, and renders the presumption conclusive that the amendment of the House to the original resolve was in force: otherwise the anomaly would be presented of the operation of a qualified concurrence as if it were absolute and unconditional.

Although in Dudley's instructions the judges were not specifically designated as among the officers for whom he was to endeavor to procure fixed salaries he had in his first speech to the Assembly made for them the appeal printed in the note to resolve 1703-4, chapter 46.

What he said to the Assembly in his speech in October following appears in the notes to resolves, 1702, chapter 64,* and 1703-4, chapter 46.† This was repeated in his speeches. May 27 and July 28, 1703, as shown in the notes to 1703-4, chapters 46 and 50.

As has appeared in the note to resolve 1703-4, chapter 114, the Governor, on the first of September, 1703, communicated the queen's commands relative to procuring a stated salary for the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, and, at the opening of the October session, communicated a letter from the queen reinforcing them, but nothing further was urged by him in behalf of the judges. On the twenty-ninth of June, 1704, the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed by the representatives, and on the thirtieth it was concurred in by the Council and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council‡ for the payment of this allowance was passed July 7, 1704, and the province treasurer's account § shows that it was duly paid.

Chap. 34. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 67.

The original, taken years ago from the state archives, was recently purchased of a dealer in autographs, by Grenville H. Norcross, Esq., to whose courtesy the Editor is indebted for an opportunity to compare it with the record, and to make use of the memoranda thereon of facts not to be found elsewhere. It originated in the House June 29, 1704, and was forthwith sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the next day it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council|| for the payment of this allowance was passed July 7, 1704, and the amount thereof, and also the additional sums of £16 10s. allowed by chapter 87, and four pounds allowed by chapter 126, post, is charged in the treasurer's account § as paid, being a total of £34 10s.

The fulfilment of the design to send commissioners to Albany was postponed from time to time on account of actual and threatened hostilities on the western frontiers and in northern New York. By the following entry it appears that it was more than a month after the repulse of the attack on Lancaster that the subject of the treaty was resumed and the commissioners received their credentials and instructions:—

"Sept. 7, 1704. The Draught of a Commission and Instructions to Penn Townsend and John Leverett Esq<sup>rs</sup> for the Treaty with the Maquas and other Nations of the Western Indians, were read and agreed to. Advised and Consented That a suitable Vessel be taken up to attend the s<sup>d</sup> Commissioners for Albany, and that a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to advance and pay fifty pounds to Penn Townsend Esq<sup>r</sup> towards the Charge and expences for himselfe and John Leverett Esq<sup>r</sup> in their voyage to Albany, agreeable to a resolve pass'd by the General Assembly."—Executive Records, vol. 4, p. 64.

The account¶ of the province treasurer shows that the fifty pounds was duly paid.

The following extract from a report by Vandreuil and Beauharnois, to Pontchartrain, shows that they were aware of the effect of the hostile demonstrations from Canada in delaying the conference between the commissioners and the Five Nations:—

"Though this party broke up, it did not fail, My Lord, to cost the enemy considerable sums; the advices they received of it having obliged them, not only to postpone their meeting the Iroquois nations, but, also, to remain a great portion of the summer idle not knowing where this party might strike. Of this we were informed by letters brought to us by some of our Indians, detached from the main body after having killed those of the English who were conveying the letters to the other villages and forts of their nation."—Documents Relating to the Colonial History of the State of New York, vol. IX., p. 764.

Unless the following entry in Sewall's Diary fixes it, the date of Captain Tuthill's assumption of his duties as lieutenant of the Castle has not been ascertained:—

In his petition to the General Court assembled October 29, 1707, Tuthill avers that "It is now upwards of three Years that Yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner has had the Honour of Serving Her Mat<sup>ies</sup> and this Province in the Post of Leut & Maj<sup>r</sup> Gunner at Her Mat<sup>ies</sup> Castle William,"** etc.

Seemingly confirmatory of this is the following obituary notice of him in the Boston News-Letter of January, 1722; for though not holding, as there stated, the post of captain of the Castle for the period mentioned, he, as lieutenant, was in chief command after the retirement of Povey:—

"Boston, On the Lord's Day Night, the 7th Instant, Died here Capt. Zechariah Tuthill, aged 52 Years. He was a Gentleman entirely and universally esteemed of, and favoured by, all Degrees of People, both High and Low that knew him, being one of a Just, Affordable, Courteous, and Generous Spirit: Adorning the Post he sustained, as Captain of His Majesty's Castle William (the chief Fort of this Province) for about 19 Years past; The duty whereof he singularly and diligently attended to and carefully and faithfully discharged, to the General content and satisfaction, both of the Government, his Superior Officers and Soldiers, as well as the Inhabitants, and therefore being greatly beloved by all in his Life, he is now as much lamented in his Death. He was Honourably Interred on Thursday last the 11th Currant.' — News-Letter, Jan. 15, 1722." — Sewall's Diary, vol. III., p. 298, note.

On the other hand the declaration in his petition above quoted seems to indicate that he assumed the captaincy of the Castle in 1704. He certainly held that office March 21, 1703-4, at which date the representatives requested the Governor to order him to be examined on complaints made by certain soldiers of the garrison, and the Lieutenant-Governor who, as commander of the Castle, was his superior, denied the complainants' charges.

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed July 7, 1704, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was duly paid.

In his speech ‡ to the representatives at the beginning of this session the Governor, after announcing that the expedition advised by the former Assembly had sailed from Piscataqua about ten days before, and that a scout-shallop had been ordered to bring weekly intelligence from the forces, and that the frontiers had been "reduced to strict garrisons," proceeded, "I am very sensible the Charge of the Province is very great to support these Services, But the Assembly have at all Times (I thank them) Agreed in the Necessity & have cheerfully granted the necessary Charge.

I hope We shall never fall below the Courage & Resolution of English Men to support her Majesties Honour our own just Right to this Province with all humble Submission & Trust in the Favour of Almighty God to defend & maintain us."

The resolve which constitutes this chapter originated in the House June 28, 1704, and was sent to the Council for concurrence. On the thirtieth it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

This resolve was the response to the Governor's suggestion for the supply of the treasury. An act § granting a tax on polls and estates for redeeming the bills printed and emitted by virtue of this chapter was passed on the thirtieth of June the next year and published on the sixth of July. The order which constitutes this chapter was passed on the last day of the session. After prologation further steps relating to the address were taken by the Council. July 3, 1704, "John Foster and Andrew Belcher Esqrs with the Secretary" were "named a Committee of the Board to joyn the Committee of the Representatives to prepare an address and Memorial to her Majesty humbly to represent the State of this Province."¶ By the twelfth, Addington, who had been appointed chairman of the joint committee, "reported the draughts agreed to by the Committees which were read, accepted and Ordered to be engrossed & properly signed in the name of both houses."¶ No copy of this address or of the memorial has been discovered either in the English or the state archives or in contemporaneous newspapers; but a controversial pamphlet** printed at London, in 1707, contains the following, which has every appearance of being a correct impression of the original:—

"To the Queen's most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

It is upwards of two Years since the Arrival of Colonel Dudley, your Majesties Captain-General, and Governour in chief here: For whose Appointment to that Station, we formerly humbly Address'd your Majesty, with the Thanks of this Province; and we have been made sensible of his careful Management of your Majesties Interests, and the Government of your good Subjects; particularly of his great Application, and the Cost expended, to have stedyed the Eastern Indians in their Obedience to the Crown of England, and your Majesty's Sovereignty over them, whereof they have formerly made their repeated Recognition and Submission thereto; and more lately renewed the same, in two Attendencies upon his Excellency, with Protestations of all good Fidelity. the Influence of the French Emissaries residing among them, they have for Twelve Months past, broken out, and continued in open Rebellion and Hostility; and with the Assistance of French Officers and Souldiers, from the several Parts, have committed divers Outrages, and barbarous Murders, upon many of your Majesties good Subjects.

Which Irruption of the Indians, has oblig'd the Governour to Garrison all the Frontiers of more than Two Hundred Miles extant; and to send forth greater and lesser Parties into the Desert, in places almost inaccessible, if possible, to find out those bloody Rebels in their obscure Recesses under covert of a vast hideous Wilderness (their manner of living being much like that of the Wild Beasts of the same) and to give Check to their Insolencies.

And there are not less than Nineteen Hundred Effective Men, now in Arms under pay, upon our Eastern and Western Frontiers; besides the Vessels and Men, necessarily employ'd for guarding of the Sea-Coast, against the Infestings of the French from Canada, Port-Royal, and the West-Indies, who endeavour to intercept our Supplies, and disturb our Fishery: So that we are at an exceeding great, and almost insupportable Charge; and see not the end thereof. We are ready to think it highly reasonable, That the neighbouring Governments being secur'd thereby, should bear a just Quota of the said Charge. Which is humbly submitted to your Majesties great Wisdom to direct.

We have therefore accounted it our Duty, by an Express, humbly to represent and lay before your Sacred Majesty, the very distressing Circumstances of your Majesties good Subjects, within this your Province, who have hitherto cheerfully undergone the sore Fatigue and Charge of their Defence and Pursuits, made after the Enemy and Rebels; and that in the greatest Severities and Heights of the Winter, exposing themselves to the last Sufferings. Being sensible, that the Advances made by the Governour in the Service have been absolutely necessary; and that his Care has been, to keep the Expense as low as the Emergencies would bear; And we doubt not of a good Concurrence at all times, of the Council and Assembly, with the Governour, to advance both the Men and Money necessary, to the utmost of their Ability.

We crave also by this Opportunity, humbly to express to your Majesty, our just Resentment and Detestation of the Piracies and Robberies lately committed by Captain Quelch and Company: And we hope the speedy Justice that has been done upon those vile Criminals, will vindicate the Government from the Imputation of giving any Countenance to, or favouring of such wicked Actions. A full and particular Account of the whole Process, and of the diligent Care taken to recover and secure the Treasure so ill gotten, will be humbly laid before your Majesty by our Governour.

May it please your Majesty, There are several Articles and Stores of War, necessary for the Safety and Defence of your Majesties Interest, within this Province, that cannot be supply'd here; which we have most humbly offer'd to your Majesty, in a Memorial accompanying this our Address.

And if your Majesty of your Royal Bounty, shall be graciously pleas'd to order, That they be supply'd out of your Majesties Stores, it will greatly encourage us in the Service of your Sacred Majesty: being always resolv'd to maintain the Honour and Dignity of your Majesties Crown and Government over us; and, by the Favour of Almighty God, to maintain our Station in this Province; which we hope, upon the restoring of Peace, will, by the increase of People and Trade therein, render it self a further Honour and Advantage to your Majesty and the Crown of England; for whose long and prosperous Reign over us, and a happy Succession of Protestant Princes, We shall ever pray.

Madam, Your Majesties most Loyal and Dutiful Subjects,

For the emission of bills of credit under this chapter, although they were ordered to be put out by the treasurer in the manner in which he issued the five thousand pounds authorized by chapter 38, ante, it was thought requisite for the Governor and Council to draw a general order or warrant for the whole amount, as follows: —

“Aug. 21, 1704. Pursuant to a Resolve past at the last Session of the General Assembly, that the Treasurer be directed and Impowred to emit the sum of seven thousand pounds, of Bills of Credit on this Province, which he has received or shall receive into the Treasury upon the same fund and for the same uses, as the Five Thousand pounds ordered to be made and emitted at the former session of the said Court.

His Excellency signed a general Warrant or Order to the Treasurer to repeat and Emit the above sum of seven Thousand pounds, of Bills of Credit accordingly, in such payments for which he shall receive Warrants from himselfe, with the advice & consent of the Council.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 61.

By this chapter it appears that Captain Nathaniel Cary was appointed by the Governor as messenger or agent to convey the address and memorial of the Legislature to the queen. Cary received instructions from the Governor, which are thus referred to by Palfrey: —

“In July of this year, [1704] Dudley sent one Captain Cary to England, to represent to Lord Nottingham the state of things in Massachusetts, and procure arms and stores. ‘Keep a good courage and temper,’ — so Dudley instructed him (July 20), — ‘and be loath to return without some favorable provision for us from her Majesty, and represent the government and its present state with the Indian enemy justly and honorably, as you ought." — Palfrey's Hist. of New England, vol. IV, p. 266, note.

On the nineteenth of this month there was presented to the Council and accepted an account of the cost of the cargo of the Sea Flower on her voyage outward, amounting to £340 13s. 3½*d.*, and of the "charge of outset and victualling of the sd sloop,"* amounting to £70 1s. 11½*d.*, which make up the gross amount stated in the report incorporated in this chapter, and upon this account a warrant was issued for the payment of said gross sum to Andrew Belcher, he having advanced the same for the use of the province.

Cary sailed in the Sea Flower on the twenty-second of July,† taking out with him, as prisoners, Captain Larramore and Lieutenant Joseph Wells, who were sent to England to be tried before the Lord High Admiral as accessaries to the piracy of John Welch and others. The sloop was captured by the enemy on her voyage out, and her commander and Cary were carried prisoners to France. They escaped, and Cary proceeded to London to conduct the business which he was commissioned to transact there for the province, while Welch returned to Boston. Upon receiving tidings of the capture of the Sea Flower, a vote of advice for paying to Belcher the value of the sloop (£580 2s. 6*d.*), according to the agreement of the committee, ratified in this chapter, was passed by the Council.‡

The province treasurer's account § from May 31, 1704, to May 31, 1705, contains a charge of this amount as paid to Belcher.

Although no copy of the memorial to the queen has been found, the following correspondence between the Secretary of the Lords of Trade and Captain Cary, taken in connection with the last two paragraphs of the address, printed in the note to chapter 40, ante, sufficiently indicates the nature of the aid sought for in this application: —

Rounds of shott cannot be thought sufficient for the use of those Gunns: Which also oblige's me to let yo<sup>r</sup> Lordships know, That I am assured by the same Gentlemen that 100. barrels of Powder are requisite for the Great Gunns and small Arms, altho' by a mistake in my last Memorial I computed that 50. barrels would be sufficient.

The Number of small Arms not being mentioned in my former Memorial I take leave also humbly to lay before your Lordships: That 500. small Arms and Cutlasses with 100. pair of Pistols and Bayonets are the lest that will be necessary for Defence of Her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Province: All which is humbly Submitted by

p. 78.

Cary appears to have written to Dudley informing him of the success of his negotiations for a supply of ordnance and stores, but the letter or letters have not been found, and the only evidence that such correspondence took place is the record of a communication from the Governor to the Council on the fifteenth of May, 1705, of “a letter from Capt<sup>n</sup> Carey from London of the 2<sup>d</sup> of March past, importing that her Maj<sup>ty</sup> of her Royal bounty had been pleased graciously to order twenty Cannon wth other Stores for Her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s service at the Castle within this Province; and that he intended to ship them on the first good ship bound hither” || This letter probably accompanied the above correspondence between Cary and Pople.

For other particulars relating to this voyage, see notes to chapter 47, post, and resolves, 1705-6, chapter 93.

¶ The earliest form of this commission preserved in the archives was that of the commissary-general in Phipps's successful expedition against Port Royal in Nova Scotia. It ran as follows: —

“Boston in the Massachusetts Colony of New-England./.

Whereas you are appointed Commissary General to all the forces now in their Majesties Service on the Expedition against the common Enemy in the parts of Nova Scotia an L'accadie under the conduct of S<sup>r</sup> William Phipps K<sup>nt</sup> Commander Cheife These are in their Ma<sup>ties</sup> names King William & Queen Mary to Require & Authorise you to take under your care and Charge all the stores of Provisions of every kind and cloathing that are or shall be provided for that Service and Care-office seems to have exercised the functions of adjutant general and quartermaster general, as well as of purveyor and dispenser of ammunition and stores of war, and provider of transportation.

Belcher held this post prior to July, 1703, and his last accounts in that capacity were presented to the Governor and Council and referred to a committee * of that Board on the sixth day of September that year, who, three days later, reported favorably thereon, and a warrant † was issued for the payment of the balance claimed by him. In the province treasurer's account ‡ for this year there is a general charge of £10,065 ls. 1d., which presumably included the amount of this warrant.

Before these accounts were thus committed a message to the representatives was sent from the Council "to propose an establishment for a commissary-general and two sub-commissaries for the forces" then raising for the autumn campaign. On the eighth the following entry appears of record:—

"Sept. 8, 1703. Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>r</sup> was chosen by the Vote of the Council & the Representatives to be Commissary Gen<sup>l</sup> or Commissioner for War." — Council Records, vol. VII., p. 433.

The next year, during the vacation after the first session of the General Court, the following order was passed by the Council:—

"Aug. 4, 1704. Ordered, That John Walley Esq<sup>r</sup> and Cap<sup>t</sup> Samuel Checkley § be and hereby are appointed auditors of the accounts of Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>r</sup> Commissary General, to inspect and Examin the same, in order to prepare them to be laid before the General Assembly." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 53.

Four days later the Council advised that a warrant be drawn upon the province treasurer for paying to Belcher as commissary-general two thousand pounds, on account, "towards his disbursements and advance of supplies to the garrisons, the Marching Forces in the service and vessels for war, &c." ¶

On the second day of the second session the report mentioned in the preamble to this chapter was read in the Council and sent down to the House with the vote of acceptance to be concurred in. On the next day the vote was returned concurred in by the representatives and was consented to by the Governor. On the twenty-first a warrant was issued for the payment of the balance of £865 l. 2s. 6d. ¶ and this amount, is certainly included in the general amount of £9059 8s. 1d. entered as paid to him in the province treasurer's account.*

In the unfortunate expedition led by Phips against Canada the next summer, Dering was again appointed commissary-general. His new commission which differed slightly from the former was as follows:—

"The Governour and Council of their Mat<sup>ies</sup> Colony of the Massachusetts Bay in New-England./

To Mr Henry Dering Commissary General

Whereas you are appointed Comissary General to the Forces rayسد and to be rayسد for their mat<sup>ies</sup> Service in the Expedition intended for Canada against the comon Enemy French and Indians, under the conduct of Sr William Phipps Knt General. The following later form is of the commission to a commissary, who, although inferior to the commissary-general, was chief commissary of the expedition under General Nicholson against Port Royal:—

"Massachusetts./ By his Excellcy the Governo<sup>r</sup> & a
To Arthur Jeffrys Gent. Greeting.—

For some account of the office of commissary-general and of its reinstatement see the note to the preceding chapter.

During the previous session this year* the Governor had recommended to the House the consideration of an allowance to the Commissary-General. This recommendation he renewed the present session, as appears by the following entry:—

“ Aug. 19, 1704. His Excellency directed Mr Speaker & the House to attend him in the Council Chamber, And being come up, His Excellency recommended to the House the Consideration of a meet Allowance to Mr Commissary General for his great Pains & Service in that Post for the Year past.” — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 72.

On the same day the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed by the House, concurred in by the Council and consented to by the Governor.

On the twenty-first of September a warrant † for the payment of the sum granted by this chapter was ordered to be drawn upon the province treasurer, which was duly paid, as appears by his accounts. ‡

The trial of Captain John Quelch and his companions is memorable as being the first trial in New England under the act of parliament 11 and 12 Wm. III., chap. 7, ¶ for the more effectual suppression of piracy. Kidd and his associates, whose trial and conviction for piracy took place in London, had been sent to England by Bellomont** to be tried

¶ The trial for piracy of Robert Munday at Newport, Rhode Island, April 3, 1703, was by a jury, and before the ordinary local tribunal having jurisdiction of criminal cases. This was in open disregard of the king's commission under the act 11 and 12 Wm. III. The only justification pleaded by Governor Cranston for his granting commissions to privateers was that, since the Rhode Island charter had conferred the “Power of Vice Admiralty he was determined to Exercise that power . . . untill their Charter was actually and wholly taken away;” and presumably, for the same reason, he claimed the right to try admiralty cases in the local courts.—Mass. Archives, vol. 2, pp. 135 and 150.

** Judge Sewall objected, it would seem with good reason, that he knew of no law for sending Kidd out of the province to be tried. Had Kidd been tried here, he must have escaped the death penalty, unless convicted of murder, since by the law of the province the crime of robbery was not capital whether committed on the land or on the high seas.

by a commission of oyer and terminer under the act 28 Hen. VIII., chap. 15. But the difficulties and delays experienced in that proceeding, and the expense incident thereto, were among the considerations which induced parliament by the act 11 and 12 Wm. III., to confer upon the crown authority to issue commissions for the trial of pirates by courts of admiralty, out of the realm. Such a commission was sent to Governor Bellomont for the trial of pirates, from time to time, in Massachusetts, New Hampshire or Rhode Island.* This commission, which bears date November 23, 1700, arrived † in New England after the death of Bellomont, and while Stoughton was acting as his successor, but it was so comprehensive in its direction that it extended of its own force to any of Bellomont's successors, under King William. Upon the demise of the crown the right to act under this commission was renewed by the proclamation of Queen Anne for continuing in office all persons holding places of authority or government under her predecessor, and by the queen's instructions to Governor Dudley recognizing the force of the former commission, and expressing her will and pleasure that in all matters relating to the prosecution of pirates he govern himself according to the act and commission aforesaid.

The offences for which Quelch and his companions were tried were committed on board a brigantine of about eighty tons — the Charles, owned by Charles (afterwards Sir Charles) Hobby, Colonel Nicholas Paige, William Clarke, Benjamin Gallop and John Colman, leading citizens and merchants of Boston, and the circumstances, briefly narrated, were as follows.

The Charles was fitted out by her owners as a privateer for an intended expedition against the French enemies of England in Acadia and Newfoundland. On the thirteenth of July, 1703, her commander, Captain Daniel Ploverman, received from Governor Dudley a commission to command this private vessel of war in the pursuit of pirates and the queen's enemies, together with instructions to govern his conduct during the cruise. As late as the first of August, the Charles, which in the mean time had been manned and equipped, was riding off Marblehead, and on that day Captain Ploverman wrote to two of her owners informing them of his inability to take her to sea on account of his severe illness, and suggesting that they come the next day to "take some speedy care in saving what we can." The owners, in response to this letter, went to Marblehead, but Ploverman was then too ill to see them, although able to write to them again, urging them to have the vessel sent to Boston and there to have all things aboard of her landed, to prevent embezzlement, and dissuading them from the purpose of sending her out under a new commander, declaring that "it will not do with these people" (meaning his crew), and that "the sooner" the "things are landed on shore the better."

Before the owners could take effectual measures to stop the vessel she proceeded to sea. Prior to her sailing, the crew, under the lead of one of their number, locked the commander into the cabin where he lay sick, and then, conformably to the resolution of Quelch, who came on board after the captain had been secured, they, under his command, made for the South Atlantic instead of their intended destination. Some time after Quelch came the captain was thrown overboard, but whether alive or dead it does not appear. Off the coast of Brazil, not far from shore, between latitude seven degrees, and thirty-six degrees, south, it appears that they captured, between November 15, 1703, and February 17, 1703-4, nine vessels — of which five were brigantines (the largest being of about forty tons); one was a small shallop; one a small fishing-boat; one other a boat not particularly described; and one a ship of about two hundred tons, loaded with hides and tallow and carrying twelve guns and about thirty-five men. All these vessels, apparently, were the property of subjects of the king of Portugal, an ally of the queen of England, ‡ and from them they took various commodities belonging to the Portuguese, such as fish, salt, sugar, molasses, rum, beer, rice, and flour, earthenware, linen, cloth and silk, besides one hundred weight of gold-dust, gold and silver coins to the value of one thousand pounds or more, two negro boys, and some great and small guns, ammunition, small arms, sails, etc., — of the total value of some seven hundred pounds more. One of the vessels they sunk, and another they appear to have kept as a tender.

On the eighteenth of August the owners of the Charles, learning nothing certain of the fate of their vessel, and concluding from various circumstances that she was bound to the West Indies, wrote a letter (enclosing an official letter from Governor Dudley) to six plantations in the West Indies, respectively, setting forth their interest in her, and authorizing their correspondents to take proper steps to prosecute their claims and recover their property. No tidings of her, however, appear to have been received until after the middle of May, 1704, when her arrival was thus announced in the Boston News-Letter: —

* The original commission, rendered nearly illegible by neglect, still remains in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. A similar commission to Bellomont, as governor of New York, is in the New York State Library at Albany, and is recorded in the second volume of Commissions, in the Secretary's office, and is printed in Benedict's Admiralty Practice, third edition (1894), pp. 73-79.

‡ The treaty of amity and alliance between Great Britain and Portugal, which was signed at Lisbon, May 16, 1703 (renewed by article XXVI. of the treaty of 1810), contains the following, among other articles, as translated from the Latin: —

"I. All former Treaties between the above-said Powers are hereby approved, confirmed and ratified, and are ordered to be exactly and faithfully observed, except in so far as by the present Treaty is otherwise provided and established; so that there shall be between the said Kingdoms and States, their people and subjects, a sincere friendship and perfect amity; they shall all of them mutually assist one another; and each of the said Powers shall promote the interest and advantage of the rest, as if it were his own.

XV. The personal privileges and freedom of trade which the subjects of Great Britain, and the States of the United Provinces, at present enjoy in Portugal, the Portuguese shall, in their turn, enjoy in the Dominions of Great Britain and the States of the United Provinces.

XVIII. Piratical ships, of whatever nation, shall not only not be permitted or received into the ports which their Portuguese and Britannie Majesties, and the States General of the United Provinces, possess in the East Indies, but shall be deemed the common enemies of the Portuguese, the English and the Dutch." — Hertslet's Treaties and Conventions, etc., vol. 2, p. 22.

"Arrived at Marble-head, Capt. Quelch in the Brigantine that Capt. Plowman went out in, are said to come from New-Spain & have made a good Voyage." — No. 5.

The crew seem either to have landed at different points along shore, or to have quickly dispersed after landing, for some of them were at Salem, others at Marblehead and others, still, in Boston before all the arrests were made. They had not, however, been long on shore before so many circumstances transpired leading to the suspicion that they had committed acts of piracy against subjects of the king of Portugal, that the story which they had invented of recovering great treasure from a wreck began to be doubted, and even the owners of the Charles became so suspicious of their criminal misconduct that they informed against them in writing to avoid the penalties denounced against accessaries by the act of parliament.*

The informers were Colman and Clarke, and the magistrates applied to were Isaac Addington, secretary of the province, and Paul Dudley, attorney-general. This was on the twenty-third of May, and it would seem that Dudley immediately set out to capture them, since, on that day, Judge Sewall, who was returning from Newbury, records that at the tavern in Lynn he met Dudley "in egre pursuit of the Pirats,"† having already captured one whom he turned over to Sewall. Sewall sent the captive to Boston under guard of two men, charging them to convey him to Secretary Addington.‡

On the next day, in the Governor's absence, the Lieutenant-Governor, in the performance of his official duty and in compliance with standing instructions to the Governor from the Privy Council, issued the following proclamation:—

"By the Honourable Thomas Holey Esq. Lieut. Governour. and Commander in Chief, for the time being, of Her Majesties Province of the Massachusetts-Bay in New-England.

On the twenty-sixth news came from Rhode Island that five of Quelch's crew had purchased a small, decked boat and sailed, it was thought, for Long Island, in season to avoid arrest upon an order sent express from Boston. One of Quelch's men was seized by order of Governor Cranston and sent "from constable to constable" to Boston.

On the fourth of June Lieutenant-Governor Usher informed the council of New Hampshire that he had received a letter from Governor Dudley, dated the first of June, "signifying his pleasure to have the Pirate prisoner sent to Boston;" and that he had also "received a Proclamation relating to the Pirats." This proclamation was duly published. On the eleventh Usher communicated another letter from Dudley "intimating that Loramore was turned Rogue," and desiring that steps be taken to apprehend him and his company. — Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II., pp. 434-437.

§ Mutilated.

On the twenty-ninth Governor Dudley, having returned, issued the following proclamation:—

“By His Excellency, Joseph Dudley Esq. Captain General and Governour in Chief, in & over Her Majesties Provinces of the Massachusetts-Bay & New-Hampshire in New-England in America.

The News-Letter in which this proclamation appears contains the following additional item:—

“Besides these mentioned in Custody already, there is also Christopher Scudamore, Rich. Lawrance & Matt. Pimer.”

Following this proclamation, Governor Cranston issued one of the same purport in Rhode Island.

In his speech to the House on the first of June the Governor alluded to his efforts to bring the pirates to justice, as follows:—

“The last Week has discovered a very notorious Piracy committed upon her Majesties Allies the Portugnese on the Coast of Brasil by Quelch & Company in the Charles Galley, For the Discovery of which all possible Methods have been used, And the severest Process against those vile Men shall be speedily taken, that the Province be not thereby disparaged, as they have been heretofore; And I hope every good Man will do his Duty according to the several Proclamations to discover the Pirates & their Treasure, Agreeable to the Acts of Parliament in that Case made & provided.” — Council Records, vol. VIII, p. 47.

On the sixth, several ounces of gold having been brought to the council board as part of the treasure taken by the pirates, “His Excellency communicated to the Council the Copies of two of his Instructions from her Majesty the one referring to proceeding against pirates pursuant to the Act of Parliament, for the more effectual suppression of Piracy, and a Commission already sent to this Province directing him to governe him-self relating to Pirates according to the Intent of the Act, and Commission afore mentioned.

And the other relating to the securing of Pirates goods,”* whereupon a commission of inquiry was issued by the Governor, directing Samuel Sewall, acting chief justice of the Superior Court,† Nathaniel Byfield, judge of the admiralty, and Paul Dudley, attorney-

† Addington, who, after Winthrop's short term, succeeded Stoughton as chief justice, offered to resign his commission July 23, 1703, but was suffered to retain it with the understanding that “no further service was expected from him therein at present” and that the Governor and Council would consider the subject of filling that place “as soon as possible.” After this and until Wait Winthrop was reappointed, February 19, 1707-8, Sewall presided, and writs bore teste in his name.

general, "to repair to Marblehead, & to send for and examin all persons of whom they shall have Information or just ground of suspition, [that they] do conceal and detain" gold and treasure brought in by the pirates, "either at Marblehead, or parts adjacent, and to take what they shall find into their hands; as also to secure any of the Pirates."*

This was done in compliance with the spirit of the royal instructions; but in order to preserve the appearance of disinterestedness and to avoid a possible accusation of cupidity or nepotism, on the part of the Dudleys — the Attorney-General being the Governor's son — Mr. Thomas Palmer seems to have been quietly substituted for the latter, although he is not mentioned by Sewall as acting with him and Byfield after their sitting at Marblehead. By the seventh, about seventy ounces of gold and nearly an equal weight of silver plate had been brought to the council board by different persons who had received the same of Quelch or his men.

The commissioners proceeded to Marblehead, by way of Salem, where they learned that two of Quelch's company were at Cape Ann, intending to embark on the "Larramore galley," which was at that place under command of Captain Thomas Larramore, a noted privateer.

Although it was late in the evening the commissioners forthwith made out a warrant authorizing a revenue officer at Salem to proceed to the Cape and arrest the pirates. On the eighth, the commissioners held their court in Marblehead, "at Captain Brown's, by the fireside" — Major Stephen Sewall, clerk of the courts at Salem, and brother of the Judge, accompanying them. Early in the morning of the ninth, before the commissioners were out of bed, an express from Cape Ann brought "an account of nine or eleven pirates, double-armed, seen in a lone house there." The commissioners sent for John Legg of Marblehead, colonel of the Essex south regiment, and directed him to have detached and sent from the "northward" companies under his command "such parties as they could raise, to Cape Ann, upon this extraordinary occasion." They also wrote to Colonel John Wainwright, at Ipswich, "to do the like in his regiment, intimating that we were moving thither ourselves to be witness of their forwardness for her majesty's service." The bearer of this letter to Wainwright was instructed to show it to Captain Thomas Fiske of Wenham, on his way. The commissioners, having joined the Rev. Samuel Cheever, the minister of Marblehead, in a prayer for success, followed their messenger as far as Salem, where they took an affidavit of one person to support their proceedings, and sent him on to Boston to report the situation to the Governor.

Major Sewall embarked at Salem on the Trial, a shallop, and, accompanied by the pinnace belonging to Salem Fort, and about twenty men of the militia company under his command, proceeded to Cape Ann by water — following Colonel Legg and the Attorney-General who had already sailed from Marblehead.

Sewall and Byfield, attended by William Gidney, sheriff of Essex, proceeded overland under escort of part of the troop of horse commanded by Captain John Turner. At Beverly, Lieutenant Robert Briscoe, who commanded another troop, was notified, and started for the Cape by way of Chebacco. At Manchester, where tidings of the expedition had preceded them, they found the town militia company "mustered upon the top of a rock," who joined the escort. As they approached Gloucester, the commissioners were met by the bearer of a letter from Dudley and Legg, informing them that Larramore "sailed in the morning and took in the pirates at the head of the cape."† The messenger was inclined to discourage the commissioners from pushing on; but after sending back the sheriff with directions to forward post to the Governor the letter they had received from Dudley and Legg, and parting with such of the Salem troop as were inclined to go back upon learning that "Mr. Dudley had sent to stay the Ipswich regiment," they pressed on to the town, and awaited the arrival of the shallop and pinnace, which came in before dinner.

Having dined, the commissioners came to the resolution to send after Larramore. It having been found difficult to enlist a sufficient number of men, under the person first selected to lead in the pursuit of the fugitives, Major Sewall offered to go himself, upon which Captain Turner, Lieutenant Briscoe, "and many good men" volunteered to serve under him, and a company of forty-three, including the captain, quickly embarked on the shallop. This was towards evening. There was no wind, and so, after sunset, attended by the pinnace, the overloaded vessel rowed out of the harbor bound for the Isles of Shoals, giving the commissioners and the soldiers on land "three handsome cheers," at their departure.

Sewall and Byfield remained at Gloucester over night, edified by evening and morning prayers, "for the expedition," by the minister of the town, the Rev. John White, while Dudley proceeded to Salem escorted by the Beverly troop.

The commissioners began their homeward journey early the next morning, reaching Salem "quickly after nine." Here Sewall dined with his brother's wife, and administered what cheer he could to her and the townspeople who were in terror at the thought of the risk his brother and the men under him were running in their, possibly, bloody encounter with pirates whose "wickedness and despair," and whose "great guns and other warlike preparations," boded great danger if not disaster. Dudley having rejoined them, the three proceeded to Lynn, where Byfield left them for Cambridge, and Sewall and the Attorney-General kept on to Boston.

Meanwhile the shallop and pinnace had reached the Isles of Shoals about seven o'clock on the morning of the tenth. By secreting all their men except four fishermen the pursuers, without exciting suspicion, came up with Larramore, three of whose men, with three of the pirates, they were pleased to see go ashore at Star Island in the boat belonging to the galley. There was some commotion among Larramore's men, and a brief show of resistance, when they discovered Sewall, but when the latter had shown his men, armed, and ready to board, Larramore's only excuse for declining an invitation to come on board the shallop was that he was prevented by his boat's being ashore. Sewall made this excuse a pretext for manning the pinnace to go on board the galley, which was so quickly accomplished that Larramore readily consented to hold a conference with Sewall on shore. This conference resulted in the issue of an order from Larramore to his lieutenant to come ashore with one of the pirates, and another order putting the galley under command of one of Sewall's men until they returned. Thus the capture of the galley was effected, as Sewall's brother records in his diary, "without striking a stroke or firing a gun."

Having secured the pirates, together with the officers of Larramore's galley, as shown by the News-Letter's account given below, Sewall set sail for Salem with his captives, and, with the galley in tow, soon reached Cape Ann, where the Gloucester men were set ashore with directions to notify the inhabitants that William Jones and Peter Roach, two of the pirates, who had lost their way, had been left on the cape by their companions. These pirates surrendered on the afternoon of the following day, and were committed to Salem jail.

The following is from the News-Letter, number nine:—

"Salem, June 11. [1704.] This Afternoon, Major Sewall brought in to this Port, the Larrimore Galley, and Seven Pirates, viz. Erasmus Peterson, Charles James, John Carter, John Pitman, Francis King, Charles King, John King, whom he with his Company Surprized and Seized at the Isles of Sholes the 10th. Instant, viz. four of them on Board the Larrimore Galley, and three on Shoar on Starr Island, being assisted by John Hinckes and Thomas Phipps Esqrs. Two of Her Majesties Justices of New-Hampshire, who were happily there, together with the Justices, and the Captain of the place. He also Seized 45 Ounces and Seven Penny weight of Gold of the said Pirates.

Capt. Thomas Larrimore, Joseph Wells Lieutenant, and Daniel Wormmall Master, and the said Pirates are Secured in our Goal."

Before the return of the expedition a warrant had been issued for the apprehension of Captain Larramore, and by the tenth two more of the pirates* were in custody.

By the thirteenth the prisoners had arrived at Boston which event was announced, in the same newspaper that contained the account of their commitment at Salem, as follows:—

"On the 13. Instant, Major Sewall attended with a strong guard brought to Town the above mentioned Pirates, and Gold he had Seized, and gave His Excellency a full Account of his Proceedure in Seizing them. The Prisoners were committed to Goal in order to a Tryal, and the Gold delivered to the Treasurer and Committee appointed to receive the same. The Service of Major Sewall and Company was very well Accepted and Rewarded by the Governour."—Ibid.

The Governor's intention to promptly proceed to try the alleged pirates was published in the News-Letter under date of the tenth of June, and, accordingly, on the day of their arrival a Court of Admiralty was convened at the town-house. This celerity was in keeping with the progress of the case from its inception, and may be accounted for by the prospect, which a speedy conviction offered, of generous allowances to all who should be active in bringing the freebooters to trial. Their ill-gotten treasure, which was sure to pass into the hands of the queen's officers, was reputed to be immense, and by the time the suspected criminals were arrested enough of it had been already secured to make certain the bestowal of handsome rewards and exceptionally large fees to the informers, lawyers and magistrates concerned in their capture and prosecution.

This tribunal was composed of incumbents of certain of the offices designated in the royal commission, including the governor and lieutenant-governors of Massachusetts and New Hampshire and the judge of the vice-admiralty for those provinces; the chief justice of the Superior Court of Judicature, the secretary of the province, and the members of the Council of Massachusetts Bay, and the collector of customs for New England—all of whom appear to have been present, the nominal Chief Justice in his capacity of Secretary of the province and Samuel Sewall, the acting Chief Justice, who was also one of the Council.

Proclamation for silence having first been made, the act and commission of King William were read; and, the act requiring that the register of the court should be a notary public, John Valentine † of Boston, who held that office, was sworn by the President. The Register then administered the prescribed oath to the President, and he, in turn, swore his associates.

The Court was opened by three proclamations as a Court of Admiralty for the trial of pirates; after which the queen's proclamation and the instructions above mentioned were read.

Being thus organized, the Court ordered a warrant to be issued to bring Quelch before them from jail, and, pending the return of the officer, they adjourned to the afternoon, "when [says the printed report] the court being met and opened, Matthew Pymer, John Clifford and James Parrot [the first of whom had surrendered himself quickly after his arrival, to the Governor] were brought to the bar, and arraigned upon several articles of piracy, robbery and murder, drawn against Captain Quelch, and others, his accomplices." To these articles, mutatis mutandis, these three severally pleaded guilty and were "received into the queen's mercy" and declared "witnesses in behalf of the queen against John Quelch and company." These prisoners were then ordered to "stand within the bar and be sworn as witnesses on her majesty's behalf."

Quelch was next brought to the bar, and being arraigned upon the articles aforesaid, pleaded not guilty and moved "for time to prepare for his trial" and that counsel be allowed him "upon any matter of law that might happen upon his trial." In response to the latter request the Court assigned for his assistance, Mr. James Meinziez,* a Scotchman resident here, who had made a considerable figure at the bar both in the common law and the admiralty courts of New England. Quelch was also granted three days' time for preparation, and, an order being first passed to furnish him with a copy of the articles exhibited against him, he was remanded to prison.

Twenty other prisoners were similarly arraigned, and, pleading not guilty, were, in like manner, granted time and the assistance of Meinziez as counsel. The Court then adjourned to Friday, the sixteenth.

When the Court reassembled, the prisoners, upon the petition for further time, by Quelch "in behalf of himself and the rest," were "allowed time till Monday morning next at nine of the clock, and then peremptorily to come upon their trials." After a motion by the prisoners' counsel "that the queen's witnesses might be kept asunder till the prisoners came upon their trials," which was refused as unprecedented (the Court, however, directing "that at their examination at the bar they should be separate"), "the Court adjourned till Monday morning at nine of the clock."

On Monday, the nineteenth, according to adjournment, Quelch was set to the bar to be tried, and his irons were removed. The prosecution was conducted by Paul Dndley, "attorney-general, and her majesty's advocate for the Court of Admiralty," assisted by Thomas Newton, the leading lawyer of the province.

Although by the civil law,† in accordance with which both the act of parliament and the commission required that the defendants be tried, two innocent witnesses against each defendant were necessary for conviction, and, in case of murder, only he or they who actually gave the fatal stroke were to be deemed guilty, — and in no case was the testimony of an accomplice admissible, — the Court, in the admission of testimony, not only permitted the greatest latitude possible under the common law, but disregarded the established rules for excluding interested witnesses. It was not alleged in the articles, nor was testimony adduced to show, that during their piratical expedition more than one man was killed by any of Quelch's company. It was not doubted, even by the prosecution, that some one else than Quelch killed the Portuguese captain, yet on the word of a negro slave of the dead captain — a boy, who testified (not without some apparent contradiction) through an interpreter, and the only evidence of whose competency, as a Christian,‡ was his own declaration as to his baptism, — Quelch, without the intervention of a jury, was found guilty "of the several articles of piracy, robbery and murder wherewith" he was charged.

The queen's witnesses who testified to the general acts of piracy were incompetent equally by the civil and by the common law. By the civil law their admitted guilt barred them both on the ground of self-interest and as participators in the crime; by the common law they were excluded, on the one hand, as having neither received the queen's pardon nor as being within the statutes § favoring criminal accomplices, and, on the other hand, as not having been corroborated by unimpeachable testimony. It appears to have been claimed by the queen's counsel that they were offered as "approvers," but if this was the case, the offer was not legitimate since the "great strictness and nicety" which, as Blackstone intimates, this obsolete form of accusation required were wholly wanting both in form and substance,|| and the only capacity in which they could have testified against their companions was that of witnesses for the crown, according to the common law.

On the nineteenth, Quelch having been allowed to speak in his own defence, the Court was cleared for advisement, after which he was again brought to the bar, and the judgment of the Court against him declared, and sentence of death pronounced upon him. On the

* He was afterwards register of the court of Vice-Admiralty, of which his brother John was judge. Perhaps no other eligible person could have defended the accused with greater skill and learning. In the meagre report of the points raised and the arguments made for the defence, while enough is given to justify the inference that he did not fail to call the attention of the Court to the most important legal objections to the course of the prosecution, there is room for doubt if he was as persistent and emphatic as the merits of the case required. Perhaps, however, the relations between the bar and the bench at that day may have rendered a hopeless contention against the obvious opinion of the court as impolitic as it was unavailing.

† "... and to do all things necessary for the hearing and final determination of any case of piracy, robbery, and felony; and to give sentence and judgment of death, and to award execution of the offenders convicted and attainted as aforesaid, according to the civil law, and the methods and rules of the admiralty," etc. — 11 and 12 Wm. III., chapter 7, § 4.

The act of parliament 4 Geo. I., chap. 11, gave the right to try pirates in the British Colonies in America according to the provisions of 28 Hen. VIII., chapter 15. From and after the passage of this act, therefore, pirates might be tried in any of the British American Colonies, either according to the civil law, or according to the common law by a jury and the rules of evidence followed in the common-law courts.

The practice of trying pirates in the colonies according to the civil law was so well settled that Judge Stokes declares that at the former of two trials in America for piracy at which he was present, though held after the passage of the act of 4 Geo. I., chap. 11, "the prisoners escaped, because they were tried according to the course of the Civil Law, and there was but one witness against them; and the Solicitor-General was not aware" of the change in the law. — A View of the Constitution of the British Colonies, etc., p. 233.

The Massachusetts act of 1696, chapter 4, was superseded or suspended by these acts of parliament. Under the act 11 and 12 Wm. III., principals only were triable in the admiralty courts held in the colonies, — accessories being expressly required to be sent to England to be tried by a commission of oyer and terminer under the act of Hen. VIII.

‡ If a heathen, he was incompetent to testify.
§ 4 and 5 Wm. and Mary, chapter 8; 6 and 7 Wm. and Mary, chapter 17; 10 and 11 Wm. III., chapter 23.

|| It was a fundamental doctrine that the approver must have confessed before pleading. In the present case, therefore, even if all the other circumstances were sufficient, the plea of guilty was not a proper confession. But a still more decisive objection was that approvals were common-law proceedings before judges competent to assign a coroner to entertain the appeal, which could only lie against persons within the realm and while the approver was in prison upon indictment. Clearly these commissioners were not such judges, nor were the articles exhibited against the accused such an indictment, as would fulfil the conditions necessary to the acceptance of either of the accused as an approver. — Coke's Third Institute, 129.

next day four others of the prisoners who had pleaded not guilty were tried, and two of them were condemned and sentenced, in the same manner, on that day, and the other two on the twenty-first. Two more who were tried on the twentieth on the same accusation were acquitted on the twenty-first and ordered to be discharged on paying the prison fees. Fifteen more who had pleaded not guilty presented a petition on the twentieth, — “Praying that they might withdraw their several Pleas of Not Guilty, and be admitted to confess and plead Guilty hoping thereupon for the Queens Mercy, &c.

Upon which they were each of them asked whether they set their Hands to that Petition? And they all severally own'd they did.

Pres. You who have here subscribed this Petition, must be told, That your Commander, and some others of your Company have had their Tryals, and are found Guilty : We don't take your pleading Guilty now to be any Submission, nor will it of it self entitle you to Mercy. This Court can make no Bargain with you. If any of you can be distinguished, as being forced away, professing against the Voyage, Sickness, or the like, this Court will Consider of it, so far as is proper for them.

Mr. Register, you must ask each of the Prisoners one by one, Whether they are Guilty or not Guilty, of what they are charged with.” — Printed report of the trial of Quelch and others of his company, p. 17.

Accordingly they severally repeated the plea of guilty, and, on the twenty-first, sentence of death was passed upon them as upon those found guilty after trial.

Three negroes, one of them the property of Captain Plowman, and taken by him to sea, and the others the slaves of Hobby (who were shown to have been forcibly carried away in the brigantine) were acquitted on the twentieth, it appearing that they “handled no arms,” although two of them had served as cooks, “and sounded the trumpet when they were commanded.”

As has been already stated Meinziez seems not to have omitted to interpose in behalf of his clients nearly every important legal objection. In the first place he opposed the offer, by the queen's counsel, of the London Gazette of May and July, 1703, to prove the ratification of the treaty of amity with Portugal. But the president avoided this objection (which was opposed by Newton) by declaring that proof of the existence of such a treaty was not necessary if there was actually no war between England and Portugal at the time of the alleged piracy, and cited Kidd's case, who was “hanged for robbing the Great Mogul.” Meinziez, after several pertinent comments on the insufficiency of the evidence, next argued that, according to the civil law, Quelch had not been proved guilty of murder, inasmuch as “it is well known he was not the man that did the fact,” and further that the queen's witnesses were incompetent in that they had “not had her majesty's pardon,” and because the act 11 and 12 Wm. III. prescribed that the trials by this Court be according to the civil law, under which “no accomplice can be a witness.” The permitting them to testify, he contended, “will be inconsistent with the act of parliament itself, whereby the persons accused have not only the benefit of cross-examining the witnesses, but also of bringing evidence for their own vindication; and it may be thought as proper to bring some of their own company for their clearing, as the other evidences for the accusing them.” To the answer of the queen's advocate, — that the act of Wm. III. was so far controlled by the statute of Hen. VIII., that the requirement that trials under the commission should be according to the civil law applied only to the summary proceedings of the tribunal, and did not change the rules of evidence prescribed by the earlier statute, he cogently gave as a reason for his dissent from this view the fact that under the statute of Hen. VIII. the accused were allowed the benefit of a trial by jury, which it was admitted was denied them under the statute of Wm. III.; and hence, in consideration of the loss of this privilege, and as “an equivalent to a jury,” the accused were accorded under the later statute the benefit of the stricter rules of the civil law.

On this last vital point, however, the Court accepted the views of the queen's advocate, who contended that although it was true that by the statute of Wm. III. the trials were to be according to the civil law and the methods and rules of the admiralty, yet the “methods” of the admiralty in regard to the admission of evidence having for “now about an hundred and three score years” been in conformity to the rules of the common law — “a term long enough to make a method of any court” — it was too late to suppose that any change in this method was intended in the statute of Wm. III. which “doth strengthen and establish the Statute of Henry the VIII. And it would be very odd to suppose that what the first Act of Parliament in these cases had rejected and condemn'd, the method of the civil Law in the tryal of Pirates, &c. The second Act of Parliament should be reconcil'd to that Method, to restore and set it up in the Plantations, especially when the Title of the New Act, is an Act, For the more effectual Suppression of Piracy, &c.”*

On Friday, the thirtieth, Captain Quelch,† John Lambert,‡ Christopher Scudamore,§ John Miller,|| Erasmus Peterson,¶ Peter Roach,** and Francis King †† were brought to the place of execution, in Charles River, off a point of land below Copp's Hill,‡‡ and all, save the last, who was reprieved by the Governor, were hanged and afterwards gibbeted.

Perhaps the most trying ordeal which the sufferers underwent was the attentions of the clergy. Cotton Mather,§§ who was habitually an interested spectator at public executions,

‡‡ The act provided that they should be executed “in such place upon the sea, or within the ebbing or flowing thereof, as the president or the major part of the court, by warrant directed to a provost marshal (which the president or said major part shall have power to constitute) shall appoint.” — Section VI. § Mather preached a sermon upon the execution, which was printed under the title of “Faithful Warnings to prevent Fearful Judgments.” — *Prince's M.S. labored for the benefit of their souls in his peculiarly harrowing and reproachful style. In the chamber of the prison on the Tuesday before their execution he prayed for, preached to, and catechised them, as Sewall says, "excellently." He and another clergyman walked with them, as, guarded by forty musketeers, constables of the town, the provost marshal, etc., they marched in solemn procession to Scarlet's Wharf; and he there embarked with them on their melancholy voyage to the gallows, preceded by the silver oar of the admiralty. The exhortations to the condemned, and Mather's long prayers, in which he interlarded extravagant invectives against these unhappy men with interjections and ejaculations and warnings to the multitude of spectators, crowded into boats upon the water and covering the adjacent shore, to profit by their terrible example, were duly printed in the News-Letter, together with the dying speeches of the men. Sewall thus depicts the scene of the execution:—

"Feria Sexta, Junij, 30, 1704. . . . After Dinner, about 3. p. m. I went to see the Execution. . . . Many were the people that saw upon Broughton's Hill. But when I came to see how the River was cover'd with People, I was amazed: Some say there were 100 Boats. 150 Boats and Canoes, saith Cousin Moody of York. He told them. Mr. Cotton Mather came with Capt. Quelch and six others for Execution from the Prison to Scarlet's Wharf, and from thence in the Boat to the place of Execution about the midway between Hanson's point and Broughton's Warehouse. Mr. Bridge was there also. When the scaffold was hoisted to a due height, the seven Malefactors went up; Mr. Mather pray'd for them standing upon the Boat. Ropes were all fasten'd to the Gallows (save King, who was Repriev'd). When the Scaffold was let to sink, there was such a Screech of the Women that my wife heard it sitting in our Entry next the Orchard, and was much surpris'd at it; yet the wind was son-west. Our house is a full mile from the place."—Diary, vol. II., p. 109.

According to the barbarous custom of the times the bodies remained hanging on the gibbet until, by decay or the attacks of birds of prey, they gradually disappeared.

The first number of the News-Letter published after the execution contains this item:—

"His Excellency intends to send an Express to England, with an Account of the whole matter to Her Majesty."—No. 11.

The Governor had already given to the representatives "an account of the proceedings against the pirates." This was on the twenty-third of June, and, by the twenty-second of July, this account had been written out and sent to the Privy Council by Captain Cary, the bearer of an address to the queen, in which the piratical acts of Quelch and his crew were animadverted upon and the result of their summary prosecution used to vindicate the provincial authorities against any suspicions of complicity with such outlaws.

The issue of the third week in July thus announced the departure of the accessaries:—

"Captain Cary Sailed * on Saturday last, in the Express Sloop † for England, with an Account of Capt. Quelch and Company's Tryal, &c. who carries with him Capt. Thomas Larimore and Joseph Wells Lieutenant (mentioned in our Numb. 9 Print, as Accessaries in endeavouring to carry off the 7 Pirates then taken) as Prisoners to the Queen: He carries also with him three Evidences of their crime committed."—No. 14.

Quelch in his last speech said, "I desire to be informed for what I am here. I am condemned only upon circumstances;" and, again, he warned his hearers to "take care how they brought money into New England to be hanged for it." Peterson complained "of injustice done him, and said it is very hard for so many mens' lives to be taken away for a little gold." Lambert "pleaded much on his innocency" and "desired all men to beware of bad company."

Of those who were executed, two (Roach and Peterson) were among the fifteen who retracted their plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. Francis King, who was reprieved at the gallows, was also one of these fifteen. James, who was tried and convicted, and thirteen others, among whom was Francis King, remained in prison awaiting the pardon of which those that survived had the benefit.

With the address to the queen was sent the Governor's application for the pardon of the pirates still in prison. It was not, however, until July 19, 1705, that Dudley communicated to the Council a letter ‡ from the Right Honorable Sir Charles Hedges, Principal Secretary of State, "signifying her majesty's most gracious pardon" of the "fourteen" condemned men. The prisoners were sent for, "their Pardon declared in open Court, [and their] Chains knock'd off" § on condition that they enter the queen's service. At the same time a new commission, received in the same despatch, for the trial of pirates was read by order of the Governor, and afterwards "directed to be put on record."

It is noticeable that Sewall states that the "surviving" pirates were pardoned, and this suggests a possible explanation of the discrepancy between the number stated in the queen's letter and the number given in the following account in the News-Letter:—

"On Thursday the 19th Instant, His Excellency our Governour Sat in a Court of Admiralty for Tryal of Pirates, &c. and Published Her Majesties Commission for the said Court directed to himself, the Lieutenant Governour, the Council, and several other Gentlemen.

After which the 7 Pirates of Quelch's Crew remaining in Goal were set to the Bar, viz. Charles James, William Wildes, John Dorrothy, John Pittman, John Carter, Dennis Carter and Charles King: His Excellency acquainted them, that whereas 13 months since they were Arraigned and Condemned at that Bar for Piracy, and 6 of the chief of them were Executed, he was now Advised by Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State, That the Proceedings of the Commissioners in that Matter were very well taken and approved of, by Her Sacred Majesty, and that Her Majesty whose Prerogative alone it is to pardon and shew mercy to such Condemned Criminals as they were, had been graciously pleased upon the Application and Representation of Her Governour to pardon them: And he expected as he had kept his word and promise to them in applying for Her Majesty's mercy to them, they would remember and keep theirs with him, in being honest, sober and good men for the future; That as they had now new Lives given them, they should be new men, and be very faithful and diligent in the Service of Her Majesty; who might as easily and justly have ordered their Execution this day as sent their Pardon.

† The Sea Flower, Captain John Welch. For the particulars of this voyage, and Cary's mention of Larramore in his account with the province, see the note to resolves, 1705-6, chapter 93.

‡ With this were inclosed three acts of parliament accompanied "with Order to cause them to be published within these Governour's, which was ordered to be done by the Sheriffe on Thursday the 25th curri, some of Her Majesty's Justices and other Gentlemen being desired to be present."—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 199.

And then His Excellency Published part of a Letter from the Right Honourable Sir Charles Hedges, Principal Secretary of State, signifying Her Majesty's Pleasure upon the Governour's Humble Application to Her Majesty to Pardon the remaining Pirates (of whom 6 were Executed last year) and the before-mentioned 7 were accordingly Discharged, and will be disposed of in Her Majesty's Service by the Governour." — No. 66.

Wilde broke out of prison, but was recaptured, as appears by an item in the News-Letter of the last week in June, 1705.*

While proceedings in regard to the disposal of the pirates were in progress, accounts of charges were coming in to the Council for services and expenses incurred in their capture and trial. The following entry appears under date of the fourteenth of June, 1704:—

"An Accompt presented by Major Stephen Sewall for charge in pursuit after and apprehending of Charles James and six other of the Pirates of Quelch's Company, was allowed with an addition thereto made for gratification of Major Sewall, Capt<sup>n</sup> Turner and other Officers, amounting in the whole to one hundred thirty two pounds, five shillings to be paid out of the Treasure imported by the said Pirates." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 29.

The next day the commissioners of inquiry presented their account, which was provided for, as follows:—

"June 15, 1704. An Accompt of the Expence of Sannuel Sewall, Nath<sup>l</sup> Byfield and Paul Dndley Esqrs in sitting at Marblehead upon a Commission of Inquiry after the Gold & Treasure imported by Quelch and Company, declared Pirates, & charges of pursuit after some of the said Pirates, was presented, and the sum of Twenty five pounds, seven shillings & ten pence allow'd therefore, and for their own service. And several other Bills of charges for pursuit after, and apprehending several of the said Pirates, were presented and the sum of fifteen pounds, seventeen shillings allow'd to the several persons therein named, to be paid out of the Treasure seized." — Ibid., p. 30.

On the fourth of August Mr. Meinzies presented a petition which (since it is one of the numerous papers which have found their way into private hands from the public archives) is hereunder given in full, together with the action of the Council thereon, as follows:—

On the twenty-sixth of October the order which constitutes this chapter was passed, and in accordance therewith the Council met at the appointed time and passed upon several claims that had been presented, as follows:—

At another meeting of the Council, on the eleventh, the following awards were made on additional claims : —

"To Paul Dudley Esq<sup>r</sup> the Queen's Advocate for the prosecution of the said Pirates, preparing the s<sup>d</sup> Tryal for the press, supervising of the same, and for his service relating to Capt<sup>n</sup> Larrimore & c<sup>a</sup> as accessaries, in the whole thirty six pounds.

To Mr Sheriffe Dyer for his service relating to the said prisoners, Five pounds." — Ibid., p. 105.

On the twenty-ninth of December still another claim was allowed and a committee appointed to appraise arms, "sea-stores, &c." taken by the pirates, as follows : —

"A Bill of Charges was presented by William Clarke of Boston Merchant, for Caske, Shifting and Landing the sugar and other things piratically and feloniously obtained by Capt<sup>n</sup> Quelch and Company, and for storage of them. And the sum of thirteen pounds was allowed him to be paid out of the proceeds thereof.

Penn Townsend, Andrew Belcher & Samuel Legg Esq<sup>rs</sup> are named and appointed a Committee to view and estimate the value of certain Great Guns and Appur<sup>ces</sup> Pateraroes, Artillery, Sailes and other sea stores & c<sup>a</sup> piratically and feloniously taken and Imported by Capt<sup>n</sup> John Quelch and Company in the Briganteen Charles, and secured in the hands of William Clarke of Boston Merchant, and for such of them as cannot be shewn forth to informe themselves of the contents and nature of them, and make an estimate accordingly. Also to examin into the dispute and difference between the s<sup>d</sup> Clarke and John Colman Merch<sup>t</sup> and other the Owners of the s<sup>d</sup> Briganteen relating to some of the said Stores, and to make their Report to this Board." — Ibid., p. 129.

On the twenty-second of January, 1704-5, the jailer was granted an allowance, on account, as follows : —

"Ordered. That the sum of Thirty pounnds be advanced and paid out of the Treasure imported by Capt<sup>n</sup> Quelch and Company convicted of Felony and Piracy, to Daniel Willard Keeper of Her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Prison in Boston, towards the charge of feeding and keeping of the said Pirates." — Ibid., p. 142.

Five days later the Commissary-General presented a further claim, which was passed upon, as follows : —

"Jan. 27, 1704-5. An Account of Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>r</sup> amounting to Five pounds, nine shillings and six pence, for necessary clothing supplied to some of the Pirates in Prison by his Excell<sup>ty</sup>'s order, was presented and allowed to be paid out of the Treasure imported by the said Pirates." — Ibid., p. 143.

In the autumn of 1705 there was duly packed and forwarded to the imperial treasury the treasure remaining after the above encroachments upon it, and after "the loose and lumbering goods and things belonging to the said pirates or imported by them that are liable to perish or unfit and chargeable to be kept or transported" had been disposed of at public sale. This sale was made by the commissioners of inquiry, in accordance with the proposal of the Governor with the advice and consent of the Council, as early as the twenty-fourth of July, 1704. The steps of this final transaction are thus recorded : —

"Oct. 3, 1705. His Excellency communicated to the Council a Letter from the Right Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Lord Godolphin, Lord high Treasurer of England, dated from the Treasury Chamber, Whitehall 28th of March 1705 importing her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s commands, that the Gold, Treasre & c<sup>a</sup> imported by Capt<sup>n</sup> John Quelch and Company convicted of Felony and Piracy, the charges of seizing and securing of the same, and of the s<sup>d</sup> Pirates, and the Process against them, being first deducted, be sent into Engl<sup>d</sup> by the first conveniency.

* Probably according to the award of Dudley and Newton, to whom his petition had been referred.

† Forty shillings additional was allowed March 2, 1704-5, to Thomas Barnard "for erecting the gibbet . . . to be paid out of their treasure."

And then the Account of the sd Charges in the particular articles thereof, having in part been before approved by the Council, with other demands since made and added, were severally read, and the accounts adjusted, amounting in the whole to the sum of seven hundred twenty six pounds, nineteen shillings and four pence." — Ibid., p. 220.

"Oct. 23, 1705. The Coynd, Bar and Dust Gold remaining of that imported by Capt<sup>n</sup> John Quelch and Company, after payment of the charges containing seven hundred eighty eight ounces three penny weight was weighed by Capt<sup>n</sup> Jeremiah Dummer Goldsmith at the Council Board in presence of three of the Commissioners, Capt<sup>n</sup> John Huntinton Commander of her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Ship Guernsey, and Mr Simon Lyon Lieutenant of the sd Ship, made up in five distinct Leather baggs, and sealed in their presence, and the quantity set on each Bagg, and then all put into a Deal box marked N<sup>o</sup> E T. I. fast nailed and corded, and deliver'd to the said Capt<sup>n</sup> and Lieutenant, who signed receipts for the same, containing seven hundred eighty eight ounces and three penny weight to be transported to England in Her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s sd ship, and delivered to the Lord high Treasurer of England for her Majesty's use.

There being eight ounces of Gold taken out before weighing by his Excell<sup>ty</sup>'s order, which eight ounces was also weighed by the said Capt<sup>n</sup> Dummer; and his Excell<sup>ty</sup> proposed to the Council to pay thereout twenty seven pounds, sixteen shillings and three pence to the Captains of the several Company's of Militia in the Town of Boston for their charge and Expences on Guards and Watches on the Pirates during their Imprisonment. Five pounds to Captain Tuthill for his assistance to secure and bring about the Vessel and goods from Marblehead. Five pounds to Mr Jeremiah Allen the Treasurer's Book-keeper for his care & service about the said Gold and Goods. Three pounds further allowance to Constables Apthorp and Jesse for their service; and twenty three shillings and nine pence more to the Commissioners, towards making up the loss on the Silver.

The Gold making out Five ounces, seven penny weight and fourteen grains more in weight than by the account at the receipt thereof." — Ibid., p. 228.

The "royal bounty" which was awarded to the Governor as his share of the "pirates' money" was ready for him by the 27th of May, 1707, when he appointed an attorney* in London to receive it.

Thus ended the sequel of one of the clearest cases of judicial murder in our American annals.

The conscientious Sewall, by the first opportunity after the trial, forwarded copies of the News-Letter containing the particulars of the capture, trial and execution of the pirates to one of his English relatives, and to his correspondent, Sir William Ashurst, the good friend of the province, † in London. He seems to have had some misgivings as to the legality of the trial even if he did not anticipate censure from persons high in public station in England for his share in the proceedings. This is a natural inference from the following apology which he made to Ashurst in the letter in which he asks his acceptance of the News-Letter's account: —

"As to the competency of the Witnesses, the Grounds I went upon was the province Law. I declar'd in the Trial, that unless they prov'd the Men and Treasure to be Taken from the Queen's Enemies, they were Pirats and when I gave my voice against Capt. Quelch, I caus'd the Law to be read. The Court did not stand in any absolute Necessity of the testimony of the Approvers that was made use of ex abundanti. Moreover the Piracy was begun in our Bay: for the Company Sail'd away contrary to the order of Capt. Plowman and the Owners. Capt. Plowman never Sail'd: but was forcibly and piratically carried away." — Letter-Book, vol. I., p. 301.

In our present state of enlightenment we can hardly believe that it did not occur to some one at the trial that even by common-law evidence all the accused were not proved to be principals either in the acts of piracy or murder, and that, in such case, it was the duty of the Governor to send the probable accessaries to England to be tried by a jury. But the strangest feature of the case is the readiness of the Court to accept the sophistries of Paul Dudley as indisputable in a case wherein the application of his theory jeopardized the lives of more than twenty men and deprived them of their birthright-privilege of a jury without any equivalent safeguard. Yet nothing in the report of the trial, save the argument of Meinziez, shows that the accused were even given the benefit of a doubt either as to the law or the testimony. The silence of Newton upon the points raised by his junior associate, Dudley, is noticeable, and justifies the belief that if he did not suggest to the young man this piece of chicanery, he disingenuously connived at it. In either case his conduct was not only greatly to his discredit but morally criminal.

The indifference of the courts at that period to the sacredness of human life is shocking to the moral sense of mankind at the present day. Though less callous and severe than the judges in Europe, the present case sufficiently shows how obdurate to the fiercer emotions which should temper and control the administration of justice were the best of our magistrates here, particularly when, in the swift condemnation of Quelch and his associates, it is seen how little either prosecutors or judges had profited by the sad experience in the witchcraft trials twelve years before.

As for the Dudleys, the chance of pecuniary profit which the conviction of the pirates offered was the most efficient spur to their efforts in behalf of the crown, in which they were not to be diverted or delayed by any legal difficulties or any consideration of the rights or possible innocence of the accused.

If the belief of those of their contemporaries who best knew the Dudleys may be relied upon, the fees and emoluments officially awarded them were by no means the extent of their profits out of their dealings with the pirates and their treasure. When Cotton Mather had his quarrel with the Governor, a few years later, he did not hesitate to intimate this charge pretty directly in the following passage in his memorial on Dudley's administration:—

“There have been odd Collusions with the Pyrates of Quelch's Company, of which one Instance is, That there was Extorted the Sum of about Thirty Pounds from some of the Crue, for Liberty to Walk at certain times in the Prison Yard; and this Liberty having been Allow'd for Two or Three Days unto them, they were again Confined to their former Wretched Circumstances.” — *Mass. The encounter wherein the scalp was taken for which the allowances were granted in this chapter was a sequel to the fight at Lancaster. See note to chapter 71, post.

Of the disastrous retreat of Beaucont's army, and the discomfiture of its leader, an account is given in the note above referred to. It is sufficient only to add here that some small predatory bands left the main body and did damage in the neighborhood of Lancaster for several days after the retreat, and extended their ravages to more remote outlying settlements. Rumors of these assaults came in from so many places widely separated that the provincial authorities were not easily convinced that so large a force as came down from Canada had really abandoned the field after making only so feeble an impression, and hence for some time were inclined to believe that the depredations of the lingering small parties were indicative of some ulterior hostile movement of great magnitude.

This appears in the following letter from Secretary Addington to Governor Winthrop of Connecticut:—

Honorable Sir,—

“Boston, August 4th 1704.

His Excellency our Governour being absent in business has commanded me to acquaint your Honour that on Munday the 31st of July past, early in the morning, the enemy in a numerous body of three or four hundred (being the same that came from Mont Real) insulted Lancaster, one of our frontiers in Middlesex, furiously assaulting six or seven garrisons at once; but finding the inhabitants on their duty and well provided to receive them, and auxiliaries from the neighbouring towns coming in speedily to their assistance, they were obliged in a few houres time to draw off, having made no further impression on the town than the burning of some few deserted houses, killing four of our men; three whereof were slain in a skirmish they had with them on the open field, in which it is concluded the enemy suffered a greater loss, besides what they suffered from the garrisons. They also kill'd some cattle, of which they got only one meal, tooke no booty at all; in the pursuit our soldiers found several plots of blood in their stands. They continue still hovering in those woods and keep the parts alarm'd; its uncertainty where they may fall next, or whether they may not divide and come upon several places at once, so that we are necessitated to strengthen all the frontiers and keep out a marching force. His Excellency desires your Honour will please to order Capt<sup>m</sup> Avery with the Moheags &c. to Groton, to abide there for some time for scouring of the woods thereabouts. They will probably be better contented there, being not altogether strangers in those parts, and will not be so far from home as before. I am, with all due regard, Sr, your Honours most humble & obedient servant,

ISA. ADDINGTON.” — Win-

According to the committee of publication of the Winthrop Papers,* the above letter elicited from Daniel Wetherell of New London a reply, of the same date, informing Addington of the temporary absence of the Governor from Hartford and that the members of the council then in New London were empowered to attend to pressing business, and adding,—

The purpose of the call upon Connecticut for Captain Avery's “Moheags” was evidently to strengthen † the garrisons of Groton during the absence of the comparatively large force which, under the lead of Major William Tailer, was to leave the town in pursuit of the enemy, as narrated in the note to chapter 71, post. It would appear from Major Whiting's letter of the nineteenth and Governor Dudley's letter of the fourteenth, printed in the note last mentioned, that Tailer left Groton on the tenth.

It is to be inferred from the statements in the following petition that a band of Indians seized the opportunity, which the absence of Tailer's men afforded them for murdering and plundering with impunity, to attack the petitioner and his companions: —

This petition was read, first, in the Council, on the twenty-sixth, and sent to the representatives. On the next day the following resolve, which is endorsed on the petition, was passed by both branches and consented to by the Governor: —

“Resolved That the sum of four Pounds be allowed and Paid out of the publick Treasury to the Petition<sup>r</sup> and the like Sum of four Pounds to Samuel Butterfield, who this House, is Inform<sup>d</sup> did assist in the killing of the Indian mentioned in the Petition, and that no other or further sum be Allowed for the killing of the s<sup>d</sup> Indian.” — Ibid., p. 497.

When the Secretary made up his records he recast this resolve in the form in which it appears in this chapter.

The order in Council* for the payment of these allowances was passed November 20, 1704, and by the province treasurer's account † they appear to have been duly paid.

Butterfield, who shares in the allowance equally with Shepley, was of Chelmsford, and is the same person who was granted an allowance by the resolve of 1705-6, hereafter mentioned, and who, as “sarg<sup>t</sup> hvtterfelde,” appears in the character of a messenger in the note to chapter 55 of the resolves of the same year.

No petition by or for Butterfield has been found in the files and records relating to this chapter; and in the resolve as passed his name is inserted in such a manner as to imply that he received this bounty without formally asking for it. A plausible conjecture of the cause of this omission is that Butterfield, as appears by his declaration in the petition upon which was founded chapter 107 of the resolves of 1705-6, was in captivity at the date of the passage of the present chapter, and he was not released until about a year later.

The scalp not having been taken while the petitioner and his companion were either detached for duty or while in actual service as volunteers, in which cases only they were entitled to the statute bounty, they could obtain this reward in no other way than by a special vote of the Legislature.

Montigny's sanguinary attack on Pascommuck,* May 13, 1704, not only drew out the militia in pursuit of his band in his rapid progress towards Canada, but led to a general strengthening of the garrisons on the western frontiers. On the very day of that massacre Governor Winthrop of Connecticut "despatched Major Whiting with all possible speed and what men could be gotten together" † to cooperate with Colonel Partridge at Hatfield. Having for two days ineffectually pursued the enemy from about seven miles below Northampton to about five miles above Deerfield, marching "near sixty miles in a most hideous, mountainous and swampy country," Whiting, on the sixteenth, reached Hatfield on his return, and wrote thence, on the next day, to Winthrop that in the three towns of Deerfield, Hatfield and Northampton "we have . . . about 200 men; considering the season of the year, think it best dismiss about the halfe of them and waite your Hon<sup>r</sup>s comand for drawing off the rest, Col. Partrig concurring wth me herein. I am ready to conclude upon the tryall we have now made that it is very improbable, if not morally impossible, for your Hon<sup>r</sup> to send men out of your Government to do any spoyle upon the enemy that do so frequently make incursions on this county. For our motions have been as expeditions as was rationally to be expected and yet to no advantage, so that it appears a matter of necesse that a sufficient number of men be posted in these three townes to persue upon any approach of the enemy; w<sup>ch</sup> is humbly submitted to your Honour's wisdom." ‡

Partridge and Whiting were agreed that the frontiers were to be protected from the enemy by the strength and vigilance of these garrisons rather than by reconnoissances in force, and the latter, in the exercise of the discretion permitted by his orders from Governor Winthrop, remained with the men under his command to reinforce the western garrisons until they should be relieved by new men from Massachusetts or Connecticut.

Before Whiting had turned back from his pursuit of Montigny, reports came from Albany to Hatfield that the enemy were "resting above us on this [Connecticut] river," and these reports were corroborated by the representation of some of the captives who escaped from Montigny's party, that their captors had told them that the enemy "in greater numbers are intending speedy mischiefs on Northampton, Hatfield or Hadley."

The place of rendezvous of the invading forces was reported to be Cowass or Cowassic, far up the Connecticut, between its junction with Wells River and the mouth of the Passumpsic, within the present township of Barnet, Vermont. It was rumored that the French and Indians were not only planting and resting there, but were fortifying the place.

By command of Governor Dudley § on the receipt of this intelligence Secretary Addington wrote to Winthrop that the Governor hoped "to have two hundred volunteers of this province at Hatfield ready to march thither [i. e., to Cowassic] by the last of this month," and requested Winthrop "to assist in that expedition with some additional forces and some Indians to help them over the waters." ¶

It would seem that Dudley himself had notified Winthrop, on the fifteenth, of apprehended imminent danger from the enemy's lodgement at Cowassic, since to such a letter ¶ Winthrop responded with alacrity, and wrote to Dudley "if it shall be concluded to send our men to Cowass," then—besides one hundred and fifty soldiers and such Indians "as may be obtained to be added to them" to scout the frontiers of Connecticut or Massachusetts "as there shall be occasion"—the general assembly had thought fit to order the raising of "50 men in y<sup>e</sup> county of Hartford to joyne the forces of the other counties for that expedition; otherwise they are to be in readiness to releive your county, or any other places, distressed by any sudden assault of the enemy." **

Through the month of May the forces in Hampshire had been considerably increased, chiefly by volunteers from Connecticut. By vote of the assembly of that colony, which convened on the twenty-fourth, four hundred volunteers were ordered to be raised "to repel the common enemy," and of these Whiting was appointed "major and commander-in-chief." But this force, joined with the militia of Hampshire and the scouts previously sent out by Connecticut, was still insufficient, notwithstanding the assistance and encouragement offered by Massachusetts in resolves, chapters 7 and 19, ante.

Only a few days, however, before Dudley communicated his change of purpose in regard to sending the two hundred volunteers to Hatfield, as shown in the note to chapter 71, post, an event transpired which at once lent a more hopeful aspect to the state of affairs in Hampshire. This was the success of a small party which had been sent to Cowassic to reconnoitre. This project of reconnoitring seems to have been first suggested by the assembly of Connecticut* as early as the nineteenth of May.

To attempt to reconnoitre the enemy's position so far away in the wilderness would at any time have been a very difficult and dangerous undertaking, but now that it was believed that the French and Indians were contemplating a descent in force from Canada, and were most likely to come down the Connecticut valley, the risk seemed so great that but three white men † were found ready to undertake the service. Two of the three returned after having proceeded three days on the journey. The one who continued was Caleb Lyman (named in this chapter), son of John Lyman, one of the early settlers of Northampton, who removed thither from Hartford, Connecticut. His companions, who guided him and shared his perils, were five Mohegan Indians of Major Whiting's command.

Penhallow has preserved for us Lyman's own account of the exploit upon which he based his claim to the reward granted in this chapter, as follows:—

"Some time in the month of May, 1704, there came intelligence from Albany, of a number of enemy Indians up Connecticut river, who had built a fort, and planted corn, at a place called Cowassuck. On the fifth ‡ of June following, we set out (by order of authority) from Northampton, and went nine days journey into the wilderness, (through much difficulty, by reason of the enemy's hunting and scouting in the woods, as we perceived by their tracks and firing) and then came across some fresh tracks, which we followed till we came in sight of the abovesaid river: Supposing there might be a number of Indians at hand, we being not far from the place where the fort was said to be built. Here we made a halt, to consult what methods to take; and soon concluded to send out a spy, with green leaves for a cap and vest, to prevent his own discovery, and to find out the enemy. But before our spy was gone out of sight, we saw two Indians, at a considerable distance from us, in a canoe, and so immediately called him: And soon after we heard the firing of a gun up the river. Upon which we concluded to keep close till sunset; and then if we could make any further discovery of the enemy, to attack them, if possible, in the night. And accordingly when the evening came on, we moved towards the river, and soon perceived a smoke, at about half a mile's distance, as we thought, where we afterwards found they had taken up their lodging. But so great was the difficulty, that (though we used our utmost care and diligence in it) we were not able to make the approach till about two o'clock in the morning, when we came within twelve rods of the wigwam where they lay. But here we met with a new difficulty, which we feared would have ruined our design. For the ground was so covered over with dry sticks and brush, for the space of five rods, that we could not pass, without making such a crackling, as we thought would alarm the enemy, and give them time to escape. But while we were contriving to compass our design, God in his good providence so ordered, that a very small cloud arose, which gave a smart clap of thunder, and a sudden shower of rain. And this opportunity we embraced, to run through the thicket; and so came undiscovered within sight of the wigwam; and perceived by their noise, that the enemy were awake. But however, being unwilling to lose any time, we crept on our hands and knees till we were within three or four rods of them. Then we arose, and ran to the side of the wigwam, and fired in upon them: and flinging down our guns, we surrounded them with our clubs and hatchets and knocked down several we met with. But after all our diligence, two of their number made their escape from us: one mortally wounded, and the other not hurt, as we afterwards heard.

When we came to look over the slain, we found seven dead upon the spot: six of whom we scalped, and left the other unscalped. (Our Indians saying, they would give one to the country, since we had each of us one, and so concluded we should be rich enough.) When the action was thus over, we took our scalps and plunder, such as guns, skins, &c. and the enemy's canoes, in which we came down the river about twelve miles by break of day, and then thought it prudence to dismiss and break the canoes, knowing there were some of the enemy betwixt us and home.

And now, all our care being how to make a safe and comfortable return, we first looked over our provision, and found we had not more than enough for one small refreshment: and being above one hundred miles from any English settlement, we were very thoughtful how we should subsist by the way. For having tracked about thirty of the enemy a little before us, we could not hunt for our subsistence for fear of discovery; and so were obliged to eat buds of trees, grass and strawberry leaves, for the space of four or five days, till through the goodness of God, we safely arrived at Northampton, on the 19th or 20th of the aforesaid June. And some time after, (upon our humble petition to the Great and General Court, to consider the service we had done) we received thirty-one pounds reward. And I have only this to observe, that in consequence of this action, the enemy were generally alarmed, and immediately forsook their fort and corn at Cowassuck, and never returned to this day that we could hear of, to renew their settlement in that place." — Indian Wars, pp. 31-33.

"To His Excellency the Governour & the Hon<sup>d</sup> Council & Representatives Assembled in Boston: the 25<sup>t</sup> of Oct: 1704.

The Humble Petition of Caleb Limon of Northampton sheweth first That upon the 5<sup>t</sup>* of June last the said Caleb Limon was sent by Colonel Patrigg up the Country to make discovery of & doe execution on the enemy, in conjunction with five friend Indians.

2<sup>dly</sup> That in persuaunce of that order I fitted out my selfe with Arms, Ammunition & provision & travelled with the Rest about an hundred & fifty miles into the wilderness, to the great hazzard of life & health, enduring a great deal of Hardship, & was absent in this journey a full fortnight.

3<sup>dly</sup> That God was pleased so far to succeed our undertaking that we slew seven of the enemy & brought in six of their scalps, to the great encouragement of the soldiery & the people of these plantations.

The said Caleb Limon does therefore Humbly request this Court in Consideration of the difficulty & successe of this service, to bestow a reward upon him, According to their wonted bounty, so that he & others may be encouraged in time to come, to run utmost adventures for the sake of their Country.

& your Petitioner shall pray &c: and so I rest yours to sarue

This petition was read in the House on the twenty-seventh. On the first of November the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council for concurrence, where it was immediately concurred in, and consented to by the Governour.

The order in Council † for the payment of the allowance was passed November 20, 1704, and the province treasurer's account ‡ shows that it was duly paid.

Why the petitioner and his companions failed to receive the bounty of one hundred pounds for each scalp brought in by them will be explained in the note to the next chapter.

For particulars of the service rewarded by virtue of this chapter see the note to the preceding chapter in addition to what follows here.

In the following extract from a letter to Governor Winthrop, Major Whiting represents the services of the Indians in Lyman's party as more important than they appear to be in Lyman's narrative:—

"June 20th [1704].

S<sup>r</sup>. — On Wensday the 7th instant our scout, consisting of 3 English and 5 Indians, departed Hatfield about nine in the morning with orders to go to Quoasick if possible, to bring us certaine intelligence whether there be a fort or not, as also to make w<sup>t</sup> discovery they could of the enemys numbers and motion. (Two of the English men belonging to the s<sup>d</sup> scout left them the 3<sup>d</sup> day after they went hence, one of them being disabled by a hurt receivd in his leg, so that one English man and 5 Indians prosecuted the designe.) Yesterday, as I advised your Honor, tho verry briefly, they returned hither wth six of the enemys scalps and give this acco<sup>t</sup> of their proceedings, viz<sup>t</sup> that as they travel'd up the river they saw signes where the enemy had been, but on Wensday the 14th currant they discovered three tracks new past along, w<sup>ch</sup> they follow'd to the great river (about 150 miles above this place), they being to the eastward when they first saw them. Some time after, they spi'd a canoe wth an Indian and a boy a fishing on the west side the river. They continued there till night, concluding there was a wigwom not farr off, w<sup>ch</sup> accordingly prov'd true. In the night they mov'd downe a hill to the river, or near it, wth a great care and secrecie. As they came near the wigwom, they heard a child cry, which did greatly facilitate their enterprize. Having posted themselves conveniently for the designe, waited some time untill they had concluded what mesures to take. The Indian Capt (Quioheague) gave the signall: they ran uiolently on the wigwom, discharging some of their guns, then entring with their hatchetts soon dispatch'd four men, 1 lad of 14, & 1 child of about 2 year old, and took one squaw captive, who, after some short examination, they kil'd and scalp'd; the whole number in the house being nine, two whereof made their escape, being favored by the night, tho they conclude one of them was mortallie wounded wth a hatchett in the back. They soon quitted the place, being in the enemys country and the neighbourhood doubtless alarm'd; they took three guns wth some other plunder and im-bark'd in two canoos, came downe the river about twelve mile, by w<sup>ch</sup> time the day broke, then landing agen on the east side, destroyd their canoos and trauel'd away south east, coming near to Manadnuck Hill, took a circumference, came upon the great river agen a little above Northfield on the 10th instant, and came as above in hither yesterday. I can gaine no certaintey from the examination of that squaw, but I think thus much: that they are building a fort at Quoasick, that there are some Indians now residing there, especially women and children, the men being gon, some to Cannada to sell their captiues, some coming downe this way to fish, or what else she knew not. We know not what to believe about it. The Indians are much joyc'd at their success, and their expectations greatly heightned wth 100<sup>lb</sup> a scalp. Great prudence must be used in rewarding and encouraging of them; others are willing to go upon the like adventure. We are ready to conclude its a matter of highest importance to keep out small parties at present, and, as Providence shall open our way, march wth a united force. To day we dispatch'd letters to Gouverneur Dudley, acquainting him wth the state of affairs here. Sr, we would manifest our thankfulness to Almighty God for this smile on our designs, and pray that all our undertakings for the future of this nature may be alike successfull. The Providence seems to carry the greater favor in it since we are confidently perswaded that these are a part of those Indians that did the last mischief at this towne, and that from the household goods they had in the wigwom. This also will furnish your Honour wth suitable presents for the Five Nations, if in your wisdom it be thought best to engage them, viz: the scalps each nation one, w<sup>ch</sup> Col. Schuyler sent me word were acceptable and oblidging. . . .

WILL: WHITING. — Win-

throp Papers, part V., pp. 226-228.

The Indians' expectation of one hundred pounds per scalp was evidently founded upon a misapprehension of a provision in the resolve of 1703-4, chapter 100, for encouraging volunteers serving without pay, who, in "such companies . . . as may amount to a proper number," should, under officers commissioned by the governor of Massachusetts, fit themselves out "at their own charge," to range the coast and woods of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine and "insult the eastern coast of Nova Scotia and Port Royal." It is clear that if the successful scouting party had complied with any of these conditions they had not with all or most of them, and, therefore, that no officer of the province was authorized to certify their claim to the large bounty offered to encourage enlistments in aid of Colonel Church's intended expedition to the eastward.

Neither does the case seem to have come under the act of 1703-4, chapter 6, which was in force at the time of Lyman's expedition, and which by the resolve last referred to had been extended to the thirtieth of November. By the second section of that act all persons voluntarily enlisting "in the service," under pay, were entitled to a bounty of ten pounds per head, to be divided among the members of the company, "for every Indian by them killed;" and by section 3, all persons voluntarily, and "at their own charge and without pay," going forth in greater or lesser parties in pursuit of the enemy "with the allowance and direction" of the Governor were entitled each to his share of twenty pounds per head for every Indian they should kill or take alive.

It was so evident that persons belonging to the forces of Connecticut, and not organized, commissioned, or allowed of, by the commander-in-chief of Massachusetts, had no valid claim under this statute, that the possible assertion of such a claim was not even hinted at by any of the persons interested, unless by Major Whiting in his letter to Winthrop, dated Northampton, June 28, 1704, where, as shown by the following extract, he expresses the opinion that "some scalp money is due" :—

"Sr, I find it difficult to satisfie the Indians concerning the scalps; can hear nothing from Boston about it, altho have wrote Governeur Dudley concerning that matter Doubtless there is some scalp money due to them; have formerly signified this to your Honour. Four of the Moheages are returning home; ours are yet well content." — Ibid., pp. 233, 234.

It has not been discovered whether Colonel Partridge, for whose reimbursement the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed, paid the ten pounds as a gratuity, trusting to be repaid by an executive order or a vote of the General Court, or advanced the same in part satisfaction of what he deemed a possibly valid claim for a bounty under some existing law.

Whiting thought it a politic measure, if not an anticipation of the certain action of Massachusetts under some supposed existing law, to add forty pounds to what Partridge had contributed. He was reimbursed this amount, as a favor but not as a debt, by resolves, 1706-7, chapter 22. Just when this payment was made to the Indians by Whiting does not appear. It may have been made as late as the spring or summer of 1705 to propitiate them for the injustice which they believed they had suffered in being denied the one hundred pounds bounty which, as appears by the following extract from a letter written by Winthrop to Dudley, dated May 30, 1705, had indisposed them to render further service to the province :—

"And upon my returne hither I sent an officer to Owaneco to informe him of your desire of a party of his men, and of the order of the Gen<sup>l</sup> Assembly, but he would neyther come to me nor send any of his men, pretending it was a busy tyme and that your Province owes him 100<sup>lb</sup> for scalpes the last year, & when that was paid he would let his men goe upon the designe." — Ibid., pp. 294, 295.

The order in Council* for the payment of the allowance granted in this chapter was passed November 20, 1704, and the province treasurer's account† shows that it was duly paid.

By the following entry in the executive records of the council it appears that Benjamin Choat was the person selected by the Governor and Council to fill the vacancy caused by Williams's absence. Choat, who it would seem had not been ordained, was appointed chaplain, probably by military commission. He was the youngest son of John, the first of that name in Ipswich. He was born in 1680, graduated at Harvard College in the class of 1703, and after leaving Deerfield was for some time a preacher at Kingston, New Hampshire.

"June 21, 1705. Pursuant to a Resolve passed by the General Assembly at their Session begun the twenty fifth of October 1704, that the sum of Twenty pounds be allowed and paid out of the Publick Treasury for the support of a Chaplain to the Town and Garrison at Deerfield, by the space of six Months, and it being certified that Mr Benjamin Chote has Officiated as Chaplain there, during the <sup>sd</sup> six Months, ending the twentieth of May last.

Advised and Consented That a Warrant be issued to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of Twenty pounds to the said Mr Chote accordingly." — Vol. 4, p. 182.

The province treasurer's account* from May 31, 1705, to May 31, 1706, shows that this amount was duly paid.

After the capture of the Rev. John Williams, as mentioned in the note to chapter 6, ante, no provision for stated preaching at Deerfield appears to have been made until the passage of this chapter. Meanwhile the poverty of the inhabitants was such that it appeared to the committees of war for Connecticut that the billeting, or otherwise subsisting, the men sent by them to Deerfield was too great a burden upon the town, and, believing that the province should make special provision for maintaining a minister in the town besides garrisoning it and still further relieving the inhabitants, they concluded to withdraw their contingent there under Captain Newberry. This appears in the following extract from a letter to Governor Winthrop signed by Caleb Stanly, senior, for the committees: —

"HARTFORD, July 11<sup>d</sup> 1704.

• • • Furder we offer to yo<sup>r</sup> Hon<sup>s</sup> consideration that Capt. Newberry's company may be speedily removed from Deerfield, being just out off order by reason offe being so long without a minister and the poore destressed people with him; and other inconveniences offe two captains in that poore little place that occations som divisions amongst them, and its thought most expediant that onely Capt. Welles be cap<sup>t</sup> in that place, & a Liu<sup>t</sup> with the rest of the forces sent up to garrison there." — Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 240.

Owing to the delay of the authorities at Boston, however, the Connecticut soldiers were not relieved for some weeks, possibly not until September.

See resolves, 1705-6, chapter 68, and 1706-7, chapter 44.

Chap. 56. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 79, and archives, vol. 17, p. 128.

The order which constitutes this chapter is another illustration of the prevalence in the province (against the opinion of the best lawyers †) of the rule that estates devised in tail were not partible and could neither be barred nor alienated, in deed or in law, without authority from the Legislature.

The devise under which the petitioners claimed was in the following words: —

"Item my will is that if my Son Isaac Adams be yet alive & Shall returne againe to Boston that he Shall have & Injoy after my <sup>sd</sup> Wifes Decease all that my house & Land in Boston which I bought of John Can with the profits priuiledges & apputenances unto him his heires & assignes for ever . . . Item my will is that in case my <sup>sd</sup> Sone Isaac returne not to Boston againe then I gine & bequeath the <sup>sd</sup> house & Land that I bought of John Can as afores<sup>d</sup> unto my grandchilde Sarah Adams Daughter of my Sone David Adams & to the heires of her body Lawfully Begotten and for default of Such Issue then I gine the <sup>sd</sup> house & Land unto my grandchild David Adams the Sone of Dauide adams & to his heires & assignes for ever: Item my will is that in case my <sup>sd</sup> Sone Isaac doe Returne to Boston againe that my foure Eldest Sons pay or cause to bee paid unto my <sup>sd</sup> Grandchild Sarah the Summe of ten Pounds apeece in money when She Shall attaine the age of eightene yeares or the day of marriage." ‡

The petition mentioned in the preamble to this chapter (with the assent of the next remainder-man subscribed) is as follows: —

The above petition was read in Council on the day of its date. On the first of November the order thereon was passed by both branches and consented to by the Governor.

The sale authorized by this chapter was made to Thomas Kellum of Boston, glazier, for ninety pounds "curr<sup>t</sup> Silver money of New England," and the deed * thereof is dated November 28, 1704. The estate is described as follows: —

"All that their Messuage or Tenement Scituate lying and being at the Northerly end of Boston afores<sup>d</sup> being the house & Land abovementioned butted and bounded Easterly by the land formerly of the widow Hett now of Benjamin Fitch Southerly by the Town Street, westerly by the Land of Lawrence White & Northerly by the Land of Daniel Turell measuring in breadth at the Southerly end Twenty two foot, and in breadth at the rear or Northerly end Thirty five foot Together with all profits priviledges Easements," etc.

The editor is indebted to Mr. Henry H. Edes for the following identification of the site of this estate: It is on the westerly side of what was formerly North Street but is now Hanover Street, between Charter Street and Lynn (now Commercial) Street. In all probability it is now numbered 426 and 428 Hanover Street, and makes the northerly corner of Fountain Place.

Sarah Adams, the widow, died testate, and her will, dated October 16, 1684, and admitted to probate May 14, 1685, contained this clause: —

"The Reasons why I give nothing to my Son David and Jonathan now, they having had of me already Sixty pounds in money each of them besides sundry other things which I shall not particularize." — Suffolk Probate Records, lib. 6, p. 508.

Immediately following the record of Mrs. Adams's will is the record of an agreement among her children, acknowledged before Isaac Addington on the second of July. It is given below: —

"Whereas there hath been some difference between us the Subscribers about the Estate left by our Father Nathaniel Adams Dece<sup>d</sup> and our mother Sarah Adams. Wee do hereby in order to the continuance of Brotherly love agree as followeth. Imprs That whereas wee each of us have enjoyed houses and Lands as they were devised to us by the last will of our Father aboves<sup>d</sup> hitherto; So that each of us shall have hold & enjoy the same wee our heires Exec<sup>rs</sup> Adm<sup>rs</sup> respectively for ever — 2<sup>ly</sup>. The action, which by this chapter was ordered to be tried anew, was brought upon a writ of capias and attachment, in the usual form, dated February 23, 1703-4, and returnable to the Inferior Court of Common Pleas for Essex County, at Ipswich, on the last Tuesday of March, 1704. The attachment was for twenty-six pounds, and the ad damnum was fixed at fourteen pounds. The "debt" declared on was "for Neglecting & refusing to pay vnto y<sup>e</sup> plaintiffs y<sup>e</sup> summe of thirteen pounds fifteen shillings & 6<sup>d</sup> being so much owing & Justly due to y<sup>e</sup> plaintiffs on ballance of account of worke made vp & Settled vnder y<sup>e</sup> said Menzies hand y<sup>e</sup> 22<sup>d</sup> Day of February 1703/4, which tho' thereto required yet he neglects to pay y<sup>e</sup> Same/ To the damage,"† etc.

The writ was served by attaching the body of the defendant, who gave bond, with one surety, in the sum of twenty-six pounds, in the usual form.

Although, since there was no positive statute or rule of practice to the contrary, it might be supposed that any bench of sensible men would have deemed the plaintiffs' declaration and proof an insimul computassent, made out with sufficient clearness, the defendant, without pleading in abatement, or filing a written motion to dismiss, succeeded in convincing the Court that it was their duty to abate the writ and award him costs. The plaintiffs were accordingly nonsuited, whereupon they appealed to the Superior Court of Judicature next to be holden in the same place on the third Tuesday of May.

The following are the plaintiffs' reasons of appeal:—

The judgment of the Court on this appeal was entered as of the sixteenth of May, as follows:—

“And now Upon hearing the Pleas of both Parties Its Considered by the Court & they Adjudge the Writ to be good & well brought & reverse the Judgm<sup>t</sup> of the Inferiour Court & award to the Appellants their full Costs of both Courts.”—Records of the Superior Court of Judicature, 1700-1714, fol. 127.

The costs of both courts awarded to the plaintiffs, amounting to five pounds six shillings, were duly certified to by acting Chief Justice Sewall.

The case, being now remanded to the Common Pleas, came up for trial at the June term in Salem, when, by the consent of both the plaintiffs and the defendant, it was continued to the next term, — thirty shillings additional costs being allowed to the plaintiffs.

The next term was held at Newbury on the twenty-sixth of September, but the case was not then tried, for, previous to the sitting, Stephen Sewall, the clerk of the Court, received from the defendant the following letter:—

Major Stephen Sewall

The grounds of this extraordinary proceeding are shown in the judgment by the phrase “ye plaintiffs having lapst thier time for tryall,†” — a conclusion evidently founded upon the assumption that the requirement of the act † relating to appeals from judgments in bar or abatement should be literally complied with, and that it was therefore imperative upon the Inferior Court to try this case upon its merits “at the next session,” after it was remanded, and “without any delay,” — thus converting what was intended as a shield to protect the plaintiffs’ rights into a sword to defeat them altogether.

The plaintiffs tendered their appeal from this judgment, which being rejected, they had recourse to the Legislature for the justice denied them by the proper tribunal in the following petition, which, with copies of the Court’s proceedings annexed, was read in the House, October 25, 1704: —

“To His Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq; Cap<sup>t</sup> Generall & Governour in Chief in and Ouer Her Majties Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England &c; and to the Honourable Her Majties Council; and House of Representatiues Assembled In Great & Generall Court at Boston by Prorogation Octobr 25th 1704

On the thirty-first the order which constitutes this chapter was passed in the House and sent up to the Council, for concurrence. On the third of November it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

In compliance with this order of the General Court a summons was duly issued and served upon the defendant. The following is a copy of the summons and of the return of service thereon: —

The cause came on for trial as directed in the order of the General Court, and the plaintiffs recovered judgment; from which the defendant appealed, as appears by the following copy of the record:—

Meanwhile execution had been issued by the Superior Court for the five pounds six shillings costs awarded at the May term. This writ bears date October twentieth, and upon it William Gedney made two returns under date of November fourteenth, averring, in the former, that he had levied upon fifty shillings of the defendant's money, but could “finde no other estate att present,” and in the latter, that he had offered this fifty shillings to Joseph Neale, one of the plaintiffs, who had refused to receive it. “notwithstanding he said he had power from Nath<sup>l</sup> Silsby to Receive the Same: but said mony fifty shillings Is In my hands: and am Ready to pay on Demand.”*

The defendant's appeal was duly entered in the Superior Court at the May term, 1705. His reasons, which were seasonably filed on the thirtieth of April, were as follows:—

“Essex ss: To the hon<sup>ble</sup> her Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Justices of the Superior Court of Judicature to be holden at Ipswich for the County of Essex on the third Tuesday of May 1705.

To the above reasons the plaintiffs replied as follows:—

NATHANIEL SILLSBEE
JOSEPH NEALE." — Ibid.

The conclusion of the judgment on this last issue, which was rendered by the Superior Court at the same term, was as follows:—

"Both parties Appeared the Writ Judgment Reasons of Appeal & all things touching the same being fully heard the whole was Committ'd to the Jury, who were Sworne to try the Same and Returned their Verdict therein upon Oath That is to say they find for the Appellees Confirmation of the former Judgment & Cost of Courts. Its therefore Considered by the Court that the s<sup>d</sup> Nath<sup>l</sup> Silsby & Joseph Neale shall Recover of the s<sup>d</sup> James Meinziez the Sum of Thirteene pounds fifteene shillings & Six pence money debt and Cost of Courts Taxed at Seven pounds fourteene shillings & Ten pence." — Records of the Superior Court of Judicature, 1700-1714, fol. 158.

Upon this, execution for the debt claimed and for £7 14s. 10d.* costs of suit, making a total of £21 10s. 4d., was issued May 22, 1705, and directed to the sheriffs of Essex, Middlesex and Suffolk.

On the thirty-first of July Sheriff Gedney of Essex made return that he had "not seen the body" of the defendant within his precinct since he received the execution until that day, when he saw him in Middlesex, whereupon he delivered the execution to the sheriff of that county; that he could find no estate belonging to the defendant in Essex county; and that Neale, for himself and as attorney for Silsbee, had ordered him to receive satisfaction in paper money. On the same day, Samuel Gookin, junior under-sheriff of Middlesex, returned that for want of estate or money to the acceptance of the creditors he had committed the body of Meinziez to the jail in Cambridge. Four days later sheriff Gookin made the following final return:—

folk Court Files.

It was not, however, until nearly thirteen months after this deposit was made with the clerk that the plaintiffs got their money, as appears by the following receipt, which was endorsed on a copy of the execution on file:—

NATH SILLSBEE

The defendant appointed Samuel Wakefield § his attorney in this case with power of substitution, and he, in turn, employed Paul Dudley and Joseph Hearne of Boston, sworn attorneys, to conduct the case.

The witnesses summoned for the plaintiffs, and who appear to have been in attendance when the case was in order for trial, were Jeremiah Neale and George Locker of Salem. They deposed that February 22, 1703-4, they heard Meinziez ask the plaintiff Neale if the casements were made, who replied that they were and that they would have been "put up before now but we waited for your order and some iron-work," whereupon Meinziez replied that it was no matter for he thought "of building a house at the eastward and should then have need of them," adding a request that Neale keep them and not to deliver them to any one but himself "or some particular order in writing under my hand, and I will pay you for houseroom."

The snow-shoes, the cost of which is provided for in this and the following chapter, were ordered for the winter campaign of 1703-4. See chapters 66 and 85 of that year and the notes thereto. The following is the account referred to in the resolve as "on the other side:"—

"febrn: 4 1703/4

* The taxation of costs for the May term, 1705, has not been found. In adding the items of the other bills of costs on file there are some apparent errors, by which the plaintiffs seem to have been allowed seventeen shillings less than they claimed.

HENRY SOMERBY." — Mass.

The "order of his Excellency," under which this debt and the debt mentioned in the next chapter were incurred, was undoubtedly a military order as Commander-in-Chief, and so, as in the case of military commissions, etc., has no place in the records either of the Governor and Council or of the General Court.

After the purchase of these snow-shoes and before the passage of this resolve, the act of 1704-5, chapter 4, was passed, directing that the militia on the frontiers be provided with snow-shoes; and from that time forth the accounts for this item of military equipment were rendered to the Governor and Council under the third section of that act.

The amounts ordered to be paid by this and the next chapter were included in one warrant, as follows:—

"Nov. 20, 1704. To Mr John Chandler the several sums of Five pounds nine shillings, and two pounds five shillings and six pence, for Twenty five pair of snow shoes, delivered by himselfe, and eleven pair delivered by Lt John Barker to Capt<sup>l</sup> Henry Somersby in February last, & for charges in gathering them together to be by him paid to the several persons to whom it is respectively due." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 110.

The province treasurer's account* shows that both orders were paid in one sum.

The snow-shoes, the payments for which were reimbursed by this chapter, were procured for the same purpose and by the same authority as were those mentioned in the preceding chapter. The order for the executive warrant and the reference to the entry of payment thereof in the province treasurer's account are also given in the note to that chapter.

The following is the memorandum or receipt of payment referred to in the resolve as "within mentioned:"—

"Febr: 4: 1705.

Then Received of Lent<sup>t</sup> John Barker of Andouer: Eleuen paire of snow shues: att two pound three shillings & six pence in siluer moneý for ye owners will not part with them without this promis which I haue ingaged on ye prouince behalfe by order of his Exelency: Recened p<sup>r</sup> me HENRY SOMERBY.

John Harraden, according to Babson,† was born in 1663, the son of Edward, who removed from Ipswich to Gloucester in 1657 and was the first settler on Squam Point. John was a noted master-mariner, served in the provincial navy as commander or pilot, and was distinguished for his exploits as a privateer.‡ "He died Nov. 11, 1724; having survived his wife Sarah Giddings, by whom he had several children, about two years."†

Harraden's company was the one which Colonel Benjamin Church § raised on his way to Piscataqua to take command of the expedition to the Bay of Fundy in the spring of 1704, as described in the note to resolves, 1703-4, chapter 100. This company probably formed part of the Governor's escort.

Though this resolve provides only for the payment of the captain and lieutenant, the following order in Council for a warrant on the province treasurer shows that the wages of the privates in Harraden's company were paid as well as those of the officers:—

"Nov. 3, 1704. A Muster Roll of the Foot Company under the Command of Capt<sup>l</sup> John Harraden in the late expedition into the Bay of Fundey, containing an account of Wages for their service from the 25th of April 1704. to the 13th of August following for the Captain, being Fifteen weeks and six days, the most of the Company being but twelve weeks and six days, amounting in the whole to ninety seven pounds, eleven shill<sup>s</sup> and three pence whereof eight pounds, nineteen shill<sup>s</sup> and two pence taken up of the Commissary being subducted, rests due to ballance Eighty eight pounds, twelve shillings and a penny, having been examin'd by the Commissary General was presented—and.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out thereupon to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of eighty eight pounds, Twelve shillings and a penny to the sd Capt<sup>l</sup> Harraden and Company accordingly." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 103.

The province treasurer's accounts || show that of this amount £83 7s. was paid to Harraden and company, and the rest to "Matthew Coneway" and "John Honywell," two men who served under him.

JONATHAN TYNG.— Mass.

Archives, vol. 71, p. 83.

The order of the Governor referred to in the above petition has not been found. It was undoubtedly a military order by the Commander-in-Chief, and therefore not a matter of record in the legislative or executive journals.

This petition was read in the House on the day of its date, when this chapter was passed by both branches and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council* for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed November 20, 1704, and by the province treasurer's account† it appears to have been duly paid.

Chap. 62. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 81. It has not been found in the archives.

For previous proceedings in the controversy between Penn and Hill see chapter 27, ante, and note. The hearing upon the petition of Thomas and Samuel French and John Bowditch, appointed for “the second Wednesday of the next session” of the General Court, could not be held according to appointment, inasmuch as the session lasted but four days. The order of notice, however, was duly served, as appears by the following return affixed to the petition:—

“At the Request of Mr Joseph Hill w<sup>t</sup> in mensioned I Read this notificasion to the w<sup>t</sup> in named Thomas french samuel french and John Boudidge on the twentieth of July & the 26th of July 1704

No further action upon this petition has been discovered, either in the record or the files, until the passage of the order which constitutes this chapter.

The result of this last order of the Court was to transfer the case to the Governor and Council as the supreme court of probate.

The first entry of judicial action relating to this matter that has been found in the executive records of the council is the following memorandum, under date of June 2, 1705, of a hearing and a resolution thereupon:—

“A hearing haveing been had before this Board upon the Challenge made by Richard Draper and Joseph Hill Attourny of Anthony Penn of Brumingham, to the instrument approved and allowed as and for the last Will and Testament of his Uncle William Penn late of Brantrey within the County of Suffolk yeoman deced, as false and forged. And the question being put whither there do appear in the Law a forgery or perjury to void the Will.

Answered in the Negative.”— Vol. 4, p. 176.

This ambiguous resolution, however, did not preclude further attempts to set the will aside. A deposition dated September 24, 1705, and two others, both dated June 3, 1707, are on file, together with other depositions of as late date as 1716, one of which later papers was to show that Anthony Penn, the heir, died about 1710.

The deposition first named was by John Marsh, taken at New York before William Peartree, mayor, in which the deponent declared that he saw Pottwine make the rough draught of Penn's will after his death and use the dead man's hand in making the mark thereto; that he afterwards went to summon Doctor John Lee to draw the will in regular form; and that he heard Edward Hill promise ten pounds, each, to the subscribing witnesses as a reward for attesting it. He also repeated his former declarations to Joseph Hill that he had opposed his wife's testifying to the will in Court, and of his going to Concord to warn her against yielding to the persnasions of Edward Hill, who, by another road, was going thither for that purpose.

The next two depositions were by John Alkins and Susanna Critchfield, respectively. The former declared that, when the persons around Sea's deathbed left the room to give Mary Marsh an opportunity to confer with Sea alone, he and Mrs. Critchfield “stepped behind the screen that stood by his bedside,” and that he heard Mrs. Marsh say, “Thomas, what need have you to say anything to bring me into trouble?—or to that effect.” This Mrs. Critchfield corroborated, adding that she heard Mrs. Marsh say further, “Thomas, what need have you to say anything about old Penn's will, or to make trouble? You will get nothing by it.”

The judicial proceedings torevoke the probate of the will appear to have been suspended between 1707 and 1715.

* Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 110.

† Mass. Archives, vol. 122, p. 225.

In the mean time, however, Clement Cock renewed his application for an act granting him a new trial, and John Hollis, at the same time, applied for a similar favor.

Cock's petition was identical with his petition of July, 1703,* save the addition of the following concluding passage:—

“and whereas Yoꝝ Pettꝛ presented this Pettion to this Great & Generl Assembly at their Sessions In July, 1703 but Nothing then or since being Done in Answere thereto Yoꝝ Pettꝛ Now Humbly prays That Yoꝝ Excellenꝝ & this Honoꝛble Court will please Now to Consider the Deploꝛiable Circumstanc of Yoꝝ Pettꝛ & relive him accordingly and Yoꝝ Pettꝛ shall ever pray. &c.” — Mass. Archives, vol. 40, p. 866.

Hollis's petition was as follows:—

“To His Excey Joseph Dudly Esqꝛ Capꝛ Genꝛ & Governꝛ in Cheife in & over the Province of the Massachꝛs Bay & And to the Honoꝛble Council of the sꝛ Province & Honoꝛble house of Representatives Convinced † in Genꝛ Assembly.

These petitions were both presented to the General Court in the first session of 1706,—probably on the twentieth of June, on which day they were both read in Council, but no further action thereon is recorded.

Cock applied again February 13, 1709-10, praying to be enabled to have a review of the action in which Penn recovered judgment against him. Upon this the General Court ordered a hearing, after notice to the adverse party, who, in the mean time, was “forbidden to make any strip or waste of the timber or trees on the land in dispute.” †

The date assigned for the hearing was the first Tuesday of the next May session. By adjournment, it was postponed until the seventh of June, on which day the following record was made:—

“June 7, 1710. A Hearing having been appointed before this Court of the Petition of Clement Cock, Praying to be Enabled to have a new Tryal of a Cause wherein Joseph

Hill Attorney of Anthony Penn as Heir of William Penn late of Brantrey Dec<sup>d</sup> recovered against him in the Superiour Court of Judicature 1698 :

The Parties appeared, & being heard before the Council ; — And the Question being put, Whither the Petitioner shall have a Tryal granted him ? It past in the Negative.

Which being disagreed to by the Representatives ; And a Vote pass'd in that House for a Tryal, And sent up for Concurrence ; The Council voted a Non-Concurrence therewith." — Council Records, vol. IX., p. 32.

From the following entry it appears that nearly six years later Anthony Penn made another ineffectual attempt to obtain his rights : —

"Dec. 6, 1715. A Petition of Joseph Hill being twice read was ordered to be dismiss'd." — Ibid., vol. X., p. 19.

Very likely the purpose of the petitioner was to procure an act or resolve of the Legislature, although his application may have been made to the Governor and Council for a judicial remedy, since it was not uncommon to enter judicial and executive proceedings in the volumes that contain the legislative records of the Council.

Finally, six months after this last order, the question of the validity of the will was settled by the Governor and Council in the following judicial declaration : —

"June 25, 1716. A full hearing having been had before this Board the twenty first current upon the Petition of Joseph Hill & Richard Draper Attorneys of Anthony Penn of Bermingham & Mary Ensor of Dennington in Great Britain setting forth that the Instrument approved & allowed as & for the last Will & Testament of their uncle William Penn late of Brantrey within the County of Suffolk yeoman deceased is false & forged, Praying that the s<sup>d</sup> last Will & Testement may be declared null & void & all the evidences & papers produced by both partys relating thereto were distinctly read over & deliberately debated Voted & declared That the s<sup>d</sup> Will be null & void." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 6, p. 477.

This judgment, solemnly declared, after due deliberation, upon a hearing of all parties interested, remained final and unrevoked.

Dudley, by whom the will was originally admitted to probate, and who had succeeded Stoughton as chief executive, and head of the Council of the province, had been superseded only the year before, which circumstance, possibly, may account for the delay in revoking his decree. Sewall, who fails to make any mention of this case in its earlier stages, thus records the final action of the Supreme Court of Probate : —

"June, 25. [1716.] W<sup>m</sup> Penn's Will is declared Null and Void." — Diary, vol. III., p. 88.

Nine years later Samuel Broughton, one of the heirs of Mary Ensor, coheir of Anthony Penn, conveyed * to William Walker all the interest which he had acquired through her in the estate of William Penn. This is another indication that the heirs, as defined by the provincial laws of descent, had finally prevailed against the fraudulent devisee. Hence Anthony did not succeed to the whole by right of primogeniture, but only to his portion in common with his consin.

This petition was read, first, in the Council on the third of November, on which day the order which constitutes this chapter was passed by both branches and consented to by the Governor.

For an account of Duncan Campbell's widow Susanna, see note to resolves, 1703-4, chapter 30.

house is a list of names under the head of "Coffe Houses," entered before the record of the beginning of the October term of the Court of Sessions in Suffolk for 1704, as follows:—

"Robert Gutteridge . . . . . 1.
Nicholas Boon . . . . . 0,, 10."

From the small amount paid by Boone it seems likely that this entry referred to a license given by virtue of this chapter, for the remainder of the year, and that, being issued out of season, the clerk entered it back with the last record of a license for a coffee-house.

In 1704 Boone's bookstore* appears to have been in his dwelling-house, on the site of, and perhaps in the building, kept as an ordinary by James Penn as early as 1645.† It seems to have stood between the post-office and the estate of which Benjamin Davis died seised in 1704, which was on the western side of Washington Street, and formed the southern corner of Court Avenue.

This petition was read, first, in the Council, on the seventh of November, when the order which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the House for concurrence. On the next day it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

Samuel Graves, senior, of Hatfield (son of Isaac) died February 8, 1692-3. His wife Sarah (Colton) having died July 11, 1689, he married Deliverance ——— January 1, 1689-90, who, having survived him, was married before the date of this resolve to Isaac, son of John Graves. Samuel's three sons were Samuel, born March 2, 1685-6, — for whose cure the expenses mentioned in this chapter were incurred, — Joseph and Thomas. The last appears to have been the son of the second wife, since his birth is recorded as occurring October 21, 1690.

In 1697-8 † the administrators having fully administered all the personal estate of their intestate obtained from the probate court the following decree for turning over the real estate to the control of the guardians of the minor children:—

At the date of this decree there was no provision for the sale of a minor's real estate by his guardian.‡ The Court of Sessions therefore ordered the selectmen of Hatfield, where the minor was staying in charge of a physician, to take care of him. Their authority for this, apparently, was the act|| for the relief of idiots and distracted persons. After the decease of the minor, the selectmen presented to the Court of Sessions their account of expenses for his board and care, with the view of raising, by the sale of his real estate, a sum sufficient to discharge the balance due. The Court, however, had no jurisdiction in this matter, that function belonging exclusively to the Superior Court of Judicature; and as the sessions of the latter were at the time suspended¶ in Hampshire County, the petitioners were referred to the Legislature.

The orders of the Court of Sessions and the selectmen's account are as follows:—

* In several title-pages in 1701 ("The Fear of an Oath," by Rev. Samuel Willard, and "The Blessed Hope," etc., by Rev. Increase Mather) Boone describes it as "over against the Old Meeting House." This seems to indicate that, at that date, he was either in Davis's building or on the other side of Washington Street.

‡ No date appears in the decree, but the last preceding entry in the record bears date March 4, 1697[8?].

This petition was read in the House on the day of its date, when the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed by both branches and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council † for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed November 20, 1704, and by the province treasurer's account ‡ it appears to have been duly paid.

This petition was read, first, in the House November 1, 1704. On the third the order which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the eighth it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

Samoset Place was laid out through a part of the realty conveyed by Towt to his son which, on its southeastern boundary, adjoined the estate of Mountfort, described in the note to chapter 11, ante. The following is the description given in the deed:—

“All that my Messnage or Tenement with all the Land whereupon the same doth stand and is thereunto belonging (in the present Tenure and occupacōn of me the s<sup>d</sup> Richard Towt Sen<sup>r</sup>.) scituate lying and being at the Northerly end of the Towne of Boston afores<sup>d</sup> butting and bounded Northerly upon a certaine Lane knowne and called by the name of Blackhorse Lane, Easterly by the land of Edmond Mountfort, Southerly upon the land [Richard?] Bennet, and Westerly upon the land of Charles Precious, or howsoever otherwise bounded or reputed to be bounded: Measureing in breadth at the front by the said lane Thirty one ffoot or thereabout, and in breadth at the Reare Thirty one foot be it more or less upon the land of the said Precious, and in Length from front to reare ninety [—] foot be it more or less keeping the aforesaid breadth throughout the whole length.” — Suffolk Registry of Deeds, lib. 17, fol. 28.

The following are the items of personal estate conveyed in the same instrument:—

* In the province treasurer's accounts, and in the legislative list for this year, as representative of the town of York, he is styled “Captain.” — See Archives, vol. 122, p. 251.

An affidavit of livery of seisin, clearly sworn to by John Coombs and Eliezer Moody before John Eyre and Jeremiah Dummer, justices of the peace, was endorsed on the deed.

Under the authority conferred by this chapter “Richard Towte . . . Lighterman,” conveyed this estate, describing it as in Black-Horse Lane, to “William Browne of Boston . . . Joyner,” January 1, 1704–5, by deed recorded in Suffolk Registry of Deeds, lib. 22, p. 108.

On the third of November, 1704, the House ordered that a message be sent up to the Council recommending that a day of thanksgiving and a day of fasting be kept. The former part of this order was as follows:—

“Ordered That a Message be sent up to the Board, That a Day of Publick Thanksgiving be in a short Time Appointed, and Solemnized, throughout the severall Towns & Precincts of this Province, for the very great, and various Occasions thereof, which It is left to the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Board to Enumerate.” — Mass. Archives, vol. 11, p. 194.

Thereupon the appointment mentioned in this chapter was agreed to, and on the same day the following proclamation was signed and published:—

“By His Excellency, JOSEPH DUDLEY, Esqr Captain General and GOVERNOUR in Chief, in and over Her Majesties Province of the Massachusetts Bay, &c. in New-England.

The vote of the House of the twenty-ninth of June, 1704, printed in the note to chapter 3, ante, not having been concurred in by the Council, nothing further was done upon the report (which is printed in the same note) of the committee upon Usher's accounts, in either the first or second session of the General Court this year; but on the seventh day of the third session, the report, which had remained with the Council, was sent down to the House, as appears by the following entry:—

“Oct. 31, 1704. The Report of the Committee upon the Account of John Usher Esqr late Treas<sup>r</sup> of the Territory of New England, refer'd by the Represent<sup>es</sup> for Consideration at this Session, was sent down to that House.” — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 77.

On the third of November the House again took into consideration the vote of the Council of June 28, 1704, and passed a vote thereon, which is endorsed upon the report of the committee, as follows:—

“In the House of Representatives Novr 3: 1704:

Archives, vol. 101, p. 271.

Six days later the representatives passed the following vote, in which the Council concurred:—

“Novemr 9: 1704. Upon further Consideration of this Report

Ordered That Mr Usher have Liberty to be heard upon the matter therein Contained on the next Tues-Day before this Court.” — Ibid.

These votes the Secretary, when he made up his records, combined in the form of this chapter.

On the ninth, upon further consideration, the House passed the order which constitutes this chapter.

The subsequent action upon Usher's accounts will appear later on. See resolves, 1707, chapter 2, and note.

During the whole of May, Dudley had held to his intention to forward two hundred additional volunteers to Hatfield by the last of the month, nor did he abandon his purpose to send this reinforcement until nearly a month later; but Massachusetts had already about fifteen hundred men in arms, and the possibility might have been foreseen, as the event proved, that a still larger force would be called into service at the eastward. Hence, after apprehensions as to the presence of a large force of the enemy at Cowassic had been quieted upon the return of Lyman's scouts, notwithstanding continued rumors of the enemy's approach,* Dudley decided that the menace upon which his promise was founded no longer existed, and, therefore, on the twenty-fourth of June, he informed Winthrop that the two hundred men† intended for Hampshire had been sent to join the forces raised to meet the enemy in New Hampshire and western Maine.

But those who were conducting military affairs at the west could not dispel the suspicion that the enemy was intending to attack them in force from the north.‡ This suspicion was founded upon the circumstances described in the note to resolves, 1705-6, chapter 26, and though the project of moving in force through the wilderness in search of the enemy was not approved by them, they were fixed in their purpose to be constantly on the alert for his approach, and to keep up the garrisons to their full capacity.

All, however, even among the rulers of Connecticut, were not thus affected by the situation, and in consequence of the feeling that the imminent peril was past, squad after squad of the reinforcing parties were being called home, notwithstanding the tidings "of approaching danger" that had come from Albany, as narrated in the note to chapter 7, ante. These tidings revived or confirmed the apprehensions of those who had been most anxious in regard to the prospect of invasion. The governor of Connecticut, recognizing the reasonableness of the desire of his volunteers, whose service had been prolonged far beyond the period for which they had enlisted, to return to their families and to their ordinary vocations, was embarrassed by the prospect which their proposed desertion of the frontiers presented. All the fresh recruits available were seasonably forwarded to take the place of those who were leaving the front.§

Nearly two weeks before Winthrop received Dudley's discouraging letter he had thought of applying for assistance to the governor of New York, but upon advice of the committees of war for the counties of Fairfield and New Haven he abandoned that project in the hope of enlisting the Mohegans and the Five Nations as allies.

With about seven hundred men in the woods or in garrison, most of whom were on territory in which neither the legislature nor the Governor could exercise any official authority, this little colony || was facing the possibility of being suddenly confronted by a powerful, experienced and well-appointed army, inspired with the most sanguine hopes of conquest, and bent on savage vengeance. Encouragement was derived at this stage from the vote of the Legislature of Massachusetts, chapter 7, ante, and, later on, by the vote, chapter 19, ante, for subsisting Connecticut men in garrison, so as to release an equal number of Massachusetts soldiers for service on the northwestern frontier.

From contemporary correspondence and other well-attested evidence it appears that Major Whiting was convinced that the repeated reports of an intended invasion from Canada were well founded, and that it was not improbable that a considerable body of the enemy was already approaching the towns of northern Hampshire. As the best plan, therefore, for overcoming the apathy of those who were acting as if all danger were past, he seems to have suggested that the project of a large expedition to Cowassic be revived. Four days, therefore, after Dudley had written notifying Winthrop of the withholding of the contingent he had promised for the contemplated expedition thither, a council of war, presided over by Colonel Partridge, decided that no better measure could be taken "for the improvement of our forces for her majesty's service" than to march to Cowassic a body of five hundred men, besides the Mohegan Indians under Whiting's command. The following extract from a letter¶ written by the latter to Governor Winthrop shows that a considerable portion of his recent reinforcements had been called off, and that, therefore, he had sufficient cause for apprehension that a diminution of the forces in northern Hampshire would inevitably be followed by irretrievable disaster: —

"Honorable S<sup>ts</sup>, — Mr Saltonstalls letter of the 24th currant recd on the 26th, and according to your Honours direction we reforc'd by Capt Wells wth 60 men. Have just now received orders from the Comitty of Warr for his drawing off; shall therefore dismiss him to-morrow. On the 25th instant came in hither 80 men from Boston, and Capt Colton wth

† See notes to chapters 53, ante, and 81, post.

‡ Documents relating to the history of New France now rendered accessible to the public, through the wise liberality of the legislature of Quebec, show that an expedition on an unprecedentedly large scale was preparing to start from Montreal by direction of Vaudreuil. On the twelfth of May Beauharnois and on the thirteenth of June Vaudreuil held conferences at Quebec with different tribes of New-England savages — the latter avowing his desire to enlist the savages against New England. According to the statement of the deserter (Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 245), this army moved, on the fifteenth of June, by way of Cowassic. Vaudreuil had assured the savages who had responded to his call that he had already two hundred men enlisted, and urged them to abandon their village at Cowassic, and come to reside in Canada. — "Documents," etc., II., 411, 416.

§ On the nineteenth of June the following item appeared in the News-Letter: —

"New-London June 15. . . . On Tuesday Marched Capt. Samuel Eells of Millford with 100, men to Reinforce, Major Whiting at N. Hampton. This is the 21st. day of the Enemies French and Indians March from Canada, as we are informed." — No. 9.

|| Approximately, and in round numbers, the population of Connecticut at that time was 25,000, while, on the same basis, the population of Massachusetts, including Maine, was not less than 83,000; but Dudley, writing to Winthrop, March 24, 1706-7, says "it is in everybody's knowledge that Connecticut was always above half in proportion to the Massachusetts."

¶ Dated Northampton, twenty-eighth of June, "about 9 at night." — Winthrop Papers, V., p. 233.

100 from the lower townes of this county, who will likewise draw off to-morrow; they can by no means be delay'd. Since we make no discovery of the enemy our people grow impatient, and from thence conclude there is no approaching danger; for my owne part I verily conclude they will be here ere long." — Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 233.

On the third of July an intercepted letter "from a gentleman in Canada to a gentleman in Port Royal" was published in the News-Letter, in which not only the departure, "since the last fall, . . . of several parties of French and Indians . . . against the English" was mentioned as a matter of common knowledge, but the condition of Canada was represented as so miserable that the inhabitants "must absolutely abandon it before two years, or God must work miracles to preserve it." This presented the category of actual or threatened famine as an inducement to further depredations on the well-stocked barns and granaries of New England. On the eighth Colonel Schuyler gave notice that a large force of the enemy had set out from Montreal. The tidings reached Boston by the twelfth, as the following entry in the executive records of the council shows:—

"His Excellency communicated to the Council a letter from Lt. Col. Partridge, with one inclosed of the 8th currant from Col. Schyler at Albany having lately been in the Indu Country confirming the Intelligence of a Body of French and Indians to the number of near eight hundred set forth from Mont Real for New England." — Vol. 4, p. 41.

Fresh reports of Indian outrages accompanied these rumors. As, previous to the attacks upon Deerfield and Pascomuck, assaults by the enemy had been reported from western Maine, New Hampshire and the valley of the Merrimac, so now the News-Letter of the first week in July reported the appearance, on the fourth, of eight Indians near the garrison at York, and of their endeavor to capture, presumably for the purpose of obtaining information of the strength of the frontier posts, and of the disposition of the English forces, one who had ventured outside its walls.

About three weeks later, more conclusive evidence of the near approach of the enemy came by way of Deerfield. This was the report of a deserter from the army of the Sieur de Beaucourt, which had been slowly moving down from Canada by way of Lake Champlain and the Connecticut valley, in the course described in the note to resolves, 1705-6, chapter 26. Beaucourt led the second and by far the more formidable of the two expeditions against Massachusetts, that had been planned by Vaudreuil, and are mentioned in that note.

The intelligence of Beaucourt's movements, which had been first obtained by the Mohawks and communicated from Albany, was corroborated by an unexpected witness in the manner described by Whiting in the following letter to Governor Winthrop, in which he also gives the witness's account of himself and the measures taken to test his credibility:—

"N: HAMPTON, July 28th 1704.

Honorable Sr, — I presume the intelligence brought us by a Frenchman on the 23. inst has been long since sent to your Honour. On the 24th the man being brought hither upon further examination confirms the accot he gaue at Deerfield, vizi that they came out of Mont Royall wth 340 Indians and 140 French, under command of Sheualeir Bocorr, that they had been out one month and eight dayes, and that they left their first canoes wch they came out in at a small fort standing upon a river coming out or runing into the lake on the other side the mountaines, at w<sup>ch</sup> fort there is 5 Frenchmen, besides 9 Indians they left wth their canoes, and that the signe to be given at their returne thither is a leaf in each mans mouth; from which place they traueled seven dayes ouer the mountaines ere they came to Connecticut Riner; that upon the 22<sup>d</sup> instant about nine in the morning they lodg'd their canoes three mile above the West Riuer and march'd from thence toward the mountaines; before noon he deserted from the rear of the army when they had march'd about three miles from the canoes; from thence he shap'd his course downward, but coming to the West River chanc'd to meet wth one of their scouts of whom he enquired the way after the grand Armado; they directed him up that river, by w<sup>ch</sup> means he would certainly cross their tracks; accordingly he went up the river untill about three afternoon, then altered his course agen and in some time fell upon our road to Deerfield, where he arriv'd the next day about ten in the morning, when firing his peice alarm'd the garrison, who seing of him call him to them, to whom he made his honour and gaue y<sup>m</sup> an acct of an approaching enemy, w<sup>ch</sup> was posted to Col. Partridge and from him to me, and from me to Hartford the same day. He also informes me that he is a native of France, borne in Languedock, came out of that country to England wth his father and mother when he was about twelue years old, and that he hopes his parents are still there. Some time after went in to Holland, from thence back to England wth the Prince of Orange, and thence into Ireland, and thence into Flanders, where was taken a prisoner, there remain'd one year; for his engaging in the English intrest was sent a servant to Cannada, where he has been this five years, not empron'd as a soldier but at his occupation, that is bakeing bread, and now comanded on this service; that there is one more Protestant in the army, to whom he did not communicate his intentions. The reasons that perswaded him to this undertakeing were these: the abhorrence he hath to their reldigeon and practices, the hopes of gaining his owne libertie, his affection to the English intrest, and to prevent our destruction. The accot given by the Maqnaw and this from the Frenchman agrees in euery step as to their motions from Canada hither; the people are differently perswaded about him, the generality think him upon designe; for my owne part, I can't conceive of their pollicie in giving us this notice, time must determine; however, haue secur'd him in chaines. On Munday and Tuesday last we were in hourly expectation of them; on Tuesday a small party discovered them selues to the garrison at Hatfield. Our scouts have been out daylie 10. 15. 16. 18 miles westward; from Deerfield yesterday about 12 miles; no discovery made. The deserter still stands to his first information and obserues thus, his leaving them put them upon altering their course, (its possible); however, offers to go wth the scout now ready to march for the West River upon that discovery, and in case they find it not true he submits himselfe to loose his life; yet have not thought it convenient to venture him. Since the place he mentions where the canoes ly is so notable, we conclude they may be found; 20 men under command of Leint Benja Wright, who are directed to make a certaine, possittue and speedy discovery of the truth hereof, just gone. He can give us no acct of Coasset, as we can understand. I am very willing to gaine a certaine knowledge of the truth of this newes ere Cap<sup>t</sup> Wells returns. Cap<sup>t</sup> Ally is drawn back to his post. Another scout of four men gone away northwest as far as they can to-day and part of too-morrow, then returne, in case they discover nothing before. I am inclined to think the enemy are in our quarters; we have posted the intelligence to Boston lest the enemy shape their course eastward. I have not further at present worthy your notice; shall advise you of all matters of moment; haue delay'd now in hopes of making a certaine acct of the enemy,

Sr,

Your Honours most humble servant,

WILL: WHITING." — Win-throp Papers, part V., pp. 244-247.

The committee on the publication of the Winthrop Papers append the following: —

"NOTE. — Fitz-John Winthrop filed with this letter two others, addressed by the same writer to the Committee of War on the two following days. On the 29th Major Whiting wrote: —

"Yesterday ere they went seven mile from towne to the westward our scout heard a gun, and in some short time saw a young beast coming towards them wounded in two places, whereupon they return'd hither, advising us thereof. Upon wch<sup>ly</sup> immediately we dispatch'd 20 men on horseback to y<sup>e</sup> place, under command of Cap<sup>t</sup> Holléster. They found the steer, but noe signes of the enemies being there, altho we conclude their scouts made the shot. This morning we sent out another scout with possitive charge to take a large extent; more-over twenty of our Indians wth two Englishmen have been ranging seven or eight mile westward and northward, who are return'd w<sup>thout</sup> any intelligence. The Frenchman (Peter Newgate, in English) is pleasant under his chaines and still is stedfast in his affirmation, and much admires they make not their assault, since they had scarcely three dayes provision when he left them. He gives me something new upon every examination, discourseing with all imaginable freedom. They have three fryars with them and about 20 boyes wth bows and arrows; that they have no permission to make spoyle on Albany, but any part of New England, intermating a truce between Canada and Albany."

On the 30th Major Whiting wrote: —

"Our daylie scout about the towne found another beast wounded in the woods. Just now came in our scout from the West River, who confirms the acct brought us by the Frenchman. About four mile above the river they came upon the track of the enemy, very plaine and large, bending to the westward, wch<sup>ly</sup> they followed for some time, when they discern'd they had return'd in the same road. Our people came back also to the great river, where they found the place they had laid their canoes, but had taken them all away save one and passed over Conecticott River and landed agen in a meadow on the east side, halling up all their canoes, all but two wch<sup>ly</sup> they left at the shore side. Our men not judging it safe to swim over to make further discovery, return'd wth all speed. We are ready to beleive that the Indians belonging to the canoe left on this side are those that make spoyl upon our cattle. Its most probable this man deserting from them has been the means of altering their mesures. We shall strengthen Hadly wth all speed and hold a councill of warr to-morrow morning to concert the most proper methods to be taken for the destruction of the enemy. If we draw off our whole forces and march up the river, we shall leave the townes naked. We are not certaine but they may still come downe on this side the river. Shevalier Bocoor, their generall, is an experienced commander and will improve all his French pollicie to trappe us." — Ibid., pp. 247, 248.

In another letter, not dated, but probably written on the first of Augnst, Whiting recapitulates the substance of the last two letters above quoted and informs Winthrop that the enemy had "return'd from the westward and pass'd ouer Conecticott Riuier just across. This intelligence we gain'd on the 30th instant at night."* He then adds that a council of war, presided over by Partridge, was held at Hadley the next day, which, after discussing and rejecting first his own proposal to march their entire force in pursuit of the enemy, next a proposal to "encamp in the field, that being in a body we might the better march to the releife of any place where the attack should be made,"* and then several "other things" that "were offer'd . . . at length thus agreed and concluded nemine contradicente, that our scouts should be continued enery way, and especially one from Deerfield to goe in Albany road 25 or thirty miles westward, whereby certaine discovery may be made whether any part, or the whole, of the forces was come below that line; as likewise another from Hadly 25 or 30 miles towards Lancaster, to make the same discovery; and that enery comp<sup>a</sup> remaine at their respective posts untill further order or some discovery of the enemy be gain'd, then to march wth our whole strength; in mean time to assist the inhabitants about their harvest, wherein they have made some considerable progress."* He then proceeds, "This Sr, was thought to be the most proper method to be us'd for the publique safty. On the 30th instant, about one in the morning, four men travelling between Hadly and Springfield were shot at by five Indians, slitley wounding three of them. Cap<sup>t</sup> Colton was immediately dismist from Hatfield, and all our men in a readiness to march to their releife in case any body of the enemy had been there. . . . We haue just now detach'd 30 men for another scout to the West River to follow the tracks and make what discovery they can. We are in hourly expectation to hear of them either by our scouts or that they make an onset somewhere; am very desirous to try my chance wth them in the field, but when that matter shall be determined, shall solícite your Honour for a release from my post."*

As stated by Whiting in his letter of the twenty-eighth, intelligence of the deserter's account of Beaucourt's movements was promptly posted to Boston,† and Dudley as promptly took measures to concentrate his forces at points from which the garrisons along the Merrimac and its southern tributaries could be conveniently reinforced, and the enemy attacked and pursued to advantage. The Governor's own statement of his doings is given in the following letter to Governor Winthrop:—

“BOSTON, ult. July, 1704.

S<sup>r</sup>,— This morning before day a considerable number of the enemy set upon Lancaster in the county of Middlesex, where besides the inhabitants I have a company of musqueteers, & presuming upon the notice given by the French deserter at Deerfield that the enemy would give mee the go-by there, I had ordered two hundred men more to the s<sup>d</sup> Lancaster on Saturday evening, who I hope will be there this evening, & God can give us success if he pleases. That I pray of you now is immediately to direct your forces upon the frontiers to march into the woods upon their track and lay wayt for them in their return; they cannot be above 200 men, so that the force at Hadly must needs be enough to meet them. I have no notice but of an half hour of their assault of the first garison next the woods; what impression they may make I know not, but have within the line the great towns of Concord and Sudbury all ready to march and gone before this time; but doubt not they may be intercepted weary in their march homeward, & it is impossible to miss their track if you cross to the northward. I have no oportunity to Hadly; if you please to express this letter to C<sup>l</sup> Partridge, let him march of company in the county what he can possibly in this conjuncture, & this is his order for the same.

J. DUDLEY.” — Ibid., p. 248.

The force sent by Dudley appears to have been a body of troops from Suffolk County. They were led by Major William Tailer, a young gentleman twenty-eight years of age, afterwards distinguished as lieutenant-governor of the province.

The northern company of the Middlesex regiment, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Tyng of Dunstable, was needed to man the numerous exposed fortifications. It would have been extremely imprudent in the face of an insidious foe quick to take advantage of every mistake, to weaken the garrisons by marshalling in the field the companies detailed for service at the several fortified posts. Nevertheless it was important that the enemy should be not only resisted but pursued, and therefore Tailer, on the tenth of August, at the head of his troops, and accompanied by a body of infantry, marched against them from the east, while from the west, Major Whiting's men under Captain Livingston and Lieutenant Minor moved from the Connecticut valley to interrupt the enemy's homeward march. The garrisons at Northampton, Deerfield, Hadley and Hatfield were reinforced and kept in communication with Colonel Partridge, in command of the active forces of northern Hampshire.

On the fourteenth Dudley apprised Governor Winthrop of Tailer's expedition in the following letter:—

“BOSTON, 14. August 1704.

S<sup>r</sup>,— I am glad of the health & welfare of your forces. If the scout that first saw the whole number of canoes had destroyed them, we had been now certain to have spoken with the enemy in their return. Major Taylor with six good companys horse & foot is in the forrest towards Conectecut River after them; went out with hopes to meet your forces in the woods, set out on Thursday last, hope he may hold out ten or twelve dayes. Inclosed is copy of a letter from the Governour of Quebeck to the Governour of Port Royall, gives you a scheem of their intention & our expectation. I wish your health better than my own, & am S<sup>r</sup>,

Your very humble ser<sup>t</sup>,

Meanwhile tidings of military movements at the westward were thus published in the News-Letter:—

“New-London, Aug. 9. [1704.] On Thursday last marched from hence Capt. John Livingston, with a brave Company of Volunteeers English & Indians, to reinforce the Frontiers.” — No. 17.

“By letters from Col. Partridge acquainted, That Capt. Allin & his Company, in passing from North-hampton to Westfield, to reinforce Major Whiting, The Enemy from an Ambuscado fired upon their Scouts, kill'd one man, & took two Prisoners, one whereof was wounded: The Company hearing the Guns, immediately turned out of the Road into the bushes, & had a small skirmish with the Enemy, kill'd 2 Indians, resened one of our Prisoners, & took 5 or 6 Guns, & 9 or 10 blankets from the Enemy.” — Ibid.

On the fourteenth of August* Major Whiting wrote to Governor Winthrop, apparently from Hadley, giving details of the progress made on the left bank of the Connecticut in the attempt to cut off Beaucourt's retreat. This letter gives such a graphic picture of the hardships of the pioneers at Deerfield, and shows such noble traits in the writer, that it has been deemed proper to insert all of it here, save the opening sentence; viz.,— mesures to take pursuant to the said order; it was resolv'd best to returne to Hatfield to enforce our men and procure necessary provisions for our subsistence &c. Immediately thereupon we drew off, and at Hatfield held a further consultation, Col. Partridge being present. It was then concluded to detach 200 men, including Capt<sup>r</sup> Levingstons comp<sup>s</sup>, and the next morning march towards Wachusett Hill in search of the enemys tracks; but before we departed the house, came in an express from Boston wth let<sup>s</sup> from Mr Secret<sup>ry</sup> Addington w<sup>ch</sup> inform'd Col. Partridge that the enemy on ye 8<sup>o</sup> instant were still hovering about Groton, and that Maj<sup>r</sup> Taylor was then ready to march wth a force of between 3 and 400 men in search of them. We still resolv'd to put our determination in execution, in order whereto Capt<sup>r</sup> Levingstone mov'd ower to Hadly this night, Capt<sup>r</sup> Allyn and my comp<sup>s</sup> to North Hampton. The next morning early we detach'd our men and march'd to Hadly, but by the imprudence of the inhabitants of that towne trading wth one of the Indians for his gun, (whereby he procur'd sufficient m<sup>o</sup>ny to make a great part of his companions drunk, whereby our whole designe was frustrate,) the Indians would by no means be perswaded march into the woods, but would returne home. Eleven of them gate away privately and went homeward; we were forc'd to waite the returne of their reason. This morning we concluded to detach forty men under command of Lieu<sup>t</sup> Minor to joy<sup>n</sup> Capt<sup>r</sup> Levingston and that they should march to Wachuset or that way, and in case no discovery of the enemy our scout to returne in four dayes & Capt<sup>r</sup> Levingstone to continue his march to Woster, Oxford, New Roxbury, Canterbury, & so to Norwich, to w<sup>ch</sup> the Indians consented. A copie of his instruction have enclosed sent you. And whereas Lieu<sup>t</sup> Wells is disabled by sickness to proceed wth the comp<sup>s</sup>, have therefore ordered John Ashcraft to take the Lieu<sup>t</sup>s post dureing this expedition; hane likewise transmitted a copie thereof herewith. We were ready to conclude that our marching so long after would be bootless, but are preparing bread in case we should receive any further intelligence of the enemys motions, that we may be ready to march upon ye first intimation thereof. S<sup>r</sup>, in yours to Col Partridge you are pleas'd to give positive order that Capt<sup>r</sup> Newbery be drawn off within eight dayes, but have not directed by what means the garrison shall be supported, whether by our men or by some from this Province, altho I conclude your Honour intends they be reinforce'd by this Govern<sup>t</sup>. If our men draw off before a fresh supply the people will likewise draw off, and thereby the whole intrest be lost, w<sup>ch</sup> will greatly encourage the enemy, and a place of considerable importance be abandon'd to their fury and rage. Col. Partridg did upon our coming from Deerfield send express to Govern<sup>r</sup> Dudley to signifie to him your Honours determination therein and to express an answer on Wensday next. S<sup>r</sup>, our people are importunate to go home. I am not capable of giving y<sup>m</sup> answer untill your Honours further plesure be known. The defence of the frontiers is in my opinion (wth submission) a matter of great importance. Their sufferings will weaken us; if they are not enabled to provide for the winter they must draw in and thereby we shall be expos'd. It has pleas'd the Almighty to spare them in defeating y<sup>e</sup> designes of our enemys, in which mercy we pertaine verry largely. I pittie their forlorne state, being every honre expos'd to the incursions of a merciless enemy. These things S<sup>r</sup> I account my selfe in duty bound to lay before your Honour, altho I question not but they hane frequently been the subject of your meditations. I have one request to ask for my selfe, or to refresh my former of the like nature, that is, to be released from my post, especially since I can be no wayes servicable to my country herein. I pray your Honour to consider it, and if the state of my owne affairs be not sufficient to prevaille, let the generall good be so farr consulted as to supply the post wth another. Capt<sup>r</sup> Levingstone giues his duty to your Honour upon his departure from Hadly this morning, cheerfully undertaking this enterprize; all things succeeding will be at New London by Saturday night next. I shall not trouble your Honour further, altho there are many things worthy your notice might I be faoured wth an opportunity to lay them before your Honour. Plesse to forgive my failings and be assur'd that I am S<sup>r</sup> your Honours most humble and obedient seruant,

“Dureing our stay there our time was improv'd in assisting the inhabitants about their harvest, cutting downe in three dayes between three & four hundred bushells of corne. On Wensday y<sup>e</sup> 9<sup>e</sup> instant I sent a scout back to y<sup>e</sup> West Riuer to se whether any of the enemy had been upon our tracks, as also to seek for some horses we left there; they return'd wthout any discovery made, only brought in 4 horses. The same day also we sent another scout, consisting of six Indians and two English men, to the westward 12 or 14 miles, who return'd wthout any intelligence. On Thursday the 10th, about 11 at night, came hither Capt<sup>l</sup> Allyn letters from your Honour to Col. Partridge and Capt<sup>l</sup> Livingstone,† directing to a further pursuit of the enemy on the east side Conecticut Riuer, and to joyn wth Maj<sup>r</sup> Taylor in that seruice. Early y<sup>e</sup> next morning considered what

WILL: WHITING." — Ibid., pp. 241-243.

This was followed the next day by another letter to Winthrop, which furnishes the only evidence found, thus far, of the date of Tailer's return to Groton. The extract given below shows Whiting's good judgment in endeavoring to have his men relieved by fresh detachments, or companies of volunteers:—

SE. — I wrote your Honour yesterday, since which an express from Boston with let<sup>s</sup> from Govern<sup>r</sup> Dudley to Col. Partridge signifying Maj<sup>r</sup> Taylors returne on ye 15<sup>o</sup> instant to Groton after five dayes fruitless persute of the enemy, & concluding their returne; in w<sup>ch</sup> there is this passage inserted: 'I very well know the Govern<sup>r</sup> of Quebecks power and resolution, and that there is no other force than this in the woods, and these must returne before any other go out. I hope your forces will keep the forest to find the enemy in their returne, or to see them well homewards, that you may be at quiet from any thing but small parties of skulking rogues, of whom you must take care by your good watches & small scouts.' As to the relieving our people at Deerfield he is wholly silent. Divers of our men in the severall townes are vissited wth malignant feavers, some hazardus and others newly taken; some wth the bloody flux, w<sup>ch</sup> I hear of just now from Hatfield. D<sup>r</sup> Hastings is now wth one Bissell of my comp<sup>s</sup> who is in a dangerous state; thought best to advise you hereof . . . many in each comp<sup>s</sup> labour under extrem difficulties in their stay, being so farr beyound their expectation in voluntarily offering themselves in hopes of a speedy encounter wth the enemy. I have no other way to pacifie them but by laying the case before your Honour. We hane 40 men ready to march, under com<sup>d</sup> of Lieu<sup>t</sup> Marsh, up the river, but the raines prevent; must delay untill Monday morning early. Our scouts that take not so large an exten are daily out." — Ibid., pp. 258, 259.

By this time it was certain that the enemy were completely foiled. They came, it would seem, poorly provisioned, intending to forage upon the English for their subsistence. In this as well as in surprising the garrisons they were wofully disappointed in every direction; and, baffled and discouraged, they returned through the wilderness to Canada, totally demoralized, many of them fatally sick, appeasing their hunger by devouring horses when they were fortunate enough to find any, and the bark of trees.* Beaucourt himself was greatly dispirited by his ill-success, which was attended by a severe illness. If the report of a Mohawk Indian who professed to have been at Canada when "the last five hundred [the remnant of Beaucourt's army] returned thither" may be believed, that unfortunate officer suffered a humiliation far more poignant than any mere physical distress. His story was that "Beucour was put in the dungeon, where he remain'd three dayes, then brought forth and degraded, his sword taken from him, and the Monseir Intendant publicly resolving to march himselfe the next descent."†

On the twenty-first Whiting wrote still another letter to Wintthrop, the following extract from which contains apparently a candid statement of the reasons which induced the enemy to abandon the object which they set out to accomplish:—

"N: HAMPTON, Augst 21st 1704. a.m.

HONORABLE SE, — I wrote you on Saturday last by Leit<sup>r</sup> Munson, since which by express from Albany we are inform'd of Col Schuylers returne from the Indian country . . . He refers us to the bearer of newes who gives this acco<sup>t</sup>, that the Colonell met wth three Indians in the Maqaw country that did belong to the French army form'd against us, who gave these reasons for their coming thither: 1. The scouts they sent to view our quarters gave them this acco<sup>t</sup>, that we were upon our guard, our frontiers well cover'd with men, that they were as thick as the bushes; w<sup>ch</sup> put them under great consternation, how-ever thought them selues oblig'd in point of honour to proceed, altho at the greatest hazard. 2. When they were sensible one of their comp<sup>a</sup> had deserted, they were confounded and discouraged, immediately resolving to returne and accordingly did from their second lodg; only four score of them went to the eastward, hoping to surpriz some townes on that side, w<sup>ch</sup> I suppose were those that assaltd Lancaster; these there parted from y<sup>e</sup> army and returned that way." — Ibid., p. 259.

In the face of this incontestable evidence of the ignominious failure of this expedition and of the unsoldier-like improvidence with which it was undertaken, the audacious suppressions and misrepresentations of Vaudreuil and Beauharnois in their account to Pontchartrain, from which the following is taken, afford a striking illustration of the manner in which, in important affairs of state, the French ministry were deceived by the local managers of colonial government:—

"Our Indians established in the government of Montreal, who had accompanied the Winter expedition last year under Sieur de Rouville, having recovered from their fatigue, asked M. de Vaudreuil early in the Spring that they may form themselves into small detachments against the English; the Chiefs having requested him not to separate their forces, and to form rather only one party with which they could undertake something considerable, obliged us, My Lord, to enter into their sentiments, for divers reasons. The first is, that not being certain but the English would make some movement, it would be painful to see all our Indians scattered; the second that not having it in our power absolutely to stop them, by organizing a large corps, we should gain time so as to be able to receive news from Europe; and the third, My Lord, is that to which Sieur de Vaudreuil attached most attention in the present situation of affairs — that is, by having a considerable body of French and Indians at Montreal, he was keeping the Iroquois in check in respect to the resolutions they might adopt at their general meeting against us.

The length of time, My Lord, that was required to assemble all these Indians, afforded an opportunity to the enemy to have notice of it. We were aware of it, and our Indians having persisted in the design of going to destroy †, an English Village, we did not consider it right to oppose them; we merely counseled them to change their project, and in order to induce them to do so, Sieur de Vaudreuil gave them Captain de Beaucours as Commander with one hundred or one hundred and twenty-five Frenchmen and several of the activest of the young officers. The party consisting of seven @ eight hundred men, we believed, My Lord, that it would be competent to attack whatever posts and villages they pleased, and as Sieur de Beaucours had orders to propose, on the height of land, to the Indians to change the design as to the place they wished to attack, of which possibly the enemy might have notice, we regarded as certain the success of his expedition, which indeed would have been the case, My Lord, had a soldier not deserted within a day's journey of the enemy; a panic hereupon seized the minds of our Indians to such a degree that it was impossible for Siens de Beaucours to prevent them retreating." — Documents Relating to the Colonial History of the State of New York, vol. IX., pp. 763, 764.

They then proceed, in the paragraph quoted in the note to chapter 35, ante, to state the cost to the English of this expedition from data obtained by them, as they say, from letters* taken from messengers killed while conveying the same to English "villages and forts."

* "There was about 600 French, and Indians of near equal number in the Expedition to Lancaster last year, many of whom dyed in their return, and several since, they were almost Starved, and constrained to eat the bark of Trees: Their chief Commander continues yet ill." — *Intelligence from Quebec, brought by messenger Hill, May 4, 1705. ‡ This blank is in the report as printed among the New York Documents. The place intended has been generally believed to be Northampton. But if the surmise is correct that the party against whom the Indians sought revenge was the company led by Captain William Tyng, the previous winter, as mentioned in the note to resolves, 1703-4, chapter 85, it is more likely that the place the Indians wished to destroy was Chelmsford, — where Tyng seems to have been stationed about this time, and which town he represented in the Legislature of 1707 — or Dunstable, the home of his father, or some other settlement, on or near the Merrimac, which had contributed to his quota of volunteers. This opinion receives support from Rev. Mr. Williams's statement that the perpetrators of the outrage at Pascomuck, who seem to have been in pursuit of the same object, had "been to Merrimac River, but met with no success; they then directed their course towards Westfield," etc., — showing that in his opinion the selection of Pascomuck was accidental. See note to resolves, 1705-6, chapter 26.

It is difficult to reconcile the different estimates of the number of Beaucourt's army, or, rather, with any regard for the intelligence and honesty of the narrators, to account for their discrepancies. Perhaps the most plausible explanation is one, which, inclining to the average number, admits the possibility of increase and decrease while on the march from, and return to, Canada. This requires that credence be given to the circumstantial statement of the deserter, Newgate, as to the number that actually left Canada. It is possible that this number was increased by accessions before reaching Lake Champlain and at Cowassic, and further on, from Pennecook and western Maine. All the reports give sufficient evidence of the sudden diminution, if not collapse, of the main body by their disagreements as to their objective point, and to the temptation to which the Indians freely yielded to scatter in small parties in quest of scalps and plunder. It seems pretty certain that those who made the furious onset at Lancaster were comparatively few. It is to be observed that Whiting supposed that not more than eighty were engaged in that attack; but a line of battle long enough to advantageously reconnoitre all the towns on the border of Massachusetts from Groton (if not from the mouth of the Merrimac) to Deerfield could not be very formidable at any one place, even if composed of the largest number given; and the preparations of the inhabitants at every point rendered such a reconnaissance necessary.

The first contemporary public notice † of the attack on Lancaster appeared in the News-Letter issued on the seventh of August, as follows:—

"On Monday Morning past, The Enemy French and Indians, fell in upon Lancaster, about some four hundred of them, assaulted Six Garrisons at once, where the People defended themselves very well; until assistance came in from all parts by the Governour's Order, so that in the Evening, there were three hundred men in the Town And the Enemy was beaten off with loss, but are yet hovering on the head of those Towns, to make some further Impression, if not prevented."—No. 16.

In his opening speech to the Legislature in its second session, August 16, 1704, Dudley thus referred to the repulse of the enemy:—

"You are further sensible of the Inroad made upon us at Lancaster by about three hundred french and Indians, where by the favour of god we were so ready for them that we have Lost no garison, & our force has prest upon them so early & so dilligently that they are Marcht off after a Two Months Expedition without any further Triumph then that of three or four Children & The force there, of about three hundred men under Major Taylor was yesterday ‡ also disbanded, saving what are necessary upon the frontiers of Middlesex to assist the Harvest."—Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 21.

Apparently the best account § of the attack of the enemy on the town of Lancaster and of the repulse is the following, by Rev. Timothy Harrington, who, fifty years later, was a settled minister in the town:—

". . . In 1704, there came an Army of seven Hundred French and Indians from Canada — with two Tribes, under the Command of Monsi. Boocore, design'd for Northampton, — but a Deserter came and gave Notice of their Numbers and Approach. — And those Western Frontiers were seasonably strengthened. —

Moreover, in their March there arose a Mutiny among them about the Division of the Plunder; and the Contention rose so high, that above two Hundred of them return'd — But the Rest came on, and sent out their Scouts, who reported, that the English were ready in great Numbers to receive them. — On this they call'd a Council of War, in which they concluded to lay aside the Design on Northampton — and to beat up for Volunteers, for the Assault of Lancaster; and a large Number enlisted. —

And on the 30th of July they came within about two Miles of the Town — and encamp'd, and by Night sent in their Spies to observe the Posture of the English. — And on the 31st, they fell furiously upon the Town early in the Morning; and in their first Onset kill'd Lieut. Nathanael Wilder, near the Gate of his own Garrison. — And the same Day three others near the same Garrison. ||

The Enemy were uncommonly brave: and therefore altho' Capt. Tyng, who had the Command of the Garrison Soldiers; and Capt. Hove, who on the Alarm, march'd immediately from Marlborough with what Men he cou'd suddenly raise; and the Inhabitants maintain'd a warm Dispute with them for some Time; yet being much inferiour in Number were oblig'd to retreat into Garrison. — On which they burnt the Meeting-House, and six other Buildings, & destroy'd much of the live Stock of the Town.

* Hon. George Sheldon states that the despatches carried by Thomas Battis, called "Bettees" in the petition of Samuel Barnard (whose horse he rode), were the "letters" referred to in this account. — History of Deerfield, etc., in Greenfield Gazette and Courier, No. 36. See note to resolves, 1705-6, chapter 14.

† The following memorandum by Sewall in his diary, respecting his journey through Dedham to Medfield, shows the impression made on him as to the extent of the enemy's field of operations:— "July, 31, 1704. . . Call at Capt. Mors's about an hour in night; and he tells us of the Indians assaulting Lancaster. This was very heavy News to us now in a Frontier Town; yet we went on, lodg'd at cousin Gookin's and were kept safe."—Vol. II., p. 114.

‡ Tailer's pay-roll was made up to the seventeenth. — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 122.

§ The narrative of Penhallow, of whom Mr. Harrington in his Century Sermon says, "Some of the Accounts which Mr. Penhallow hath given of the Mischiefs done in this Town by the Enemy, are in diverse Cases not only imperfect, but very Erroneous, which are doubtless owing to the wrong Information he had," contains the following, in which he mixes the attack on Lancaster with the subsequent attack, when Groton suffered:—

"And yet a little while after they fell on Groton and Nashua, where they killed Lieut. Wyler [Wilder] and several more."—Indian Wars, p. 35.

|| "Abraham Hove, John Spaulding, and Benjamin Hutchins."

Note, What Numbers of the Enemy were kill'd, either in the Field, or at the other Garrison is uncertain, but is tho't to be considerable — among the Rest a French Officer of some Distinction, was mortally wounded, which greatly exasperated their Spirits:

Before Night there came such Numbers to the Relief of the Town, that the Enemy retreated; and altho' pursued, yet were not over-taken. Had they like those in 1697, tarried till the Inhabitants, were dispers'd to their Labour, they might in all human Probability, have done much greater Mischief, if they had not entirely destroy'd the Town. — But God had Mercy on his People." — "A Century Sermon Preached at the First Parish in Lancaster, May 28, 1753," pp. 19, 20.

Besides the regular garrison under Captain Tyng and the company which he led out against the enemy the efficient force directly employed in the defence of Lancaster was the militia company commanded by Captain Thomas How* of Marlborough, and for this service he applied for compensation in the following petition, mentioned in the preamble to this chapter:—

"To His Excellencie Joseph Dudley Esq<sup>r</sup> Capt<sup>l</sup> Generall and Governour in Chief in and over Her Majties province of the Massathusets Bay in New England &c<sup>a</sup> and To the Honourable Her Majties Councel, and Representatives in Great and Generall Court assembled. 9<sup>br</sup> 8th 1704

The law which provided for the repayment of the impost on wines found to be decayed at the time of landing thereof, or within twenty days afterwards, was the temporary act of 1701-2, chapter 16, § 6, the provisions of which were revived and continued by the acts, 1702, chapters 1 and 7, 1703-4, chapter 4, and 1704-5, chapter 6,—the last expiring June 29, 1705. More than twenty days having elapsed after the petitioner imported his wines before he found an opportunity to examine them, it was too late for him to claim repayment from the commissioner, and the only chance for relief was by applying to the Legislature.

Partridge, who made this representation, was a member of the Council and actively engaged in all the military movements on the western frontiers. His paper was read in the House on the fifteenth of November when the order which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council for concurrence. It was immediately concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The particulars of the attack on Deerfield, which rendered necessary the collection of the tax laid on that town by the second tax act* of the year 1703-4, are given in the note to resolve, chapter 6, ante.

Upon the passage of this chapter, the province treasurer, being accountable for the whole sum assessed upon the town, charged off, as abated, one-half of the assessment, as follows:—

“By Abateme<sup>t</sup> to the Town of Dearfield the Town being so farr destroyed & many of the Inhabitants killed and taken Captives and their Estates Destroyed and burnt, Allowed by the General Assembly . . . . 17, 2, 6.”

The report of the committee appointed in chapter 65, ante, which was presented to the Council, November 10, 1704, “by John Phillips Esq<sup>r</sup> Chair Man of the said Committee, Was read, Proposing the Building of a suitable Ship or Galley to carry sixteen or eighteen Guns; And the said Report was Voted an Acceptance, & sent down to the House of Representatives for their Concurrence.”†

The report of the committee, without date, was written on the back of the resolve which constitutes chapter 85 of this year. Its tenor is substantially the same as that of the following order for a message, which is the basis of this chapter:—

“Ordered That a Message be sent up to his Excellency the Governour. That this House having Considered His Excellency’s Speech referring to Disposing of the Province Galley and Buying, or Building of another vessell to Guard the Coast, and find the charge thereof to be So great, that we apprehend our Selves at this time unable to Support it, being Press’d with the highest charge, this Province has ever Seen, and which threaten’s to be larger—

But we humbly Move to Your Excellency, That the Fort at Saco (which is a great, and constant charge, has hitherto been of little or no use, but to cover a Trade, with the Indians, (which now ceases;) being So Situate, as is not advantageous for Defence, to Annoy the Enemy, or as a Barrier to the Frontiers, and the Supplying thereof attended, with great Difficulty and hazard, which Your Excellency is fully Apprizd of) may be Slighted, and the Garrison there drawn off, and we shall cheerfully do our utmost, for the necessary Defence of the Sea-Coast.

On the seventeenth, the Council having sent a message to the representatives “to enquire what Consideration was had in that House” of the report, the House responded by their message as above, upon which “His Excellency directed Mr Speaker & the House to attend him, And a Conference was had on that & other Matters.”‡ Thereupon the House receded from the position assumed in their message of the day before, and passed the resolve which constitutes this chapter. This was immediately concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The petition mentioned in the preamble to this chapter is as follows:—

The Petition of James Samson Representative of the Town of Dartmouth.

This petition was read in the House and the order thereon passed and sent to the Council for concurrence on the sixteenth. On the next day it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

As has been previously stated,* the inhabitants of the town of Dartmouth were chiefly members of the society of Friends, and at this time and for many years subsequently there were not enough members of the orthodox communion to support a minister. For particulars relating to the struggle of this little community for exemption from liability under the laws providing for the support of ministers and meeting-houses, see the note to 1722-23 chapter 8, above referred to.

Samson had been a constable of the town and had been forced to apply to the Legislature for abatement of taxes which he was unable to collect. See resolves, 1694-5, chapter 35, and 1696-7, chapter 61, and notes.

This petition was read in the House on the sixteenth and the order which constitutes this chapter passed and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the next day it was concurred in and consented to by the Governor. The law referred to in the petition as allowing three shillings for each pair of snow-shoes was the third section of chapter 4 of the acts of this year.

The following orders for warrants on the province treasurer show the towns in which the soldiers resided who were reimbursed:—

The following entry in the province treasurer's account from May 31, 1705, to May 31, 1706, shows the total amount of the credits given to the several constables for the allowances made by them to the inhabitants of the respective towns out of their poll taxes, for snow-shoes with which they had furnished themselves under the act and resolves of the General Court:—

"Paid by Discount to Several Constables of Several Towns for 714 pair of Snow Shoes that the Inhabitants of <sup>s<sup>d</sup></sup> Town had Supplied themselves with, was Allowed out of their Poll tax pursuant to the Resolves of the General Assembly . . . . . 178 9<sup>6</sup>/<sub>10</sub> -."

Chap. 78. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 91. It has not been found in the archives.

After the proposition for the sale of the Province Galley and the building a new galley had been agreed to in connection with other matters, as shown in chapter 75, ante, and note, it was considered by itself as a distinct subject-matter, and the next day the order which constitutes this chapter was passed. There is nothing to show that this was not purely an executive order of the Council except the subsequent action of both branches approving the doings of the committee. See resolves, 1705-6, chapters 37 and 39, and notes.

* Evidently this should have been ten shillings.

On the twenty-second of July Sewall records in his diary * that "It begins to be known that the Bills of Credit are counterfeited, the Twenty-Shilling Bill."

On the twenty-fourth the following vote of advice was passed by the Council:—

"July 24, 1704. Upon discovery of a Forgery of the Twenty shilling Bill of Credit on this Province.

Advised that his Excellency emit a Proclamation to notify all her Majty's good subjects thereof to prevent their suffering loss and damage by being imposed on by any of the sd false Bills. and to require all persons having any of the Twenty shilling Bills of Credit in their hands, to offer the same to the view and examination of the Commissioners that signed the Bills or one of them who will attend at the Council Chamber in Boston for that purpose, upon Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday weekly until the last day of August next and will give them assurance of their Bills being either good or forged.

And likewise, to promise Indemnity from punishment and a Reward of Fifty pounds to any that shall make discovery, so as to convict the persons, that have been the Contrivers and Actors of the sd Forgery although they themselves may have been concerned therein." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 50.

In accordance with this advice the Governor issued the following proclamation:—

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS it's manifest, That some evil minded Persons, designing to Cheat and Cousen Her Majesties good Subjects, have attempted to Counterfeit the Twenty Shilling Bill of Credit on this Province,

For the better Detecting of which wicked practice, and to prevent Loss and Damage to Her Majesties good Subjects, by taking any of the said false Bills

I have thought fit, by and with the Advice of Her Majesties Council, to Notify all Her Majesties good Subjects, of the Deceit and Cousenage aforementioned, That they may not be Imposed on thereby; And to Require all Persons, having any of the Twenty Shilling Bills of Credit in their hands, to offer the same to the View and Examination of the Commissioners that signed the Bills, or one of them; who will be present and attend at the Council Chamber in Boston, for that purpose, upon Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday weekly, until the last day of August next, Viz. on Tuesday's and Saturday's from Eleven to One of the Clock, and on Thursday's from three to five of the Clock afternoon; And will give them Assurance of their Bills being either good or forged.

And forasmuch as there must necessarily be a Combination of divers Persons in the said wicked Design of Forgery and Deceit; whosoever therefore shall make discovery of them so as to convict the Contrivers and Actors thereof, or any of them, the Person or Persons making such discovery, although themselves have been concerned therein, shall not only receive an Indemnity from any punishment, but also a Reward of Fifty Pounds, to be ordered and paid them out of the Publick Treasury.

Under date of the twenty-fifth of July Sewall ‡ records "The Forgers are discover'd," and about the same time the following item appears in the News-Letter:—

"Boston. Several Persons that were Actors and Contrivers in attempting to Counterfeit the 20s. Bills of Credit on this Province, Thereby to Cheat and Cousen Her Majesties good Subjects, are now in Prison, viz Peregrine White and Benoni White Black-Smiths, John Brewer Carpenter, and Daniel Amos Wine-cooper. By the Examinations taken, it do's not appear that there has been the value of One hundred Pounds of the said Counterfeit Bills made or Issued. And their Plate & Press is Seized, which it's hoped will put a full stop to the further progress of that wicked practice.

Thomas Odell one of the principal Actors in that Villany & Cousenage, and also Infamous for his making & uttering of base Money, absconds and is fled from Justice; Whosoever shall discover and cause him to be apprehended that he may be brought to answer for his Crimes aforesaid, will be well rewarded for his pains. And 'tis said the greatest loss in this matter will fall upon N Hampshire in case the said Odell be not taken, he having carried most of his Counterfeit Bills into that Province." — Ibid.

The next proceeding of which any trace has been found is the following vote of advice by the Council:—

"Aug. 8, 1704. Advised. That his Excellency emit a Proclamation for the apprehending of Thomas Odell a Chief Contriver and Actor in the Counterfeiting of the Twenty shilling Bill of Credit on this Province; and uttering of the same. As also violently suspected of making & uttering of base and counterfeit money or coyne; with promise of a Reward of thirty pounds, to whomsoever shall seize and render him to Justice." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 56.

In accordance with this advice the following proclamation was published:—

"By His Excellency, Joseph Dudley Esq. Captain General and Governour in Chief, in and over Her Majesties Province of the Massachusetts-Bay, &c. in New-England.

I Have therefore thought fit, with the Advice of Her Majesties Council, to Issue this Proclamation, hereby requiring all Officers Civil and Military, and all other Her Majesties Loving Subjects, to apprehend and take into Custody the Body of the said Thomas Odell; withal Declaring, That whosoever shall Seize the said Odell, and render him to Justice, shall have the Sum of Thirty Pounds as a reward therefore, to be Ordered and paid out of the Publick Treasury.

The following memorandum is appended to the foregoing proclamation:—

"The above-nam'd Odell is one of a middle Stature, slender & straight Body, black hair, thin visage, holding his head somewhat on one side in his walk; who is known often to have changed his name." — Ibid.

Two days later Odell was apprehended at Stonington, Connecticut, as appears by the following item in the News-Letter:—

"Stonington, Aug. 10. Here is a person apprehended & secured, for putting several Cheats upon some persons, and supposed to be Thomas Odell mentioned in the News Paper for Counterfeiting the Massachusetts-Bay's 20s. bills of Credit." — Ibid.

In his opening speech to the Assembly, which convened in its second session on the sixteenth of August, Governor Dudley represented the need of some legislation to prevent similar "villanies" in the future, as follows:—

"I have also to acquaint you that we have lately discovered a number of ill men Coyners of Money & forgers of our bills of Credit, which are in prison to answer & tho' the Common Law will be sufficient to Impower the Judges for their punishment yet I shall Desire your advice & assistance for the prevention of such Villanyes tending so Much to the ruine of Trade & the publiq; Credit of the Government." — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 21.

In response to this appeal the Legislature passed the only act* of the session, entitled "An act against counterfeiting the bills of credit on this province."

Three months after this act was passed the resolve which constitutes the present chapter was passed in the Council and sent down to the House for concurrence. It was immediately concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order† for a warrant to the province treasurer for the amount granted by this chapter was passed November 20, 1704, and his account‡ shows that it was duly paid.

The subsequent proceedings against the counterfeiters are shown in the note to resolves, 1707, chapter 8.

The rumors of an intended invasion from Canada, reported in the letters referred to, and in part printed, in the note to chapter 7, ante, were corroborated by a despatch from the eastward, as appears by the following entry in the council records under date of the tenth of June:—

"His Excellency received Intelligence this Morning from Coll. Church Chief Commander of her Majesties Forces in the Bay of Fundy & of their Success so far as they have gone with a Confirmation of the Intelligence, that the Enemy were coming this Way with a considerable Body; Weh being read at the Board & sent down to the Representatives with a Message, That it is necessary to raise two or three Hundred Men to go Eastward for Enforcing the Frontiers for about a Months Space, And that the Women & Children that can be spared with the Cattle be drawn in." — Vol. VIII., p. 53.

Clearly, Church expected that the point of attack would be somewhere on the frontier between the Androscoggin and the bend of the Merrimac, and in this belief Dudley appears to have coincided, and he seems to have been of the opinion that the duty of defending the county of Hampshire § properly devolved upon Connecticut as being practically a part of her northern frontier. Therefore, notwithstanding the message from the House which constitutes chapter 7, ante, in view of the news of danger besetting him upon the east, the Secretary, by the Governor's direction, replied to the application || of Governor Winthrop as follows:—

The representatives fully sharing the Governor's views of the need of a larger force in the field than was already enlisted, and of the disproportionate and increasing burden resting upon the province, addressed the Governor to solicit the coöperation of Rhode Island and Connecticut,* as follows:—

"June 17, 1704. The House of Representatives presented a Memorial to his Excellency from the House, Praying his Excellency to move the Neighbouring Governments for their Assistance in Carrying on the War, Which was read at the Board." — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 58.

Accordingly, on the twenty-fourth Dudley wrote to Winthrop the following letter, which has been referred to in former notes: †—

"SR,— I have your several letters and thanke you<sup>r</sup> succours att o<sup>r</sup> upper towns in Hampshire. What M<sup>r</sup> Secretary Addington wrote ‡ you abt a supply of two hundred men for those parts was by my direction, and it was upon the news of the settlement of the enemy at Coasset upon Connecticut River, which Colo<sup>l</sup> Schyler and Lient. Colo<sup>l</sup> Partridge both intimated to me they had men out to discover; and if that had been made certain, we had all been in fault not to have disnested them. But that news failing and no discovery made, and in y<sup>e</sup> mean time it being made most certain that there was a march of the enemy, of near a thousand, comeing upon the eastern parts (Yorke and Hampshire), I was necessitated to dispatch that force thither, but shall yet do what is necessary at Hadley, but wth some losse of time. Sr, the General Assembly of this Province, now sitting, have offered me their very just memorial, earnestly desiring that I would move yo<sup>r</sup>selfe & the Governm<sup>t</sup> of Connecticut at all times to do a proper share of the present hard service. I have now eighteen hundred men effective in the service, and I can not abate a man from any part; and if yo<sup>r</sup> Governm<sup>t</sup> and Rhode Island were sensible of yo<sup>r</sup> distance and security from the ordinary danger, it would be thought by equal judges that the one halfe of the service should be supported by yo<sup>r</sup> two Governments. But however that may be, I hope you will continue to do some proportionable service, whereof the covering of Hampshire shall be a part. . . . I have ordered the Commissary General to supply the necessary ammunitiion at Hampshire, and hope the officers will see it well spent. I heartily wish your health, and am, Sr,

throp Papers, part V., p. 230.

After the retreat of Beaucourt had been well assured, Dudley, relying upon Vaudreuil's plan of operations communicated by him to Brouillon in the intercepted letter heretofore mentioned, wrote as follows to Governor Winthrop on the twenty-eighth of August:—

"I do not expect any considerable force upon your river til the last expedition against Lancaster is got to Montreal, & then they will return, but may fall into the edge of the winter. The next impression will be where I am and I am providing for it.

I am Sr your very humble servant,

J. DUDLEY.

There is no danger upon our towns on Connecticut River while your forces are marching to Coasset." — Ibid., p. 261.

In this letter he had avowed his interest in the contemplated expedition to Cowassic, but declared that he would be pleased to have the place reconnoitred by a small scout before advancing "a great force thither"—adding that, "five or six Indians and two or three English men would make us certayn."

On the fourth of September he wrote again, informing Winthrop of his plans for a new campaign at the eastward, and intimating in the following paragraph a desire for assistance from Connecticut:—

"Every thing is well upon our fronteirs at present & I am hastening a new expedition eastward & should be glad of fifty of your Moheegs, and particularly Jan Philip, who went home with that troop with Captain Avery.

I am Sr your humble servant,

J. DUDLEY." — Ibid.,

p. 262.

Soldiers from Connecticut still continued to man the garrisons in Hampshire County notwithstanding a resolution of the committees of war to recall them. By the twelfth, however, the committees decided to withdraw all but seventy-five men, as appears by the following extract from a letter from Deputy-Governor Treat to Governor Winthrop:—

"We had resolved to draw off the greatest part of our forces from the countie of Hampshire by the middle of the week and had signified the same to Coll. Patridge. Whereupon we received a letter from him, sign<sup>d</sup> by him and divers principle men in trust with him, signifying their earnest desires of their continuance there till the middle of Octob<sup>r</sup> next, in most affectionate termes; apprehending their danger of the enemy to be still very great, so that without assistance from us they shall not be able to gett in their Indian harvest;

* In the record of this memorial the province of New York is not expressly excluded but nothing has been found to show that it was included.

giving many reasons for our souldiers continuance. In comiseration of their circumstances, we have yielded to their desires so farre that we have ordered 75 of our men to remain in their countie till further order; 60 of them under the coñand of Cap<sup>t</sup> Newbury for the assistance of Hadly, Northampton and Hatfield, and 15 for Westfield; and the rest to be forthwith drawn off by Maj<sup>r</sup> Whiting, who is gone up the countrey for that end. I desire your Hon<sup>r</sup> by the first to send to us what advice may be needfull, for I am very desirous to be going homeward this week; and am Sr,

Your humble servant,

R: TREAT. D. G." — Ibid., p. 264.

Dudley seems not to have been satisfied with the quota of men furnished to aid him in carrying out his plans for defence and offence against the common enemy. He considered the failure of Rhode Island and Connecticut to adopt the standard which seemed to him the just ratio of their respective contributions to this object good cause of complaint to the Lords of Trade. As the time approached for the arrival of the letter of the Privy Council, which Dudley evidently expected to be instructed to bear or transmit to those governments, he deemed it proper to have messengers seasonably appointed by, or with the approval of, the Legislature, to conduct that business. He had resolved to prorogue the General Court; so, on the last day* of the third session, the order which constitutes this chapter, and which originated in the House on the seventeenth, was passed and received his approval.

Meanwhile fresh rumors were circulating of the enemy's preparations for sending out an army † during the approaching winter.

On the twenty-eighth, Andrew Belcher, commissary-general, was nominated by the Council to serve as one of the commissioners to Connecticut, but neither he nor Nathaniel Paine appears to have acted in that capacity. On the fifth of December Wait Winthrop, named first after Converse on that commission, "being under indisposition ‡ and incapable of a present attending of that service, Samuel Lynde Esq<sup>r</sup> was named and desired to supply his place." § Thereupon "his Excellency communicated to the Council his severall Letters to Gov<sup>r</sup> Winthrop and Gov<sup>r</sup> Cranston, to be sent by the s<sup>d</sup> Commissioners of what his Expectation was from the said respective Governments in that regard.

As also the Copy of Her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Letter and Commands to those Governments to give their assistance, as occasion may require." ||

"For the Honorable John Winthrop Esq<sup>r</sup>, Governour of her Majesties Colony of Connecticut, New-London.

BOSTON, 4<sup>o</sup> December, 1704.

Sr, — Besides my own just expectation from your Government of a supply of men for the service against the French and Indians, I am now urged by the General Assembly of this Province to take all methods to ease the excessive charge the war has brought on them, by obtaining a just quota of men from your Colony. And accordingly, with the advice of her Majesties Council and the House of Representatives, I have desired and impowred Wait Winthrop, Nath<sup>l</sup> Byfield, Nath<sup>l</sup> Payne, James Converse & Sam<sup>l</sup> Lynde Esq<sup>r</sup>s, or any 3 of them, to visit you and lay before you the necessity of your advancing men and money towards the service, wherein the Queen's subjects of your parts are equally concerned. I have given them my own expectation and refer the matter to a free conference with you. Sr, what I justly expect is one third part of the charge of the present war, which I desire may be done in a just quota of men to be supported by your Government; and because the county of Hampshire is next you and properly your cover and frontier, I shall consent that, so far as is necessary there, your forces be there improved; but I must expect that they be as well subsisted as their wages paid them. I know not your establishment of pay and therefore shall desire your share in number onely; and at present for the winter quota I stand at eight hundred men for these two Provinces, besides exigents which will often demand the march of five hundred more. It is so very difficult to march men to West-Hampshire, that I choose at present to employ your quota there, where I justly expect a shock within a short month. I must also insist upon it that your officers, whom I shall entertain upon your own nomination, receive all directions and orders from my selfe during their being within these Governments; without which there can be no proper service done nor account be taken.

They have also to deliver you her Majestys most gracious commands in this affayre, which, by the date, you will perceive was before I could advise of the service done by your forces in West Hampshire. I shall not faile at all times to acquaint the R<sup>t</sup> Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Lords Commissioners of Trade and Plantations, that your obedience herein may be laid before her Majesty. I am Sr your humble servant,

J. DUDLEY." — Ibid., p. 273.

On the same day on which the commissioners received their papers Whiting wrote to Governor Winthrop the following letter, justifying Dudley's expectation of a "shock" in "West Hampshire": —

"MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR, — I am desired by the gentlemen of the Committee of Warr in this county to signifie to your Honor the haszard the frontiers may be in by a party of the enemy that are already come over the lake, which advice came first by ex-

‡ He was Governor Winthrop's brother. His indisposition, of which no intimation appears before Dudley had prepared his letter, may have been induced or aggravated by his knowledge of the nature of the errand on which it was proposed to send him.

press from Albany to the gentlemen in the county of Hampshire, and the last week confirm'd by John Nobles who came from Albany hither, who gives this account: that one of our Maquaws coming from Canada happen'd to lodge one night with twenty of the French Indians, who inform'd him that there was four of their men gone to New England twenty days before, if possible to take a captive, thereby to gaine a full acco<sup>t</sup> of the state of affairs here; and that those twenty were going after upon some designe, its thought to provide for an army that is to come over this winter, which by the advice is to consist of 800 men, which is concluded by the number of snow shooes and Indian shooes provided by the Govern<sup>r</sup> at Mont Royall, vizt 1600 payr Indian shooes and 800 payr snow shooes. S<sup>t</sup>, the gentlemen here can not but retaine a lively sence of the danger our neighbours are lyable to and how much our owne safety and welfare is concern'd therein. Therefore humbly propose to your Honour that a sutable number of men may be rais'd in this Govern<sup>mt</sup> and lodg'd in the frontiers, in such number and in such place or places as you shall think fit for the defence thereof, least the enemy find our lines naked. Also whether these men ought not to be detach'd out of the lower countyes, that this be not burdened above mesure; for in case of any discovery made of an approaching enemy or sudden attack, we must immediately send to the reliefe of our friends. M<sup>r</sup> Nobles informes that Monsier Vaudervill, Intendant at Canada, intends to command in person this winter, w<sup>ch</sup> comes also by the fores<sup>d</sup> Indian. . . . Therefore, whether it be not highly necessary that some men may be plac'd in garrison in the county of Hampshire, and that blank commissions be prepar'd for persons that be thought fit to com<sup>and</sup>, in case of sudden assalt. All which is submitted to your Honours wisdom<sup>e</sup>. The gentlemen conceive there is sufficient power in your hands to put this so necessary a preparatory action in execution. The restless endeavors of our enemys shou<sup>d</sup> put us upon the greater care and watchfullness. S<sup>t</sup>, please to forgive this trouble. I move by the direction of the gentlemen of the Commity of Warr. S<sup>t</sup>, I am humble servant,

WILL: WHITING." — Ibid., p. 274.

Further confirmation of Dudley's expectation was furnished in the following postscript to the above letter:—

"The 6<sup>o</sup> currant.

Last night about sundowne came hither two men belonging to Westfield, who came from Albany directly, that gave this further account: that the Gov<sup>r</sup> of Canada hath summon'd in all his Indians, which puts the Albanians into considerable fears, and gives us ground to suspect their designes against us. The persons that came from Albany, who came from thence about a week since and are now at my house, further inform me that this intelligence was brought by one of their Indians the day before they came away. Most of the principal gentlemen were but just come from York and knew not of their coming away. They further tell me they were desired to inform the people of New England thereof." — Ibid., p. 276.

It would seem, from what has been learned by subsequent study of the condition of Massachusetts and Connecticut at that time, that had statistics* of the wealth and population of the two territories been available for comparison the Lords of Trade might not have been so easily convinced that Connecticut had not borne an equitable part of the common burden.

The commissioners set out for Boston accompanied by three troopers.† They appear to have reached New London by the thirteenth of December, on which day a meeting of the Council was held there by the governor and four of the assistants.

Besides providing for raising and for distributing and governing two hundred men to protect the frontier towns within the colony, the Council passed the following order:—

"The Govern<sup>r</sup>s Hon<sup>r</sup> having appointed and impow<sup>er</sup>ed Capt. Nathan Gold, William Pitkin Esq<sup>r</sup>, Maj<sup>r</sup> William Whiting and M<sup>r</sup> John Eliot, to treat with Colon<sup>ll</sup> Nathaniel Byfield, Maj<sup>r</sup> James Converse, and Sammel Lynde, Esq<sup>r</sup>, concerning such affairs relating to the present warr which the said gentlemen are directed by his Excellency Govern<sup>r</sup> Dudley to lay before his Hon<sup>r</sup> and Council.

* See comparison of population in foot-note on p. 420, ante. John Chester, sometime speaker of the house of representatives in Connecticut, and for eleven years an assistant, thus plaintively dwells on Dudley's requital of the efforts and sacrifices of that colony:—

HONBLE SR, — It looks like partiality that this Govern<sup>mt</sup> should be at such great expence, and so little notice taken of it by Govern<sup>r</sup> Dudley in his prints of encomium on the expeditions made by the forces of the Massachusetts & the success they have had against the French & Indians, the comon enemy. His Exclency seems to leave yo<sup>r</sup> Hon<sup>rs</sup> faithfull endeavours for the preservation of her Majesties subjects in the Massachusetts Province and in this Govern<sup>mt</sup> wholly in oblivion, as if the having 800 men at sometimes under pay, & most of the sumer 5 or 600, & the charge of about 10,000 pound, were not worthy of a word of remembrance; but it is not otherwise than it useth to bee. There are some belonging to this Colony & many in the neighbouring Provinces that are readily informing against the Govern<sup>mt</sup> without cause, but backward in making the least mention of the pains & services we undergoe for the securitie of her Majesties good people. I hope yo<sup>r</sup> Hon<sup>r</sup> will find out the author of that altogether groundless falshood, vizt that the Colony's injustice toward the Moheegs was the occasion of the present warr. Doubtless our Agent is well informed that the nationall warr reaches us and allways of late years hath been very fatal to New-England. If we should keep exactly to the rule given by order of his late Majestic in the measure of assistance that the Colony is to afford in time of actual warr, in conjunction with the rest of Govern<sup>ts</sup>, as our own just portion, we should not have more enemies amongst or near ourselves to seek our hurt than we have now. Boston seems to be hard upon this Govern<sup>mt</sup>, when many of the neighbouring Govern<sup>ts</sup> concern not themselves about the present troubles, neither in affording men or money when it is due as it is from this Colony. . . ." — Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 276.

The Council leaves it with the Govern<sup>rs</sup> Honor to write a letter to the Secretary of State in answer to her Majesties letter signifying that complaint is made against this colonie for refusing to assist the Massachusetts in this time of warr." — Colonial Records of Connecticut, 1689-1706, pp. 496, 497.

To Dudley's letter Winthrop returned the following considerate and dignified answer: —

"NEW LONDON, Decbr 19th 1704.

Sr, — I have received your Excellency's letter of the 4th instant by Coll: Byfield, Major Converse, and Mr Lynde, who have delivered to me her Majesty's letter of March 30th 1704, requiring some assistance from this Government towards the support of your Province against the French and Indians; w<sup>ch</sup> I have communicated to the gentlemen of her Majesty's Council, who had then under their consideration the present state of yor county of Hampshire, in order to raise some force for their assistance. The quota of men and m<sup>ony</sup> incerted in your letter for this Government is a motion soe very unreasonable, that I think it not fit to enter upon any long debate with your Commissioners upon that head; however, that I may not be wanting to her Majesty's service, and to secure her Maj: subjects in that part of your Province more imediately exposed to the impression of the enemy, I have concluded, with the advice of her Majesty's Council, to raise two hundred men for their present defence, — provided they be subsisted at your charge, and that your Excellency furnish with one hundred men and stores of amunition for the defence of the said county. I must alsoe acquaint your Excellency that our officers must be comissionated by this Government, but they shall be at your direction in your Province, as has been formerly practised and was soe executed in a former war with the Indians in the same county. I am extremely surpris'd at the representation your Excellency has made to her Majesty against this Government as refusing to contribute a small assistance when it was desired in the most pressing manner; w<sup>ch</sup> is a very great hardship, injustice and discouragement to us and might very well have been spared, considering how frequently wee have had a detachment of dragoones upon the frontiers, if not at the same tyme of your complaint, — and this present yeare not onely those forces at the eastward, but alsoe foure hundred standing forces in your county of Hampshire the whole sommer; besides the additionall troopes w<sup>ch</sup> at severall tymes were sent up upon the advice I received of the enemys approach, w<sup>ch</sup> did wholly frustrate the designe of the enemy. Yet I will be allwaise ready to lend you what succoures I am able, and when your Excellency's troopes shall distinguish themselves by assisting or releveing any of our frontiers, it shall be very justly represented to her Majesty and gratefully accepted by Sr,

Dudley's reply to this letter was written after the passage of the order which constitutes chapter 106, post, and is given in the note to that chapter.

Against Rhode Island Dudley's accusations to the Lords of Trade had been extremely severe. "He complained that not only would the Rhode-Islanders, with Massachusetts between them and harm, contribute neither men nor money to the war, but that they harbored and hid deserters from the camps."* The commissioners who went to Rhode Island bearing the queen's letter elicited by these complaints appear to have presented their demands to the Governor on the eleventh of December and, on the twenty-seventh, the following entry was made in the legislative journals of that colony: —

" . . . Coll. Dudley's demands being laid before the Assembly, it was ordered, That two out of each House should be appointed to draw up an answer, which was accordingly done, and the Assembly adjourned to the second Wednesday in February, according to the adjournment at Providence." — Records of the Colony of Rhode Island, 1678-1706, vol. III., p. 515.

The answer returned the next day, which is a plea for further time, is thus recorded immediately after the above: —

"The Governor and Company of Rhode Island to Governor Dudley.

Newport, on Rhode Island, December 28th, 1704.

Sir: Her Majesty's gracious letter from her Court at St. James, the 30th of March past, came to our Honored Governor's hand the 11th of this month, by Coll. Nathaniell Byfield, and others, who brought a letter from yourself by the request of your Generall Assembly, concerning a further assistance of a quota of men to your assistance against her Majesty's enemies, the French and Indians; and as for her Majesty's commands for assisting your frontiers with a number of men, we have not been any ways remiss therein, but on all occasions the summer past, we have to the best of our power and ability, been ready to give all assistance (we judging ourselves in all things of that nature to be bound in duty as her Majesty's subjects, to give our assistance to our neighboring Collonies), neither shall we at any time be wanting so to do for the future in giving our assistance according to our abilities; although we cannot give you that account as we wished might have been, for the seasons of the year being so violent, that great part of the House of Representatives from the main land could not be present, neither altogether the number of listed soldiers produced; and for the further care and knowledge thereof, the Generall Assembly is adjourned untill the 14th February next; it is not unknown, that we are also a frontier on the sea, and have allways a number of men in actual service and pay; and if by the next sitting of our Assembly we knew but the number of your listed soldiers, we doubt not but our Assembly will readily order a fit number and proportion on all actual service.

And so we remain her Majesty's obedient subjects, and your Honor's friends and neighbors to our ability. By order of the Honorable the Governor and Generall Assembly of her Majesty's Collony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations.

WESTON CLARKE, Secretary." — Ibid.

The following is from the record of the adjourned session of the assembly:—

"Feb. 14, 1704-5.*

Our Hon'd Governor having presented to this Assembly her Majesty's letters from St. James, March 30th, 1704, the which having been reverently read in said Assembly, and the purport thereof duly considered, as well as her Majesty's command therein, by which we perceive that her Majesty hath been informed that we refuse to assist our neighboring governments against the common enemies, though requested of us in a most pleasing manner; the which information we humbly conceive was misrepresented, for that we find there was no such refusal. And the reasons and grounds of our not complying with the demand made at that juncture not truly stated, for we allways did as we still do, hold it the duty of all her Majesty's Provinces and Collonies to be aiding and assisting to each other according to their strength and abilities, in case of any invasion or assault of the common enemy, the which we have not been negligent in severall particulars; and more especially the last summer, by sending assistance of one good Company of men into the Province of the Massachusetts, which did good service; although we are a frontier, bordering upon the ocean, and lying very open and dangerous of an invasion by sea, which put the Collony to considerable charges in maintaining watches and wards upon the sea coasts, besides our scouts upon the main land, and maintaining a garrison in the fort, and considerable charge towards the security of Block Island; all which lies very weighty upon us, notwithstanding in obedience to her Majesty's commands as well as our own inclinations for her Majesty's interest.

An Act for the raising of soldiers.

Be it enacted by the Governor, Councill and House of Representatives in this present sessions assembled, and by the authority thereof it is enacted, That there shall be the number of forty-eight men, English and Indians, forthwith listed as volunteers or impressed, in this Collony, for the service of the same, or to be otherwise disposed of as is hereafter expressed; the which number of men we deem to be the extent of our quota or proportion with the rest of the Provinces and Collonies, considering what is above premised as well as by the number of men in the severall Provinces and Collonies." — Ibid., pp. 516, 517.

This was followed by other acts and orders of the same session for raising this quota by enlistment or impressment, and for paying, subsisting, and officering them, etc.

Copies of these doings of the assembly were probably communicated to Dudley by Governor Cranston with the following letter:—

"Newport, on Rhode Island, February 28, 1704-5.

Sir: I have once more laid her Majesty's letter as well as your Excellency's (relating to the assistance of men, &c.), before our General Assembly sitting the 14th current, who have ordered the raising of one company of men, to the number of forty-eight, to be always ready for the Collony's service, and if occasion require, for the assistance of our neighboring Province and Collonies. The Assembly have also appointed Major John Dexter, Major Nathaniel Coddington and Capt'n Joseph Sheffield, or any two of them, Commissioners, to treat with the like number of Commissioners that may be appointed by your Excellency's authority (if by you approved of), for the settling the ways and methods how the respective forces, sent to the assistance of each government shall be supported, supplied and disposed of, with what else may be thought most reasonable for her Majesty's interest and safety of her subjects; and that what shall be agreed upon by said Commissioners, to be binding to each government.

Upon the request of the Assembly, I give your Excellency the foregoing account of their proceedings, who also do request if what they have done, be complied with, that your Excellency will be pleased as soon as you shall think convenient, to appoint the like number of Commissioners to have full power with ours, to settle what is premised, and that your Commissioners that may be appointed, do appoint the time and place of meeting as near the division of the government as they may judge most suitable, and give notice thereof to the Commissioners of this Collony, who will attend accordingly. I have not further to offer, but that I am your Excellency's most humble servant,

SAMUEL CRANSTON." — Ibid., p. 496.

On the seventh of May, 1705, the following reply to Governor Dudley was adopted:—

"And be it further enacted by this present Assembly and the authority thereof, That in answer to what is presented to this Assembly, relating to the severall letters to our Honored Governor, from Coll. Joseph Dudley, we find our Collony in eminent danger, and we have been necessitated to raise men for the security of our frontier places in our Collony, that at present we cannot see any necessity to raise any men at present for any other service, but shall at all times be ready to give our neighbors all assistance to our capacity, if any eminent danger on their side shall be; which at present none doth appear." — Ibid., p. 526.

By resolve, 1702–3, chapter 7, ferrymen were forbidden to take pay for transporting soldiers during the existing war. The purpose of that resolve, undoubtedly, was not to impose an unequal burden upon ferrymen, but to prevent delay in the movement of military forces by substituting a receipt or debenture by the proper military officer for the immediate payment of money, which might in many cases prove inconvenient or impossible. To recover compensation for services of this kind Briar presented the following petition:—

It would seem that, besides the above general order, a special and more definite order by Colonel Peirce, dated the fourth of April, was sent to Osgood and his lieutenant, John Barker, to have the blockhouses finished by the last of the month. It was, however, found impossible, from various causes which are mentioned in the following petition, to complete the work before the twenty-second of May, whereupon the time spent in labor by the men from the sixth of April to the twenty-second of May was disallowed them upon the muster-rolls, by order of Colonel Nathaniel Saltonstall, who succeeded Peirce.

Feeling aggrieved by this decision they appealed to the Legislature as their only chance of redress—Osgood and Barker joining in the following petition, which appears to have been accompanied by Colonel Peirce’s first order and the bill or statement aforesaid:—

“To his Excellency The Governour: and The hon<sup>d</sup> Councill and Representativs Now in Generall Court assembled. at Boston: By Prorogation 25 october, 1704

The most humble petition of Christopher osgood and John Barker Both of Andover most humbly sheweth:

That whereas your petitioners Received a speciall order By our hon<sup>d</sup> Col<sup>l</sup> Daniell peirce (Late deceased) Baring date the 4 day of aprill. 1704. forthwith to impress 20 men Ten out of each Company. and To build 4 blockhouses on This side of merimake River according to such dimensions and at such places as was therein prescribed. and To have sd houses to be finished by the last day of Aprill abov<sup>d</sup> and the souldiers placed in them at their duty on sd. day. and our Returnes to be made to our Collonell of onr so doing by the end of aprill abov<sup>d</sup> we therefore in obedience To our warrant forthwith on the .6. day of aprill impressed souldiers and workmen with them according to our Number appointed and ordered them forthwith to the worke: and in Regard of the Remoteness of the places from the Town. and the danger thay might be exposed to. we ordered some part of the men to labour at the building, and another small party of them to be scouting The woods along the River: To be a guard to the workmen and the Towne whilst the houses were in building: But by Reason of the extremety of the winter and the Backwardness of the spring, and want of hay for cattle, we were putt to Great difficultys to procure Teems to Cart our Timber and other materials which we wanted in building, which Greatly hindered our accomplishing our worke by the time appointed, but however we made them habitable and the souldiers placed in them, at their duty the 22 of may from which day we are informed by our Col<sup>l</sup> that our service must be accounted in the muster Roule: and all the Time from the 6. of aprill to y<sup>e</sup> 22 of may excluded, so that our Labour in building sd houses, and the good service of the souldiers in scouting and Guarding in that time will not be therein allowed for. Your humble petitioners therefore most humbly pray your hon<sup>rs</sup> to Consider the premesis, and Grant that our service of 20 men may be allowed on the publick account from the 6. day of aprill to y<sup>e</sup> 22 of may, with their susteinance according to their following service we shall not Charge any Cost upon the publick for any of the worke of the building Besides. But only for the worke of Teemes and other materials which we purchased by our money to effect the work, which we shall herein Give youe hon<sup>rs</sup> a True and exact account of our disbursements in the whole, for all the 4 houses as followeth, viz.

This petition was read in the House on the twenty-fifth, and was probably referred to the committee on claims, since the resolve which constitutes the first paragraph of this chapter was passed in the House and sent up for concurrence on the thirty-first.

On the eighteenth of November the Council concurred, with the proviso added which constitutes the second paragraph of the resolve. The House concurring on the same day it was immediately consented to by the Governör.

The following is the record of the order for a warrant to the province treasurer for payment, undoubtedly in accordance with Colonel Saltonstall's report under this resolve; and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was duly paid:—

“ July 26, 1705. A Muster Roll of the Souldiers under the Command of Capt<sup>n</sup> Christopher Osgood, posted at the two upper Block houses in Andover, containing an Account of Wages for their service from the 6th of April to the 17th of May 1704, being six weeks, and for their subsistance during said time, amounting in the whole to twenty four pounds, and for materials and Labour, for building the said Block houses five pounds, seventeen shillings and seven pence. In all twenty nine pounds, seventeen shillings and seven pence; haveing been examin'd by the Commissary General, was presented— And.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out thereupon to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of Twenty nine pounds, seventeen shillings and seven pence to the s<sup>d</sup> Captain Osgood on behalfe of the several persons to whom it is due.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 201.

The story of the attack on Lancaster, July 31, 1704, is told in the note to chapter 71, ante. The inhabitants of the town applied to the Legislature for a remission of a part or the whole of the province tax last assessed upon them, in the following petition:—

This petition was read in the House on the day of its date and referred to the committee on claims. On the eighth the following order was passed by the House (probably as reported by the committee) and sent to the Council for concurrence, but no further action thereon appears to have been taken at that session :—

“Considering the Distressed Circumstances of the Petitioners.

Ordered That the Sums be Deducted out of their Rate assessed upon the heads and Estates of the severall Persons that Sustained said Losse of Houses, or Barns, according to the Select men's List made last Year upon the same and that the Town be Abated Thirty Pounds towards building them a Meeting-House.” — Ibid., p. 364.

It appears that the Council deemed it proper to have the losses complained of more definitely specified. Accordingly a message was sent to the petitioners for a more particular statement, whereupon the following supplementary representation of the losses and sufferings of the inhabitants was sent by post to the Speaker :—

The subject came up for consideration in the fourth session and on the twenty-eighth of December the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed in the House and sent to the Council for concurrence, where it was immediately concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

An order in Council* for the payment of this allowance, upon the condition named in the resolve, was passed January 18, 1704-5. This was followed by another order, on the eighteenth of November, 1706, as follows:—

"Pursuant to a Resolve pass'd by the General Assembly at their Session held at Boston the 27th of December 1704. that the sum of Forty pounds be allowed and paid out of the Publick Treasury to the Town of Lancaster, towards building a Meeting House as soon as they shall have erected a Frame for the same & paid the Taxes already levied upon them.

And the Frame for their Meeting house, being now rayسد, and a certificate produced from the Treasury that their Taxes are paid.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of forty pounds to Josiah Whetcombe Town Treasurer of Lancaster for the use aforesaid." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 335.

The province treasurer's account † shows that it was duly paid.

For the appointment and doings of this commission see chapter 81, ante, and the note thereto.

The narrative of the commissioners, which is thus alluded to by Governor Dudley in his speech at the beginning of this session (December 27, 1704), has not been discovered:—

"I have also lately sent at your desire some Gentlemen to the two Governments of Connecticut & Road Iland to sollicit their assistance, The Return of that Negotiation shall be layd before you, from Road Iland we are to Expect a further answer from the General assembly there, from Connecticut the Answer is in My opinion by no Means what we might Justly expect from their Number of Men, & the proporation that has been heretofore stated between us, Notwithstanding that Motion to them was accompanied by her Majestyes Most gracious Letters Comanding their Just assistance at all times." — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 23.

On the twenty-eighth the commissioners attended at the council board and formally presented their narrative, which was read and sent to the House of Representatives. The next day the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council for concurrence. It was concurred in on the day of its passage and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed January 18, 1704-5, and the province treasurer's account ‡ shows that it was duly paid.

Besides the above compensation the province treasurer's account § shows that he paid the sum of twenty pounds to defray the expenses of the journey. The order for a warrant for this payment is as follows:—

"Dec. 5, 1704. Advised and Consented That a Warrant be made out to Mr Treasurer to pay the sum of Twenty pounds to Samuel Lynde Esq<sup>r</sup> for the support of the Commissioners, unto the several Governments of Connecticut and Rhode Island upon their Journy." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 121.

This resolve applies to paid volunteers under the act of 1703-4, chapter 6, § 2, revived and continued by the act of 1704-5, chapter 9.

When the Assembly convened in the third session || this year the province had enjoyed a respite from the attacks of the enemy for about two months. On this the Governor congratulated the General Court in his speech at the beginning of the session, attributing this exemption to the punishment Church had inflicted on the enemy in their eastern settlements during the previous spring and summer, to the repulse they received in their attack on Lancaster, and to the vigilance of the scouts and garrisons on the western frontier, but at the same time he warned his hearers not to be too confident of their security, but to "expect a winters march of the Enemy from both sides which the Eastern part especially will be forced to for their own subsistence having neither Corn nor Hunting for their supply."¶

To prevent danger from such an invasion he declared, "I think it necessary to support the present numbers in the province of Mayn & the frontiers of Essex & Middlesex & to have a much greater force in a readiness to receive any Impression of the Enemy, in any of the parts — & particularly to have 100 men sent to West Hampshire which Joyned with the same number from Connecticut may be sufficient there.

I shall give you the present state of the forces in the severall parts for this winter season which I hope will be to your satisfaction.*

The Governor's account of the "state of the forces," etc., was undoubtedly laid before the representatives according to his promise, and it seems equally certain that he received their advice to proceed in the manner he proposed and with the reinforcements he asked for, since, in his speech at the beginning of the next session (December 27, 1704), he addressed the Assembly as follows:—

"Gentlemen

Since I parted from you in your Last session I have persued your advice referring to the warr and the Numbers of men in the severall parts as near as possible, so as in the whole they are below the Numbers you advised mee, which I was the rather Inclined unto supposing as it has hapned that the Last two months being neither propper for a summer nor a winters march, we might have less Expectation of the Enemy, but the winter being now Confirmed we must Expect to see them both in yorkshire & west Hampshire, of this Last we are already advised that the Enemy Intends an Early winters march & the same is Justly to be Expected in the Eastern parts & nothing will prevent their Incursions so much as to let their own scouts find us in a readiness for them which I shall not Neglect & hope the militia every where will be ready to prevent an oppression in the frontiers."—Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 23.

This allusion to the advice he had received and pursued is inexplicable by any other supposition than that the Governor had communicated his plans and received a vote of approval by the House, and recorded only in the House Journals, which for that period are lost. The House, however, sent up another message advising that if any of the frontier garrisons be detailed on expeditions their places should be supplied from the Boston regiment and that rations of bread be sent to Concord, Chelmsford, etc., in readiness for a march. ||

Two independent expeditions appear to have been sent out to accomplish the same purpose, and of one of these the following extract from Penhallow, in which he seems to have considered the movement merely tentative, — a reconnoissance in force, — is a brief narrative:—

"The Indian harvest being now gathered, and the winter approaching, the enemy, like beasts of prey, retired to their private cells: but concluding it necessary to discover their head quarters, it was resolved that Col. Hilton, with two hundred and seventy † men, should go to Narridgewalk with twenty days' provision: at which time the country appeared like a frozen lake, the snow four feet deep; yet neither officers nor soldiers were in the least discouraged; but when they came unto the fort, could not discover the least step of an Indian, only a few deserted wigwams, and a large chapel, with a vestry at the end of it which they set on fire."—Indian Wars, p. 38.

The forces ‡ on this expedition consisted of two hundred Massachusetts men and twenty friendly Indians, who had been for some time in New Hampshire on other duty and who had been sent from Massachusetts by the Governor, and it was intended to join to them a company of sixty New Hampshire volunteers, besides a reinforcement of one hundred men from Massachusetts. The whole force was to be under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Hilton and Major Shadrach Walton. This expedition started § from Piscataqua February 14, 1704-5, with three hundred men.

With the tidings of the departure of this force the Governor received information which led him to submit to the Council, for their advice, the project of sending out a company in a coaster to molest the enemy along shore. The following is the record of his communication to them and of their advice thereupon:—

"Feb. 20, 1704-5. His Excellency acquainted the Council, that Capt<sup>n</sup> Larraby, lately come from Piscataqua gave him an Account, that the Forces designed to visit the Indian Fort at Norridgewock, set out on their march thither on Wednesday, the 14th current, and may be supposed to be gotten by this time from Casco; and that several Fires having been descried along the sea-side Eastward, it's concluded a number of Indians are drawn thither to seek for subsistance. Upon the Report whereof several spoke to the s<sup>d</sup> Larraby, that if the Governour would order him to go out with a Sloop, w<sup>ch</sup> he might have at that place, he might raise a Compy of Forty or Fifty Volunteers in that Town and places adjacent to attend him in a short Expedition along the Eastern Coast to molest the Enemy by the sea-side which would greatly distress them, now our Forces were march'd into the Country. And ask'd their advice therein.

† Farmer and Moore (Hist. Coll., vol. I., p. 246) agree with Penhallow in this estimate: but the News-Letter and the Governor in his message to the representatives, February 22, 1704-5 (both of which are printed, post), concur in the statement that the number was at least three hundred.

‡ Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II., pp. 452-454. The Indians here mentioned were undoubtedly the "Moheags" applied for by Dudley in his letter of the fourth of September, printed in the note to chapter 81, ante. The Governor applied again, a week later, in a letter from which the following is an extract:—

"Sr, — I continue to think it very much for the service that I might have fifty Moheegs. They cannot spend their winter better then to eat my bread & flesh at Neckawanock."—Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 264.

§ "Boston, On Wednesday the 14th Instant, Lieut. Col. Hilton & Maj. Walton marched from Piscataqua with 300 men volunteers with Snow Shoes for Narridgewalk the Head Quarters of the Eastern Indians at 250 miles distance, with 20 days Subsistance in their Snap-sucks, who we doubt not if the Weather allow will see that place in 10 days from their setting out. And His Excellency the Governour has at the same time a Cruiser on the Shore of L'acadie to distress the Enemy there. The Discovery of their Head-Quarters will give measures for the Summers proceeding. We have had no mischief from the Enemy these 6 months past, notwithstanding all their Bravos's to visit us once in two months."—Boston News-Letter, No. 45. February 19 to 26, 1704-5.

¶ For an account of the cruise to Acadia see note to chapter 108, post.

The Council Advised, That such an expedition be encouraged and put forward." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 146.

Upon receiving this advice the Governor submitted the project to the Assembly (which convened in its fifth session on the next day), as shown by the following entry: —

"Feb. 22, 1704-5. His Excellency sent a Message to the Representatives by John Phillips Esq; & the Secretary to acquaint the House That, pursuant to their Advice the last Session for a Winter March to visit the Enemies Head Quarters Major Walton* march'd from Newickawonock on Wednesday the fourteenth Currant with about Two Hundred & forty Men of our Forces, & Lieut. Coll. Hilton with a Company of Sixty odd Men of New Hampshire Forces followed the next Day in Order to visit Norridgewock, & supposes they marchd from Casco on Monday the 19th Curr! And that a Vessel lately coming along the Eastern Shore saw several Fires at Pemequid & to the Westward of it supposed to be Indians drawn to the Sea Side for Subsistence, Upon which Intelligence Cpt. Larrabee informing that he might raise a Company of Volunteers at Newbury & parts adjacent to go & distress them, A Sloop lying in Readiness there to embark them, And that His Excellency with Advice of the Council had encouraged the Design & sent away Cpt. Larrabee † to Newbury to put it forward, And to know if the House had any Thing further to advise in that Affair." — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 106.

Of the achievements of the expedition under Hilton and Walton, and of its return, the News-Letter gives the following account: —

"Piscataqua, March 8th. Our Forces under the Command of Lieut. Col. Hilton, & Major Walton returned last night from Narigwalk the Head Quarters of the Eastern Indians, who advise of a large Fort, Meeting-house & School-house that were there erected, the Fort encompassed 3 quarters of an acre of ground with Pallisado's, wherein were 12 Wigwams but no Enemy; neither the discovery of any Tracks seen, but of 3 or 4 supposed to be there about 3 weeks since, no plunder excepting a few Household Utensils of little value: The Meeting-house was built of Timber 60 Foot long, 25 Foot wide, & 18 Foot studd ceiled with Clapboards, in it were only a few old Popish Relicks; the School-house lay at one end distinct, all which they burnt, near to it was a Field of Corn un-gathered, which may be imputed to the Enemy's desertion by the consternation that seized them at the Ransacking of the Eastern French & Indian Settlements the last Summer, our men hail and lusty, and if need were, fit for a new Enterprize." — No. 47.

The other expedition, consisting of about one hundred and fifty men, ‡ proceeded from Dunstable, in two companies. One, commanded by Captain Benjamin Stevens, started January 9, 1704-5, and the other, commanded by Captain Wilham Tyng, started six days later. Both appear to have returned before the middle of March.

Unlike the larger force, which left Piscataqua about a month later and returned in perfect health and spirits, both officers and privates in this earlier expedition appear to have suffered extremely from the hardships and privations of the march. ||

The following extracts from the executive records of the council are all that have been found of record throwing light on this expedition, which is not mentioned by Penhallow or Belknap: —

One of the purposes for which Governor Dudley undertook his voyage to Piscataqua, before the departure of the mast ships, was to meet the expeditions on their return from Norridgewalk, as appears in the following entries:—

“March 3, 1704-5. His Excellency acquainted the Council, that he intended to go to the Eastward the beginning of the week to receive the Forces at their return from their March to Norridgewock, and to make a reform, and reduce them to their standing for the summer.

In Governor Dudley’s second proclamation for thanksgiving to be kept April 12, 1705, he mentions the safe return of the forces sent to Norridgewalk as one of the additional causes for “solemn acknowledgment.” See note to chapter 120, post.

Upon the following order a warrant to the province treasurer was issued for paying the amounts as above certified, and the same were accordingly paid: * —

"Jan. 18, 1704-5. To each of the two Centinels that by motion of this Court, were placed as a Guard to the Publick Stores of War, lodged in the Sconce in Boston, ten shillings & week for their Wages and subsistance for the time certiyed by Capt<sup>m</sup> Timothy Clarke, the one being thirty two weeks, and the other thirty three weeks, amounting to Thirty two pounds, ten shillings to be paid to Capt<sup>m</sup> Clarke on their behalfe." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 141.

The entry of payment in the treasurer's books includes the further sum of £5 9s. 8d., paid agreeably to the following order of the Council: —

"Nov. 28, 1704. An Accompt was presented by Capt<sup>m</sup> Timothy Clark Commander of the South Fort in Boston, for charges in making up a Box for the Centinels, for fireing & Candles &c<sup>a</sup> amounting to Five pounds nine shillings and eight pence.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of Five pounds, nine shillings & eight pence accordingly." — Ibid., p. 116.

Subsequently a warrant was issued for paying two sentinels (Salter having succeeded Warren), as follows: —

"Jan. 17, 1705-6. An Accompt of Timothy Clarke Captain of the South Fort in Boston, for fireing and Candles for the two Centinels allowed as a Guard upon the Magazine and stores lodged at the s<sup>d</sup> Fort, and certificates of the service of William Phelps and Malachi Salter the two Centinels, Salter from the 17th of November 1704, to the 17th of November 1705, and Phelps from the 23<sup>d</sup> of November 1704, to the 23<sup>d</sup> of November 1705, and their subsistance, the whole amounting to forty nine pounds, nine shillings and ten pence, was presented — &.

The province treasurer's account † shows that the above amount was duly paid.

These sentinels continued on duty the next year, for which they were ordered to be paid at the same rate, as appears by the following entry: —

"Dec. 28, 1706. A Certificate of the service of Malachi Salter and William Phelps, the two Centinels allowed as a Guard upon the Magazine & stores lodgd in the Sconce or South Fort in Boston; Salter from the seventeenth of November 1705 to the 17th of November last, and Phelps from the 23<sup>d</sup> of November 1705, to the 23<sup>d</sup> of November last, was presented by Capt<sup>m</sup> Timothy Clark Commander of the s<sup>d</sup> Fort, their pay and subsistance for the s<sup>d</sup> time, amounting to twenty two pounds, two shillings each.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out thereupon to the Treasurer to pay the sum of Forty four pounds, four shillings to the said Captain Clarke, on behalfe of the two Centinels above named." — Ibid., p. 356.

The above amount was paid; ‡ and by another order of the same date, on the same page, a warrant was advised to be made out for paying Captain Clarke "for Cartridge Paper, cleaning of small armes, fireing and Candles for the Two Centinels," which was also duly paid ‡ by the province treasurer.

By the twenty-third of June the commissioners from Massachusetts to treat with the Five Nations had been appointed, as shown in chapter 23, ante. An appropriation § for a suitable present to the Indians had been made as early as the fourteenth, and invested by the twenty-first of September. The subject of appointing this commission || was first introduced in the Legislature on the eighth of June, but, apparently, it had been first suggested by Johannes Schuyler in a letter to Governor Winthrop, dated April 24, 1704, as follows: —

"MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HON<sup>R</sup>. — It was a surprise to us to hear from Colonell Samuel Partridge of Hatfield what murder & destruction the French & Indians from Canada have committed at Dearfield in New England, of which M<sup>r</sup> John Livingston on his arrival here gave us an exact account. and New England, saying that in former years they used once in a year or two to come & renew y<sup>e</sup> covenant chain, but now none of them comes to see us, so that I doubt they will not be very willing in assistance at first against y<sup>e</sup> Indian enemy. And I conceive it would not be amiss (if his Excellency y<sup>e</sup> Governour of Boston thought fitt) to send some gentlemen of his government here this summer with some presents, to renew y<sup>e</sup> covenant chain with them, whereby encouragement may be given them and persuaded to lift y<sup>e</sup> hatchet against y<sup>e</sup> Onnagonguees or Eastern Indians, which would not only tend to her Maj<sup>s</sup> service but also for y<sup>e</sup> quiet & ease of y<sup>e</sup> inhabitants of your fronteers. These, with my humble respect to your lady, is what humbly offers at present from him who takes leave to subscribe himself with all sincerity

Your Hon<sup>rs</sup> most humble & most obedient servant,

JOHANNIS SCHUYLER." — Win-

throp Papers, part V., p. 194.

A letter from William Whiting to Governor Winthrop, dated at Westfield, May 25, 1704, discloses the fact that the writer had received from Colonel Schuyler the impression that towards the end of May the people at Albany seemed "not willing their Indians should meddle or concern themselves, but let us alone to manage the war wth Canada, as they have done formerly;" but, at the same time, that they would "advise us of any approaching danger they shall discover."*

The Governor of Connecticut had thought of writing to Cornbury for assistance, as mentioned in the note to chapter 71, ante, and had prepared a letter† for that purpose, which was submitted to the committee of war who dissuaded him from sending it. In the mean time he received a letter from Deputy-Governor Treat of Connecticut, from which the following extract is taken:—

"5th Whether not very probable that those Indians that haue so long professed friendship to us & so often in y<sup>e</sup> last war gave good proof thereof, will if sutablely treated redyly either go themselves against y<sup>e</sup> enemie and be a means to divert them from us, or joine with such forces as might be sent from these Governments for that end. 6th Whether in order to this it be not advisable that the Gov<sup>r</sup> of Boston and our Gov<sup>r</sup> boath treat my Lord concerning this affair, to reminde him of y<sup>e</sup> necessity of som such measures to be taken by land against our common enemies, since he concludes it not adviseable to attempt any thing against them by sea; and to agree spedily to send sutable messengers from each of y<sup>e</sup> Governments to be present with my Lord, or those he shall appoint to treat y<sup>e</sup> s<sup>d</sup> Indians, & to have his spedie answer what he will do in this weighty affaire. 7th Whether if his Lordship do refuse to concern himselfe with Boston and us in this business, it be not best for them and us notwithstanding to send messengers to treat with y<sup>e</sup> s<sup>d</sup> Indians upon this account, y<sup>t</sup> we may y<sup>e</sup> better know what we haue to trust to if they will not joine with us in this war. And doubtless shall be y<sup>e</sup> better satisfied to bear y<sup>e</sup> burthen we now do when we find no way to ease it, or be moved y<sup>e</sup> more earnestly to petition y<sup>e</sup> Queens Majestie for relief in this case; which is the needfull under our present cecomstances from him who am Sr,

Your humble servant,

R: TREAT. D. G.

MILFORD, June 13: 1704." — Ibid., p. 224.

"MILFORD, June 17th 1704.

... Upon this occasion severall of the principall persons of both y<sup>e</sup> s<sup>d</sup> Committes met here . . . who humbly advise not to send it [the letter Winthrop had prepared for Cornbury] forward at present, but pray your Hon<sup>r</sup>: would take into your farther consideration whether it be not more adviseable that my Lord be treated in some such way as was proposed in my last to you, & are very desireous y<sup>t</sup> y<sup>e</sup> Moheggs & Five Nations be treated & by some means or other ingaged in y<sup>e</sup> present warr against our enemies. . . ." — Ibid., p. 225.

The design to confer with the Five Nations seems to have become generally known by the twentieth, for on that day Whiting wrote to Winthrop proposing to include the scalps taken at Cowassic as part of Connecticut's present to the savages, as follows:—

"This also will furnish your Honour wth sutable presents for the Five Nations, if in your wisdom it be thought best to engage them, viz: the scalps each nation one, w<sup>ch</sup> Col. Schuyler sent me word were acceptable and oblidging." — Ibid., p. 228.

Before sending off the gentlemen designated as commissioners to negotiate with the Five Nations, Dudley deemed it his duty to obtain the consent of Lord Cornbury, governor of the province in which the Indians were domiciled; and on the day after their appointment he wrote to Winthrop, informing him that he had already written to Cornbury and expressing his desire that Connecticut would join with Massachusetts in the proceedings of the conference, as follows:—

... I desire also you will, as usual, joyn with this Governm<sup>t</sup> in a renewall of or friendship with the Maquas. The Assembly here have ordered a present of two hundred pounds to be made them, and there will be two Commissioners appointed for that affayr. If you please to joine in it, I am of opinion this is the proper time, and have written to my Lord Cornbury thereupon; and shall attend his answer, and then set the time exactly." — Ibid., p. 231.

Dudley's suggestion appears to have been approved by the councils of safety of New Haven and Fairfield counties, whereupon, on the twenty-eighth, the Governor and council addressed the following communication to the committee of war at Hartford:—

* Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 211.

“NEWLONDON, June 28th 1704.

. . . You have here inclosed a copy of a letter which the Gov<sup>r</sup> received from Coll: Dudley last Saturday; and it is sent you for your opinion on the whole, especially that paragraph concerning renewing our friendship with the Five Nations. The gentlemen of the Council of Safety in the countyes of New Haven and Fairfield, have sent the Govern<sup>r</sup> their opinion that it ought not to be neglected, and moved earnestly for it in their last letters. The Council here agree with them and recomēd it to your care to search the records and send the Govern<sup>r</sup> word what our proportion of encouragement to the 5 Nations of Indians, in conjunction with the Massachusetts Province, used to be. The Govern<sup>r</sup> had concluded to visit the frontiers this week, but considering the necessity of his Hon<sup>rs</sup> being here, that the treaty with those Five Nations proposed by Govern<sup>r</sup> Dudley may be agreed with him by the stated post, concerning which (and some other concerns relating to the war, which the Council wrote about to Col. Dudley by M<sup>r</sup> Eliot, as you had advice), the Govern<sup>r</sup> expects to hear from his Excellency by the next post, the Council here have perswaded his Hon<sup>r</sup> to defer his visiting of you a little longer.

A letter containing the following reply to the above letter was sent from Hartford on the third of July:—

CALEB STANLY, Senior.

We were 50<sup>lb</sup> and Boston Govern<sup>t</sup> 200 pound, Anno: 1694, & that seems to be an equall proportion; its thought they are four times as big as wee.” — Ibid., p. 236.

Up to this time Cornbury had failed to reply to Dudley’s letter, as shown by the following extract from a letter written by the latter to Winthrop:—

“ROXBURY, 26 July 1704.

. . . I have not yet my Lord Cornburys answer referring to visit of the Maquas, but shall immediately express it when I have it.” — Ibid., p. 244.

It was more than a month after this that Dudley notified Winthrop that he had obtained Cornbury’s permission. The following is an extract from this letter:—

“PISCATAQR. 28 August 1704.

S<sup>r</sup>. — I have now concluded, with my Lord Cornbury’s consent, to send my Commissioners Townsend & Leveret from here towards [New] York this day fortnight, being the eleventh of September, & desire your gentlemen will joyn them in their way, or at York or at Albany, where you please, with their present, & I hope they will move the Maquas to some advance in the service.” — Ibid., p. 261.

The Governor of Connecticut consented to choose agents to coöperate with the Massachusetts commissioners in the proposed treaty of alliance, and these were the “gentlemen” * whom Dudley mentions in the above letter as expected to join the commissioners from Massachusetts.

Having received no response Dudley wrote again to Winthrop on the fourth of September, intimating that he was willing to change the route to be taken by the Massachusetts commissioners if it would be “any ease” to their associates from Connecticut. The following is an extract from this letter:—

“BOSTON, 4 September 1704.

S<sup>r</sup>. — I wrot you this day sevensight from Piscataqr that the gentlemen from this Province for the enterveiv at Albany should proceed from hence on Monday the 11th instant to Road Iland & from there by water to York, in order to go up the river to Albany. I desire, if you have not that letter, that you will please to take this advice thereof and to order your gentlemen with their present to joyn us at York or at Albany; or if you please, that it be any ease to your gentlemen, if I have notice of it before Monday noon next, our gentlemen shall call at New London there to receive them.” — Ibid., p. 262.

On the tenth Winthrop wrote to Cornbury, and to Colonel Peter Schuyler at Albany. His letter to the latter was as follows:—

“ . . . I have lately received a letter from Gov<sup>r</sup> Dudley that he has obtayned leave of my Lord Cornbury to send messengers to the 5 Nations & has desired me to joyne with him therein. I have accordingly appointed [blank] and M<sup>r</sup> John Livingston, your nephew, to visit the 5 Nations with a small present, such as can be procured upon this sudaine, and must recomēd them to your favour for assistance & directions, and to introduce them & their present to the best advantage. I am very sensible of your great intrest with the 5 Nations, and your capassety to oblige them to take up the hatchet in behalf of these Governments, and by their scoutes (as formerly) they will be able to give the enemy such a diversion as will oblige them to keep at home. And truly I think noe better meanes can be proposed for the safety of the county of Hampshire &c, most particularly exposed to their incursions. I remember in a late treaty with the 5 Nations by Collonell Fletcher, and some gentlemen from Boston & from this Government, he swept up all the returnes the Indians made, we<sup>ch</sup> was a dishonor to those gentlemen, that they could not shew that the Indians did answere their propositions. But I hope you will order otherwise now, and that whatever returnes they make, tho’ never so triviall, be delivered to our gentlemen distinct from what are made to the gentlemen of Boston. This being the first adventre your nephew makes in a publick capassety, I shall be sorry if he should not returne with some success & reputation. Tis much in your power to promote it, and I will not doubt your favour to him in what may be to his advantage. I wish a good success to this affaire, and with my hearty salutations to your honourd mother, yourself & lady, Madame L., yo<sup>r</sup> brothers & sisters, and where you please to dispose of me, I am

* Nathan Gold and the Governor’s son-in-law, John Livingston, were the commissioners eventually chosen.

Yo<sup>r</sup> most affectionate faythfull servant,

J: W." — Ibid., p. 263.

It would seem that at the moment of writing the above either Gold had not been selected as the associate of Livingston on the commission or had not accepted the appointment.

The letter to Cornbury, of which no copy has been found, appears to have been delivered by Livingston in person, who followed the former as far as Philadelphia for that purpose. The following undignified letter from Cornbury to Winthrop, in reply, indicates that he did not cordially approve of the project of the New-England governors to join independently of him in a conference with the Indians within his government, and that, either on that account or in resentment of some previous real or fancied misbehavior of the Connecticut messengers while within his jurisdiction, he was betrayed into an act of incivility unworthy of one holding his position:—

SIR, — Yours of the 10th instant was delivered to me by Mr Levingstone at Philadelphia on Saturday last. As for your sending to the Indians in conjunction with Collonell Dudley, I have noe great objection to make to it; only great care must be taken in what is to be said to them. Therefore I should have thought that Collonell Dudley's messengers, and yours, should have been directed to communicate their directions to me that I might have seen whether their instructions don't clash with what I last said to the Indians. I am very sorry I must complain of both your messengers, and indeed if they had not brought that letter from you, I would have dealt at another sort of rate with them; but out of respect to you I would not. The first, Captain Gold, I should have taken care of for his pretending to preach and to cant in our streets here. The second, M<sup>r</sup> Levingston, I would have made an example of for seducing our souldiers away from Albany last summer, when he went up thither under pretense of seeing his mother; upon whose persuasions severall of our men have deserted and are gone into your government, where they are not only received, but protected. I shall be forced to acquaint the Government at home with these proceedings, and M<sup>r</sup> Levingstone had best take care how he manages himself upon this journey. I have given him fair warning & I hope he will be wiser than he has been; for it is certainly true that nothing should have saved him this time from the punishment he deserves, but purely the respect I shall always be ready to shew you upon all occasions, being

CORNBURY." — Ibid., p. 267.

The tone of this letter gives it the appearance of ill-concealed opposition to the whole scheme of engaging the Indians as active allies of New England in the prosecution of the war.

The following extract from a letter to Governor Winthrop from Deputy-Governor Robert Treat gives an interesting glimpse of the difficulties encountered by the Connecticut government in procuring in New York or Albany a gift* to the Indians suitable for the occasion:—

HON<sup>BL</sup> SE, — Having oportunitie by the bearer hereof, Sam<sup>l</sup> Gilbeer, I thought good to acquaint your Hon<sup>r</sup> with some difficulties we meet with in procuring the present for the Albanie designe, and our late order concerning the souldiers in Hampshire countie. Money is not to be had for the purchasage of a present without standing securitie, and such commodities as are proper for that service, viz: duffles and other cloths, we understand is not to be had neither at York nor Albanie. In so much that the Albanians talke of fetching such things over land from Boston. We have sent to Boston to procure such things upon the countreys credit, but I doubt too late. We are using our best indeavour to accomodate the gentlemen with money for their expences, that are designd for the service, and with the present, but we find it very difficult. Cap<sup>t</sup> Gold that we pitcht upon to be one of the comissioners hath accepted, desiring that he may be informed when and by what way he should be moving forward with M<sup>r</sup> Livingston to meet the Boston gentlemen, and what his orders are." — Ibid., p. 264.

The time of departure of the commissioners, as prefixed by Dudley, was delayed a few days, but at the appointed time he wrote † to Winthrop, “I have desired the agents of this Province to expect yours at York or Albany, & to treat them as brethren.” On the fifteenth, having received their credentials and the fifty pounds expense-money advanced to them, as shown in the note to chapter 35, ante, and having completed all other preparations for their journey, they set out from Boston, as appears by the following entry in the diary of Judge Sewall, who, it seems, improved this opportunity to transmit through them a letter of credit to the captive minister of Deerfield, then at or near Quebec:—

“Sept 15. [1704.] . . . At Dedham met the Comissioners going to New-York, Col. Townsend, Mr. Leverett: Gave Mr. Leverett my Letter to Mr. Williams: In it was a Letter of Credit for some Money not exceeding Ten Ounces.” — Vol. II., p. 116.

* The following extract from a letter written by Cornbury to the Lords of Trade November 6, 1704, reflects the general sentiment as to the necessity of gifts in winning the favor of the savages:—

“I intreat Your Lord<sup>sh</sup>ps to intercede with the Queen that some presents may be sent over for the Indians, for if we must buy them here they will cost three times the price they will cost in England and sometimes the goods proper for the Indians, are not to be got here for money, such as light guns, Duffles, Strouds, Kettles, Hatchets, Stockings, Blankets and powder; and till Canada is reduced, we shall never be able to keep the Indians steady without presents.” — Documents Relating to the Colonial History of the State of New York, vol. IV., p. 1123.

† Boston, September 11, 1704. Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 264.

The route by way of Connecticut had been chosen as well to secure the companionship of the Connecticut commissioners in their progress up the Hudson as to avoid the risk of travelling the overland route to Albany which, at that time, could not be safely followed except under an expensive military escort. They were accompanied by Nathaniel Hubbard* (H. C. 1698) as chaplain, and by other attendants. They arrived at New York, in season to sail for Albany on the twenty-second, and had not been heard from on the second of October, according to the following items in the News-Letter:—

“New-York, Octob. 2. . . . We have not heard from Albany since Col. Townsend and Mr. Leveret with the other Gentlemen of Boston went up.” — No. 25.

The following further item appeared one week later:—

“New-York, Octob. 9. . . . The Boston Gentlemen are not yet arrived from Albany.” — No. 26.

A week later still, the following item gave the first published intimation of the probable date of the conclusion of the conference:—

“New-York, Octob. 16. . . . A Sloop arrived here from Albany on Fryday last, [the thirteenth] the Indians were not come when they left it, and they say it would be a fortnight before the Boston Gentlemen would come from thence.” — No. 27.

No further report of the progress of the Massachusetts commissioners has been discovered; but the Governor of Connecticut received, successively, letters from Livingston and Schuyler, and from the Connecticut commissioners, jointly, as follows:—

The Massachusetts commissioners returned to Boston on the third † of November, and * See chapter 89, ante.

† “On Fryday night the 3<sup>d</sup> Currant returned from Albany, the Honourable Colonel Penn Townsend, and John Leveret Esqrs. Commissioners for a Treaty with the 5 Nations, with the other Gentlemen that accompanied them, all in good health, who have renewed the ancient Friendship with them.” — Boston News-Letter, No. 29.—The entry in the council record dated the fourth is, “the commissioners . . . being returned this day,” etc., but the News-Letter's report is more circumstantial, and is probably correct.

on the fourth they presented to the Council a "Narrative of their Treaty and Negotiation,"* which was read at the Board.

The following is the record of the action taken by the Governor and Council upon their final account:—

"Nov. 20, 1704. An Account of the charge of Penn Townsend and John Leverett Esq<sup>rs</sup> Commissioners to Albany in the late Negotiation with the five Nations, and for their attendants and servants, amounting to Eighty two pounds & two pence, including twenty five pounds six shillings taken up to make up their present Two hundred pounds—In which Account the Province has credit for Ten pounds, so the balance is seventy two pounds and two pence, which sum is over and above the Fifty pounds advanced to them at their setting forth.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be issued to the Treasurer to pay unto the said Penn Townsend and John Leverett Esq<sup>rs</sup> the said Ballance of seventy two pounds and two pence, as also the sum of Forty pounds to each granted them by the General Assembly for their Service."—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 109.

In the province treasurer's account the above allowance of £152 0s. 2d. was duly charged as paid.†

Although the report of the commissioners from Massachusetts to Connecticut has not been discovered, the response of the Indians to their appeal is shown in the preamble to this chapter, by which it appears they were only deterred from "taking up the hatchet" by their failure to receive the consent of Cornbury, whose reluctance was owing, apparently, to his apprehension that such a treaty would interrupt or destroy the trade of which the existing neutrality between his government and the Indians secured to New York a monopoly.

The order which constitutes this chapter, and which originated in the House, passed through all its stages on the same day. There are some unimportant differences between the preamble to the order as recorded and as it exists in the archives. Before the order was passed, the words "allow & Encourage," in the third line, were substituted for "Improve his Interest with," as first written.

Upon receiving the letter which Dndley wrote to him in accordance with the request of the Legislature as expressed in this chapter, Cornbury replied, as mentioned in the footnote on page 100, ante, in a letter which has not been found, "That he would allow & encourage the Five Nations to take up Arms against the Common Enemy."‡ This letter Dndley communicated to the Council February 21, 1704-5; but by that time this concession of the governor of New York, by whatever inducement it was obtained, became for the time being of little consequence, since overtures were made soon after for the exchange of prisoners by the belligerents, which, notwithstanding some abortive hostile demonstrations § in the mean time, led to a cessation of hostilities pending the ensuing negotiations for a treaty of peace.

The record of the proceedings of the House in presenting their thanks to Dndley for his services in procuring Cornbury's consent to the alliance with the Iroquois is as follows:—

"Feb. 22, 1704-5. Mr Wolcot, Cpt. Warren & Cpt. Brattle of the Representatives attended his Excellency with the Letters from the Lord Cornbury & Governour Winthrop in Answer to Letters written to them referring to the Five Nations & the Affairs of the War, sent to that House yesterday for their perusal,

And gave the Thanks of the House to his Excellency for his Care & pains in that Matter, withal Desiring him further to press the Government of Connecticut for their Assistance in the War not being satisfied with his Answer."—Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 106.

The missing records of the doings of the Massachusetts commissioners and the result of their mission are in some degree supplied by the following extracts from the correspondence of Governor Winthrop:—

"The five nations of Indians which are called by the name of Oneidas, Onondagas, Cayugas, Senekas, and Macquas, [so spelled in the printed narrative, but written by Penhallow, Oneydes, Onondages, Cayonges, Senneches, and Macquans] all this while stood neuter, but being like to be influenced by the French missionaries, who came among them, Colonel Townsend and Mr. Leverett, from the Massachusetts, Capt. Gold and Capt. Levinston from Connecticut, were commissioned to give them a visit, and strengthen the alliance with them, which they did to so good effect, that they promised to take up the hatchet, whenever the Governor of New-England should desire it. But why so fair an opportunity was lost, when the interest of New-England lay bleeding, was matter of surprise and admiration to some, of censures and reflections to others. The only account we can give of it is the vast trade between the Dutch and Indians; for the sake of which, that government have always chosen to restrain their Indians from joining with us in our wars. In the midst of war there seems a secret league between them and the Governor of Canada, not to suffer the least breach to be made on one another by any of their Indians."—Indian Wars, p. 35.

Samuel Niles, who, though an accepted authority, seems to have consulted no other source of information than Penhallow, thus attempts to echo the opinion of the latter:—

"But though the interest of New-England had so many years before this, and long after, lay bleeding, yet this permit could not be obtained from the Governor; which proceeded, as was conjectured by some, from a secret intrigue between him and the Governor of Canada, lest it might obstruct the free trade of the Indians with some of the inhabitants of this western government; which has in time past been a great wound to the eastern parts of the country."—Mass. Hist. Soc. Coll., third series, vol. VI., p. 260.

The order which constitutes this chapter so far modified the provisions of chapter 18, ante, as to require, among other things, the billeting of all soldiers who had been furnished more than six consecutive meals by the person seeking compensation to be charged at a rate per week instead of by the single meal.

By chapter 62 of the resolves of the year 1701–2, and the order of the Council thereupon, the powder and powder-money collected at the impost office in Salem were to be applied to the repair of the fort there, by the field-officers. See the note to said chapter, vol. VII., p. 699.

This petition was read in the House January 2, 1704-5, and probably referred to the committee on claims. On the next day the resolve aforesaid was passed by the representatives and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the fourth it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The orders in Council* for payment of the allowances granted by this chapter were passed January 18, 1704-5, and the province treasurer's account† shows that they were paid.

For incidents of the invasions of this town by the enemy, see notes to resolves, 1694-5, chapter 17, 1699-1700, chapter 26, and to chapter 48, ante. The first two of these chapters relate to but one invasion, which was made July 27, 1694. The date (1693) given in Josiah Parker's petition, as printed in the note to chapter 26 of the resolves of 1699-1700, is erroneous.

Chap. 106. This chapter is from archives, vol. 71, p. 118. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 102.

From the Governor's allusion to an apprehended invasion, in his speech to the Assembly at the beginning of the fourth session (note to chapter 98, ante), it would seem that by that time the rumors of an intended hostile demonstration against the frontiers were generally credited — and that the confirmatory evidence had not been communicated solely to the executive as private information. Whether the cause for apprehension was then generally regarded as serious or not, the following item from the News-Letter, less than three weeks later, tended to substantiate the rumor:—

“New York, Jan. 1. . . . The Post from Albany brings Advice, That the French were fitting out a great Party of Indians, &c. to fall upon some of the English Governments.” — No. 39.

This undoubtedly influenced the Legislature to further consider the project of securing the active coöperation of Connecticut in resisting the expected assaults of the enemy.

In the note to chapter 81, ante, the letter of Governor Winthrop in response to the message of the Massachusetts commissioners is given in full, and the statement is there made that Dudley did not reply until after the passage of the order which constitutes the present chapter. The reason for this delay will be obvious upon comparing the purport of this chapter, and the offers made by Winthrop in his letter, with the arrogant and uncivil reply which Dudley made for Massachusetts, as follows:—

SE, — I perceive by your letters, as well as my own messengers, that you and the gentlemen of your Council are very well satisfied with what they have ordered for the support of West Hampshire, & by the votes & address of the General Assembly of this Province that they are as unanimous in their opinion that the 200 men sent from Connecticut Colony to the service are far short of their proportion. That they justly expect that Connecticut Colony subsist their own troops as well as find them ammunition; & truly Sr I am of the same opinion, (since I have six hundred men in garison in the frontiers & three hundred and fifty now preparing for a march to their head quarters,) that it is not half what your Colony ought to do. Upon this head I had your very long letter, too much to answer this cold weather; only Sr I must acquaint you that I have and shall always do your Province justice in informing her Majesty what you do, as well as what in my opinion you ought to do; & when I have account from your selfe or your officers what number of men you have in this Government, I shall direct their service, if they see meet to obey it.

I am Sr your very humble servant,

throp Papers, part V., p. 279.

To this letter Winthrop sent the following temperate yet firm answer: *—

SE, — My indisposition the last three weekes hindered my returne to your letter of Janry 17th, wherein I perceive your expectation from us is much more than wee are able to accomodate, and that your Gen<sup>l</sup> Assembly have voted a quota for us wch I think they very little understand, but as being rich themselves they think all the world see too. I see not how wee shall be able to support soe many troopes much longer in your service without starveing our people. If your Excellency concludes the enemy eastward are yet able to infest those parts, and that there is danger of a party from Canada to disturb Hampshire, it will be of necessity to apply to the other Governments for their assistance,

Your Excellencies humble servt,

J: WINTHROP.” —

This letter Dudley communicated to the Council on the twenty-first, together with a letter from Cornbury, as mentioned in the note to chapter 101, ante. Both letters were read at the Board and sent to the representatives; and this, apparently, was the last action taken upon either. This seems to have been the last correspondence respecting the relative contribution of Connecticut to Massachusetts of men, munitions of war, and subsistence of forces, until the subject was revived the next spring, upon the receipt of further rumors of an intended invasion from Canada.

The response of Rhode Island, as given in the note to chapter 81, p. 437, ante, seems to have been disregarded.

This account was read in the House November 3, 1704, and the following resolve was passed thereon and sent to the Council for concurrence:—

The matter here rested until the fourth session, when the House again took it up by passing the following resolve:—

“In the House of Representatives Janry 5: 1704

Resolved That the Resolve of this House abovewritten be Revived, & Sent up for Concurrence. with this addition that the s<sup>d</sup> sum be paid to the s<sup>d</sup> Harvey upon his shewing Receipt from Colo<sup>l</sup> Saltonstall, that he has delivered the s<sup>d</sup> snow-shoes to him, or if any are wanting. an acct<sup>e</sup> to the satisfaction of the Comiss<sup>r</sup> Gener<sup>l</sup> how they have been disposed of.

On the same day the last resolve was read in Council, concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed January 18, 1704-5. For an account of the expedition to Pigwacket see the note to resolves, 1703-4, chapter 66.

Dudley was vigilant in observing the position, the condition and the movements of the enemy by sea and land. On the fourth of September, 1704,† the Council approved of his proposal “to send a Shalop to Port Royal, to gain intelligence what ships are arrived with supplies and what posture the French are in there.” The expense of this scouting expedition probably came under the rule of disbursements for military purposes, which were passed upon by the committee of war and paid by debentures. This may account for the absence of any other mention of the affair in the public records. The voyage authorized by the present chapter, however, appears to be a later expedition, for the News-Letter’s mention of which see note to chapter 98, ante, p. 446, foot-note.

Further information relating to this voyage is given in the following entries in the executive records of the council and in the accounts of the province treasurer:—

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out thereupon to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of Seventy five pounds, seventeen shillings and five pence to the said Captain Fowle, on behalfe of himselfe, Company & Owners accordingly.”—Vol. 4, p. 183.

Penhallow relates the following additional incidents of the expedition:—

“Capt. Fowle was also dispatched in a sloop of war, who on the northward of Cape Sables took a small vessel formerly belonging to the English, which had cattle and sheep on board her. Soon after he took five prisoners at Port Rosua,‡ and three at L’Have, burnt a few houses, and killed some cattle; but the inhabitants were so miserably poor, and their circumstances so desperate, that they rather chose to be prisoners among the English, than at liberty among the French.”—Indian Wars, p. 38.

In final settlement of the estate, the probate court passed a decree, of which the following is a copy, assigning the real estate to the son-in-law, Edward Gross, in fee, upon his giving bond to pay the representatives of the deceased their respective portions of the estate at its appraised value,† the administratrix having already, out of the personal assets, defrayed the funeral expenses, besides paying sundry small debts of the deceased:—

The settlement of the court was therefore unsatisfactory both to the widow and children of the deceased, and, supposing also that it was irregular and illegal, the widow applied to the General Court, in the following petition, to have the decree set aside, and for an order or resolve for the sale of the real estate:—

“ To his Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq; Govern<sup>r</sup> in chief together with the Honour<sup>ble</sup> Counsel & Representatives Assembled In Generall Court The Humble Petition of Mary Woodbury Relict & Administratrix of Hugh Woodbury Late of Bristol in the County of Bristol Deceased Humbly Sheweth:

This petition was read in Council January 6, 1704-5, when the vote which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the House for concurrence. On the same day it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor. See note to chapter 113, post.

On the nineteenth of February the referees reported to the Governor and Council, who seem to have taken cognizance of the matter in their judicial capacity as the supreme court of probate and not as a branch of the Legislature. The report was as follows:—

On the twenty-seventh the Governor and Council adopted the following resolution and decree:—

This petition was read a first and second time June 8, 1705, but no further action upon it has been discovered, owing, probably, to the death of the petitioner.

On the twenty-first of October, 1706, Joseph Pratt, saddler, and Elizabeth, his wife, of Bristol; Edward Gross, mariner, and Mary, his wife, of Newport, Rhode Island; Jonathan Woodbury of Bristol, son of Captain Samuel and grandson of Hugh, and William Fulton of Bristol, as guardian of Samuel and Sarah, minor children of said Captain Samuel; together with Mary Woodbury, widow of John Woodbury son of said Hugh, and guardian of Nathaniel Woodbury son of said John, after stating that Hugh Woodbury and his widow Mary were both deceased, joined in conveying to said Mary, widow of John, all their title and interest in and to “one acre and halfe of land Dweling house barne & Commonage above mentioned being of the Real estate of the said m<sup>r</sup> Hugh woodbery Deceased, scituate in Bristoll afores<sup>d</sup> the s<sup>d</sup> one acre and halfe of land being thus bounded as followeth viz<sup>t</sup> towards the west upon Hop street, northerly upon one of the cross streets leading from Thames street to high street being the northermost street save one & bounded toward the eastward and southward by y<sup>e</sup> lands of Natha<sup>l</sup> Paine Esq<sup>r</sup>. The order in Council for a warrant to the province treasurer for paying the above allowances is as follows:—

"Jan. 8, 1704-5. A Munster Roll of Dragoons and Foot Souldiers employed in Her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s service within the County of West Hampshire in partvs sent out on several exigencies, under diverse Officers, and for Scoating from the 1st of March 1703/4 to the 20th of October following containing an Account of Wages for their service; as also an Account of Ferrages, and of Major Whiting's Expences; having been Examined by the Commissary General, & the Allowances made agreeable to what set by the General Assembly, pursuant to the Report of their Committees, amounting in the whole to two hundred sixty seven pounds, sixteen shillings and seven pence was presented—And

Chap. 111. This chapter is from the Boston News-Letter, No. 42.

The proclamation was issued upon the advice of the Council, as follows:—

“Jan. 22, 1704-5. Advised. That Thursday the first of March next be solemnized as a day of Fasting with prayer throughout this Province.”—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 142.

If this were the only record of legislative action respecting this fast, the proclamation would not properly have a place here, since it would be purely an executive proceeding; but the message of the representatives of November 3, 1704, of which a part is given in the note to chapter 69, ante, not only requested the appointment of a day of thanksgiving but contained the following additional clause:—

“And Some time after a Day of Solemn Praier with Fasting.”—Mass. Archives, vol. 11, p. 194.

Although this proposal of the House was not agreed to at that time, the above advice of the Council, though deferred nearly three months, was a sufficient concurrence; and thus the agreement of the two branches, ratified and consented to by the Governor, constituted a complete act of legislation.*

No other record of the proclamation itself has been found.

For the particulars of the service performed by the commissioners named in this chapter see chapter 81, ante, and note.

The commissioners had already been paid five pounds, each, under resolve, chapter 97, ante, besides the twenty pounds advanced to Lynde for their subsistence while on the journey, as shown in the note to the last-named chapter.

The order in Council † for the payment of these allowances was passed March 3, 1704-5, and the province treasurer's account ‡ shows that they were duly paid.

The purpose of the address to the queen, contemplated in this chapter, was to reinforce the address and memorial for a supply of warlike stores which it was the errand of Captain Cary to negotiate for in the voyage § that he undertook in the Sea Flower in July previous. Upon the capture of that vessel, all her cargo, the proceeds of the sale of which were intended to be used in defraying the expenses he might incur in procuring these warlike stores, was confiscated by the enemy. The news of this capture was probably brought to Boston by Captain Welch, who arrived certainly before January 18, 1704-5; || and it was probably his relation of the miscarriage of Cary's venture in the Sea Flower that led to this renewed appeal to the queen for succor.

The last day of the fourth session of 1704-5, was the sixth of January. On that day, the Council having despatched all business before them and the Governor having intimated his readiness to prorogue the Assembly, the representatives sent up a message by “Cap<sup>tn</sup> Goodhue & m<sup>r</sup> Cushing two of y<sup>e</sup> Representatives . . . to his Exc<sup>y</sup>. that the House had several things under consideration that were not finished and could not be brought forward presently.

His Exc<sup>y</sup>. made Answer that if they had any thing before them for the Service of the Province, he was content they should sit.” ¶

Thereupon the vote which constitutes chapter 109, ante, was sent up and passed, and another message was sent down by the Secretary,—

“to Acquaint y<sup>e</sup> howse the Board had nothing before them; and to desire to know y<sup>e</sup> heads of the buisness under consideration in yt House that his Exc<sup>y</sup> may direct an Adjournal<sup>t</sup> accordingly.” ¶

In response to this, the order which constitutes chapter 110, ante, was sent up and passed, and thereupon,—

A message from y<sup>e</sup> House by m<sup>r</sup> Oliver That if it be thought there will be an opportunity for meeting to address Her Maj<sup>ty</sup>. before the mast Ships Saile. that the Court may be Prorogued for some time.” **

Upon receipt of this message,—

“His Excellency proposed that a Committee be appointed to prepare the Draught of an Address to be laid before the Court just at their next Sitting down.” ††

Upon this the Council received,—

“An other Message from the House, That they could not agree about a Committee for an Address. And that some thing might happen in the Vacancy to give further Matter for the same.” †† and then,—

* From the following entry in Sewall's Diary it would seem that the expression of the desire of the House was repeated to the Council by the Speaker during the fourth session:—

The subject of the address was brought up again in the fifth session (February 21, 1704-5), by the Governor, who thus referred to it in his opening speech:—

“Gentlemen

The present session is at your own desire in order to your humble address to her Majesty & representation of the present state of the affayres of the province referring to the warr & otherwise, I shall be glad to see that so truly & Dutifully set down, as may move her Majesty in her Royall favour to do that which is necessary for our support which we cannot do for our selves for the Guard of the Coast & the Supply of great Ordnance, small armes & other stores of warr,

I am very sensible this Government has neeglected some things which her Majesty has been pleased to Comand since my being in this station which I am humbly of opinion has Interrupted the Course of Her Majestyes most Grations supplies necessary for this province however if we shall now look forward & do our Duty there shall be nothing wanting on my part to represent the state of your affayres to your best advantage in all things.” — Ibid., vol. 108, p. 25.

The following is the “petition and remonstrance” mentioned in the preamble to this chapter:—

Most humbly Shewth

That the said Richard Bellingham dyed seized in ffee, of a very considerable Estate, of houses & lands in the s<sup>d</sup> County of Suffolke; & in and by his last will & Testament bearing date ye 28th Novr 1672, disposed thereof as followth. (That is to say), ‘he gave to his beloved wife, the rent of that ffarme where Nicholas Rice then lived, to be paid her duly after his decease; as alsoe his dwelling hous with the yard & field adjoining, during her naturall life: To his only Son & his sons daughter, dnring their natural lives the Testator gave the ffarme Lievt John Smith then possessed: and the Rents of his other two ffarmes in the occupation of John Belcher & Goodman Townsend, he gives towards the relief of the four Daughters of Coll Goodrick; and declares that after his owne & his wifes decease, he gives the ffarme he had devised to her for her life, & after the decease of his son & his sons daughter, his whole Estate in Winnisimett, to be an annual Encouragm<sup>t</sup> to some Godly Ministers & preachers, as should by his Trustees be judged faithfull to those principles in Church discipline owned & practiced in the first Church of Christ in Boston, whereof the Testator declared himselfe to be a member: And in his said will did request & appoint Mr John Oxenbridge, your Petr, Mr John Russell, and Mr Anthony Stoddard, to be ffoeffees in trust & Executors thereof; and thereby did desire them to observe the Instrucons therein given. Viz: first That in Convenient time a ministers, & meeting house be built at Winnisimett when sufficient be received out of the rents (2) That Lotts for dwellers & Inhabitants be given out, & Conveniency of land to the Ministers house. (3) That four or six more or less, young students be brought vp for the Ministry as the Estate will bear. (4) That something be allowed yearly to any Godly Congregational Minister who shall be willing to settle in that place. (5) That his Trustees, take care of his beloved wife to give her Counsell as she needed, and help her as farr as they could, in the quiet Enjoy<sup>m</sup>t of her Estate. & receiving of her Rent (6) That the Trustees meet twice a year at the least, as often else as they can or is need and that they be allowed what is meet for each meeting (7) That they allow annually as they shall think fitt to a Godly Congregational Minister, qualified as above, for his further support (8) That Every Quarter of the year one sermon be preached to instruct the people in Boston in Church discipline according to the word of God, and such Competent allowance be given to each of ym as his Trustees shall judge fitt or sufficient. as in & by the s<sup>d</sup> last will & Testam<sup>t</sup> of yo<sup>r</sup> vide y<sup>r</sup> Will s<sup>d</sup> Testator, very well proved according to Law & herewth exhibitted doth more fully & at large appear.<sup>7</sup>

That soon afterwards your Pet<sup>r</sup> Mess<sup>rs</sup> Oxenbridge & Stoddard took vpon them the Charge and burthen of the said will, and did Execute, vntil the same was contested by Mr Rich<sup>d</sup> Wharton as Attorney to Mr Samu<sup>el</sup> Bellingham, at a Generall Court Especially called in Sept<sup>r</sup> 1676, when the same was declared null & void in Law: W<sup>ch</sup> Judgment or decree of that Espiall hon<sup>ble</sup> Court, (with most humble submission) was Erroneous. (1st vide gen<sup>ll</sup> Courts judgm<sup>t</sup>) Because That Court. at that tyme had not the Jurisdiction or Cognizance of wills; but the County Court only. (2) That the will was really and bonâ fide the last will & testam<sup>t</sup> of the s<sup>d</sup> Rich<sup>d</sup> Bellingham deceased and so proved to be; and not all the English Laws could sett aside, or Controul such a will: The Maxim in Law is. That the will of the Giver must be observed That faith & truth must be obeyed & what the last will does say, and Every man is a Law to himselfe as to the disposition of his owne Estate. & property. &<sup>ca</sup>

That by means of that Judgm<sup>t</sup> yo<sup>r</sup> Pet<sup>r</sup> is vtterly disabled to performe the will, & his incumbent duty: and the pious & Religious intentions of the Testator (long made known before his death) are thereby wholly frustrate & without effect; and the Estate now possess<sup>d</sup> or claim<sup>d</sup> by strangers, & persons not of the blood of the s<sup>d</sup> Richard Bellingham; his s<sup>d</sup> widow & sonn being both dead.

This petition was read in the House February 22, 1704-5. On the next day the resolve thereon, recited in the preamble to this chapter, was passed, with this addition: "the opposite parties concerned to be notified;" and was sent to the Council for concurrence. On the same day the Council nonconcurred in this vote of the House, but passed and sent down the vote which constitutes this chapter, which was immediately concurred in.

Bellingham, the alleged testator, was governor of Massachusetts Colony from June 2, 1641, to May 18, 1642, from May 3, 1654, to May 23, 1655, and from May 3, 1665, to December 12, 1672.

For subsequent proceedings on this petition, see resolves, 1706-7, chapter 28, and note.

This order, the original draught of which is in the handwriting of Governor Dudley, was written upon a paper attached to the original draught of chapter 118, post, and apparently folded with that paper, and the amendments were on still another paper, attached in the same way.

Chap. 118. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 109. It is preserved in archives, vol. 101, p. 284.

The resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed in the House February 23, 1704-5, and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the twenty-seventh it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

An order* was passed in the usual form to the province treasurer for emitting the bills.

The tax act† for raising a fund and security for the drawing in and paying said bills was passed July 13, 1706.

Chap. 120. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 110. It has not been found in the archives.

It was the intention of the Governor and Assembly to send to England the address which was to be prepared by the committee appointed in chapter 113, ante, by the Advice, man-of-war, which was at Piscataqua waiting to convoy thence to England the mast ships and such merchantmen as chose to avail themselves of the privilege.‡

On the eleventh of January, 1704-5, it was announced in the News-Letter § that Captain Sahnou Morrice [Manrice] of the Advice would sail for England the first of March, with the two mast ships under his convoy, "who are making all possible dispatch in Loading;" and a month later the same paper declared that the ships would be ready to sail "against the middle of March at farthest."||

That nothing should be wanting on his part to have the address seasonably delivered at Piscataqua for transmission to London, the Governor had concluded his speech of the twenty-first of February with the following sentence:—

"I Desire you will dispatch your affayres with al speed for that the shippes are in a great forwardness to sayle & must not be delayed & her Majestye's affayres require my being at Piscataq; before their departure." — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 26.

The committee proceeded with alacrity to prepare the address, and on the twenty-third reported a draught which, on the same day, was read in the Council. On the next day it was read again and "sent into the House of Representatives." On the twenty-sixth the representatives returned it "with some Addition thereto made by that House." It was then read and debated in Council, "And some Amendments proposed to be drawn up by the Secretary and Offered To Morrow."* On the twenty-seventh the following entry appears in the council record:—

"The Emendations made of the Address to Her Majesty were read & Agreed to & sent into the House, And the Address with those Emendations drawn thereinto was pass'd, & afterwards pass'd in Council to be Engross'd."—Vol. VIII., p. 109.

The address was signed on the twenty-eighth, as appears in the text.

It being now probable that the Advice would soon begin her homeward voyage† the Governor set sail for Piscataqua on the ninth of March,‡ probably taking with him the address. The Advice, however, did not depart until some weeks later,§ as appears by the following in the News-Letter:—

"Portsmouth N Hampshire, April 6. This day Capt. Morrice Commander of Her Majesties Ship the Advice, Sayled from N. Castle, bound for England, with the Vessels under his Convoij, viz. The two Mast Ships, Cpts. Eason and Martin, 6 Merchant men, viz. Cpts. Balston, Corney, Charnock, Vincent, Thomas and Wilde (from N. York that arrived here the 1st. Current.) 2 Briganteens, Troy & Estes, 2 Ketches, Almerij & Waterhous, 2 Sloops, Sears and Ball."—No. 51.

The Governor returned in the vessel in which he went out. He encountered a violent storm and for some time it was feared that his vessel had foundered. Of this storm, the damage done to the brigantine, and the Governor's escape, the News-Letter gives the following accounts:—

"Piscataqua, March 16. The Briganteen in which our Governour|| was on Board, being on Saturday last at noon within two miles of our Harbour, and a most violent Storm coming up, we thought it impossible the Briganteen could be saved, which put us all here into a very great Consternation, but last night by an Express from his Excellency at Cape Anne, we had the glad tydings of his safe arrival there, which caused an universal rejoicing here. . . .

On Thursday last, We had the good News of the Governour's being safe Arrived in Cape Anne Harbour, having been forced to Cutt away all the Masts of the Briganteen upon which he was Imbarqued, and Ride under Cape Anne four days in an extraordinary Storm of Wind; but the Briganteen being New and her ground Tackle Good, she was Saved from falling upon the Rocks of that Cape to the Leward all that time; And is now returned to this place to the great Rejoicing of all Her Majesties good Subjects of both the Provinces."—No. 48.

Sewall makes the following entries respecting the Governor's providential deliverance:—

"March, 15. between 10 and 11. m. I rec. Brother's Letter giving an account of the extraordinary danger the Gov<sup>r</sup> had been in, and their wonderfull Deliverance that was at Gloucester, and were going to fetch him to Salem.

March, 17. II., p. 126.*

The apprehension concerning Dudley's safety was shared by his associates in the government of New Hampshire. Under date of the fifteenth of March, the following entry appears in the records of the council:—

"His Honor [Lieutenant-Governor Usher] was pleased to acquainte this Board, that he thought to have seen his Excellency here at his coming, but considering the Providence of God hath put the vessel off to sea, that his Excellency was coming here in, therefore he proposed to this Board to have their opinion about sending an Express to Boston to inquire about his Excellency; as also to acquainte that Governm<sup>t</sup> that the Man-of-War and Mast Shippes were ready to Sail next week, —lest they might have any occasion for her Maj'tys service.

Whereas, there is a Brigantine off this Harbor expected in here this night; and there be noe account of his Excellency, then to send an Express away as above with all Expedition.

His Honor also acquainted this Board that his Excellency was willing to be here at the sitting of the Assembly; and therefore he had adjourned said Assembly, till to-morrow morning, ten of the clock and proposed to have a further adj<sup>d</sup> in hopes of his Excellencys arrival."—Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II., p. 456.

Before his departure Dudley had issued the following proclamation for thanksgiving for the great victory at Blenheim:—

"By His EXCELLENCY, JOSEPH DUDLEY Esq. Captain General and Governour in Chief, in and over Her Majesties Provinces of the Massachusetts-Bay and New-Hampshire in New England.

He now issued a further proclamation assigning additional causes for solemn acknowledgment. This was done pursuant to an order in Council, of which the following is the record:—

"March 19, 1704-5. Whereas by Her Majesty's especial Command to his Excellency which he received while absent on his voyage Eastward, There was a Proclamation issued for a general thanksgiving upon Thursday the twelfth of April next, for the causes therein mentioned.

It would seem that the business upon which the Governor had intended to meet the council of New Hampshire before the sailing of the fleet was to cooperate with them in the preparation of a memorial* to the Board of Trade from that province, containing an account "of the Reforming of her Majesty's Fort Wm. and Mary, † at New Castle, which is now in a posture of Defense against the Enemy, and that it may be also laid before them the want of powder and ammunition for said Fort; and that they would lay before her Majesty that she would be graciously pleased to send forty souljers at the charge of the Crown for the defense of said Fort; the people in said Province being burthened with the Indian wars, and become miserable poor, &c.;" ‡ together with an address to the Lords of Trade of the Privy Council concerning the same.

The following petition is the only "account" that has been found which seems to belong to this chapter:—

This petition was read in Council on the twenty-seventh and sent to the House, where it was read on the twenty-eighth and again on the thirty-first. The following order was then passed thereon and sent to the Council for concurrence:—

"This House not finding that any Part of the Grants of money, hitherto made is Intended for or applied to, the Inlarging of Casco fort Ordered That no Sum be Allowed or Paid out of the publick Treasury upon the account afores<sup>d</sup>." — Ibid., p. 75.

It appears to have been taken up again in the House during the fourth session, but after one reading seems to have been dropped. In the fifth session, however, it was allowed by the vote which constitutes this chapter. On the third of March, 1704-5, an order was passed in Council* for a warrant to the treasurer to pay the amount asked for, which was included, with other allowances charged, in a total of £562 14s. 1d. in the province treasurer's account.†

The following paper is on file with March's petition and though not specifically mentioned by the petitioner, nor in the resolve, may have been considered in estimating the amount allowed:—

The resolve which constitutes this chapter originated in the House and was passed through all its stages in both branches and was consented to by the Governor on the same day.

The order in Council § for the payment of this allowance was passed March 3, 1704-5, and the entry made by the province treasurer is as follows:—

The resolve which constitutes this chapter is based upon the following petition:—

The resolve was passed in the House on the last day of February, and sent to the Council for concurrence, where, on the same day, it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed March 3, 1704-5, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was paid.

This chapter fixes the compensation of the committee for their services under chapter 38, ante. Under the act of March 29, 1704, the number of bills of credit, amounting to ten thousand pounds in nominal value, was ten thousand two hundred and forty-one, whereas the number of bills under the present chapter, though of only the nominal value of five thousand pounds, was seven thousand five hundred and four. The compensation of the committee for signing the former was fifty pounds, ‡ for which a warrant was ordered by the Council, § July 1, 1704, and paid by the province treasurer. ||

By chapter 45, ante, it was resolved to increase the compensation of the committee proportionately to the increase of the number of the bills printed. For preparing the issue under this chapter, therefore, the committee estimated as their due £36 12s. 9d.

The following is the committee's account of the number of bills printed, and the amount of money they represented:—

The original resolve is not in the custody of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, but in a private collection. The Editor is indebted to Grenville H. Norcross, Esquire, for the use of this document, which shows the progress of the resolve through its different stages.

Although in the third session the Council sent a message to the representatives “to move that House for a Grant for the Support of the Governour & the Secretary, And to know what Consideration they have had of the Memorial presented by the Judges,” † the Governour seems to have maintained silence on the snbject of his salary in his speeches and messages to the Assembly until the twenty-seventh of December, when he thus alluded to the effect the action of the representatives on this head had had upon the Lords of Trade:—

“... Their Lordships are pleased to adde in this article that they would know how her Majesty shall be reimbursed, because as their Lordships words are, it is unreasonable the assembly of the massachusetts bay should Expect that they should be furnished with stores of Warr at her Majestyes Expence, while they of all the Colonves in america do alone refuse to settle a salary upon her Majestyes Governour & other officers there. . . .” — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 24.

Two days later “A Message was sent to the Representatives by Wait Winthrop, Penn Townsend, John Higginson, Samuel Appleton Esq<sup>r</sup>s & the Secretary at the unanimous Desire of the Council (Snpposing the Session to be short) That a just & honourable Supply may be made to the Governour by this Session for his Support for the remaining Part of this Year, And to desire that House to move first therein.” ‡

Nothing further appears to have been done during this session. In his opening speech in the fifth session the Governor took occasion to hint that the failure of the representatives to establish a permanent salary for his office was one of the causes of delay in the supply of small arms, ordnance and other stores of war from England, as shown in the note to chapter 113, ante.

On the twenty-eighth of February, 1704-5, the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed by the House and sent to the Council, where it was concurred in on the same day. It was consented to by the Governor on the second of March. §

On the next day an order ¶ was passed for a warrant to the province treasurer to pay this amount, and it was paid as shown in the note to chapter 15, ante.

Captain John Woodman was of Dover and it would seem kept the ferry at Oyster River, where he had a garrison. He died about 1707. John Kent, master of the sloop Planter, was probably of Newbury (see Felt's Annals of Salem, 1st ed., p. 294).

The order in Council* for the payment of these allowances was passed March 3, 1704-5.

The following is the entry of payment made by the province treasurer in his account:—

— Mass. Archives, vol. 122, p. 233.

Captain Abraham Freble was of York and represented that town in the Legislature of 1703-4. He also commanded a company there from October 6, 1703, to February 29, following. Hence, probably, all the persons sent post were of that town or vicinity, and united in authorizing him to receive pay for them; or, more likely, the money was paid to reimburse him for advances to them.

The order which constitutes this chapter originated in the House and was passed by both branches and consented to by the Governor on the same day.

The committee employed John Roberts to repair “the great boat belonging to the Castle.” Roberts’s account has not been found but the following entry in the executive records of the council shows the amount of his charge and the date of the order for a warrant to the province treasurer for the payment † thereof:—

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of thirty two pounds, ten shillings to the s<sup>d</sup> John Roberts accordingly.”— Vol. 4, p. 267.

While the bill of chapter 8 of the acts of the year 1704-5, against counterfeiting the province bills of credit, was pending, an attempt was made to enact a bill to prevent making or passing base or counterfeit coin. Neither the abortive bill for this purpose, which was read twice in the Council, nor the order passed the next day appointing a committee to consider it, has been found in the archives, but the latter is thus recorded in the legislative journal of the Council:—

“Aug. 19, 1704. The following Order was sent up from the Representatives: Viz, Ordered that Cpt. Checkley, Mr Denison & Mr Holyoke be a Committee to join with such as the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Board shall appoint to Consider of the Bill entituled An Act for the Explanation & in Addition to the Act against the Making & Passing of base & Counterfeit Money, & also to consider of & offer to this Court at their next Session what Expedients they think will best remedy & reform the ill State of the Coin:— Web Order being read was Concur<sup>d</sup> with, And Elisha Hutchinson, John Foster, John Walley, Eliakim Hutchinson, and Edward Bromfield Esq<sup>r</sup>s nominated to be a Committee of this Board for the Affair afore said.”— Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 72.

No report of the committee has been found.

In the vacation between the third and fourth sessions, the Governor received a copy of the queen’s proclamation, given below, together with a command to cause it to be published, communicated in a letter from the Lords of Trade. He therefore ordered ‡ that the proclamation (to which, as printed, was appended a table of rates at which foreign coins were to be allowed to pass current) be published, as follows:—

In his speech at the beginning of the fourth session, December 27, 1704, the Governor laid before the Assembly the communications he had received, as aforesaid, from the Lords of Trade, referring to them as follows:—

" . . . by the Last ships I received her Majestyes proclamation referring to the value of peices of 8<sup>s</sup> & other money with Comands to publish the same in both the Governments in the most sollemn manner & to take Care that there be no further InConvenience in that matter, by which I hope we shall see the End of all our Complaints of clipping of money, & those rates being the same for all her Majestyes plantations, I have reason to Expect that our supply of money & Trade will well proceed in proportion with our Neighbours. . . ." — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 24.

No legislative action, however, appears to have been taken upon the subject during that session.

During the fifth session the following resolve was passed by the Council:—

"Feb. 23, 1704-5. Resolved that Elisha Hutchinson, John Foster & John Walley Esq<sup>rs</sup> be a Committee to be joined with such as shall be named by the Representatives to prepare & bring in the Draught of a Bill for Reforming & preventing the Debasing of the Money Currant within this province." — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 107.

No record of the concurrence of the House in this resolve has been found; but, on the twenty-seventh of February, the following order by the Council appears of record:—

"Ordered that the Committees appointed to prepare & bring in the Draught of a Bill for Reforming & preventing the Debasing the Coin be instructed to consider & offer some thing to prevent the Counterfeiting of the Bills of Credit on this province." — Ibid., p. 109.

On the twenty-eighth it appears by the following entry that these committees reported:—

"The Committees appointed to prepare & bring in the Draught of a Bill to prevent the Debasing & for Reforming the Money Currant within this Province, As also to consider & offer some thing to prevent the Counterfeiting the Bills of Credit made their Report, Wh<sup>ch</sup> was read & sent down to the House of Representatives." — Ibid., p. 111.

This report has not been found, but the following order undoubtedly shows its purport:—

"March 2, 1704-5. Ordered that a Bill be brought in against the Uttering by Tale the Curr<sup>t</sup> Coins within this Province that are diminished; Viz,

That no Money shall pass by Tale but what is of due Weight as the Law & her Majesties Proclamation have provided.

Whosoever shall presume to offer any Money by Tale not of due Weight shall forfeit the same, One Moiety thereof to her Majesty for and towards the Support of the Government within this Province, and the other Moiety to the Informer,

That all light Money & Plate of Sterling Alloy shall pass & be good in Paym<sup>ts</sup> as seven Shillings the Ounce & no more until further provision be made.

Wh<sup>ch</sup> being sent down for Concurrence, was return'd from the Representatives with the Vote of that House thereupon, to refer the Consideration thereof to the next Session." — Ibid., p. 112.

At this stage the Legislature seems to have concluded that for the existing emergency a proclamation would serve better than an act, which would require more deliberate consideration than could be bestowed upon the subject during the session.

The action of the House upon the order which constitutes this chapter, and which originated in the Council, and the amendment by the Council as shown therein, took place on the third; and the Governor thereupon signified his consent.

The proclamation, the original draught of which remains on file and is copied here, was published * in the News-Letter, No. 47, which embraced the week beginning the fifth of March.

The following is the petition mentioned in the preamble to this chapter:—

“To his Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq; Captain General and Governour in Chief in & over her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Provinces of the massachusetts bay &c in New England— And To the Hon<sup>ble</sup> her maj<sup>ties</sup> Council and House of Representatives now in General Court assembled in and for sd Province May 30th 1705.—/—.

The Humble Petition of John Carey of Boston Brewer

Sheweth

That yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner did for Several Years keep the Green Dragon Tavern in Boston where he paid his Excise duely, till at last by misfortunes he was forced to quit the House, and get a Letter of License from his Creditors, since which he hath sett up a Brew house, and yo<sup>r</sup> petitioner when he left the sd House being in arrear for his Excise about Twelve pounds the Treasurer hath taken out a Writt against him, only upon request prosecution was stayed till yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner could represent his Case to this Hon<sup>ble</sup> Great & General Assembly, now so it is (may it please yo<sup>r</sup> Excellency & Honor<sup>s</sup>) That yo<sup>r</sup> petitioner cannot possibly raise so much Money, & therefore must go, to Prison & be ruin'd without yo<sup>r</sup> favour to him.—

This petition was read, first, in the Council, on the sixth of June, when the following memorandum was made upon it:—

“Read and Accepted to be paid in Beer.

The representatives passed it, in concurrence, on the same day, and it was consented to by the Governour.

The Green Dragon Tavern was kept by Samuel Tyley in 1704.†

Chap. 4. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 120. It is preserved in archives, vol. 101, p. 292.

The doings of the authorities of the province in conformity to the queen's proclamation to prevent reducing the value of coin are shown in resolves, 1704-5, chapter 129 and note. The operation of the proclamation ordered in that chapter was limited to the end of the then current session. In his speech at the opening of the new Assembly, therefore, the Governour again brought the subject to the attention of the Legislature in the following paragraph:—

“Referring to the money, which by her Ma<sup>ty</sup>s Royal proclamation is set at a due value, as in all the other plantations, there, will need some penalties to be Annexed to Secure all payments accordingly, and when the money is restored to a due weight every man will know the true value of what is bought & sold, & not till then.” — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 28.

This was May 31, 1705, and on the next day the Council passed and sent to the House for concurrence the order containing the clauses given in the foot-note on page 118, ante. In the House, on the same day, it was read a first time, and again on the fifth, and on the seventh it was passed, in concurrence, with the amendments described in said foot-note and with the addition of the names of the House members of the committee. Their report was prepared the next day as follows:—

“That this Proclamation be revived and continued without Limitation

That the Treasurer and Receiver General of the Province, The Treasurers of the several Countys, Towns, and all Constables, Collectors and Subordinate Receivers under either of them.

All Judges Jurors and publick Officers whatsoever be Comanded Strictly to Conform themselves accordingly. Saving all past particular Contracts.

That some skilful persons be appointed to calculate a Table of the due proportion of Coines and Silver of Sterling alloy by the Ounce Troy to the weight of a peny, and that Copys thereof be printed.

* See resolves, 1706-7, chapter 7.

† Ibid., 1703-4, chapter 38, note. According to Shurtleff (Topographical and Historical Description of Boston, p. 612) Cary succeeded Hannah Bishop as keeper of the Green Dragon Tavern in October, 1697.

That some other Skilful person be appointed to make weights of brass of the ounce Troy to the least denomination with such Stamp* thereon as the Governoꝛ and Council shall direct.

All which is humbly Submitted by

ELISHA HUTCHINSON by order of the Committee." — Ibid.,

vol. 101, p. 291.

This report was read in the Council on the ninth, and again on the eleventh, when it was "Pass'd an acceptance wth this Addition. viz:

Provided

That for all past bargains and Debts except by special Contract, If the Debter shall tender Satisfaction to his Creditor in y<sup>e</sup> bills of Publick Credit on this Province, all process in the Law shall be stayed against every such Debter by the space of twelve months next comeing and then proceed," † and sent to the House for concurrence.

The report was written on the back of a printed copy of the proclamation, issued under resolves, 1704-5, chapter 129.

On the fourteenth, the House having sent up their vote disagreeing with the Council's acceptance of the report, "William Brown & Penn Townsend Esq<sup>rs</sup> were sent on a Message to the House to Inquire Whether the House excepted to the Whole of the said Report, or to some particular Article or Articles thereof & what." ‡

The House seems to have rejected the proposal of the committee altogether, since, on the sixteenth, "A Message was sent by John Hathorne, Elisha Hutchinson, Sam<sup>l</sup> Sewall & John Phillips Esq<sup>rs</sup> to the Represent<sup>ves</sup> to debate the Matter with that House upon the Report of the Commit<sup>ees</sup> referring to the Coin refused by that House, And to move their Reconsideration thereof." §

Upon this the House sent up a message by Captain Thomas Oliver and Captain Stephen French asking to have the report returned to them "that the House might reconsider the same." and their request was granted. On the twenty-ninth the report of the committee and the amendment proposed by the Council on the eleventh were recorded by the Secretary, but whether the vote of acceptance was renewed or not does not appear.

This seems to have been the conclusion of the matter, as the Assembly immediately adjourned, and no record of subsequent action has been found.

Dudley took occasion to report this action of the Assembly to the Lords of Trade in a letter, which, together with their reply, is printed in the notes to the acts of the year 1705-6. || The representation which the Lords of Trade made to the queen upon Dudley's report is as follows:—

"To the Queen's most Excellent Majesty

May it please Your Majesty

... And whereas We have sometime since humbly represented to your Majesty the rectifying & settling the value of Coins in all Your Maj<sup>ty's</sup> Plantations in America, Whereupon Your Maj<sup>ty</sup> was pleased to issue your Royal Proclamation, We are informed by Coll Dudley that he has published the said Proclamation in obedience to Your Majesty's Commands in his Government of the Mass-achusetts Bay, and did expect that the Council & Assembly there would proceed to enforce the same by adding just & severe penalties to any person offering Clipt mony or other light mony by Tale, but could not obtain from the Assembly so much as the appointing a Committee to consider the same whereby the People as Coll Dudley conceives will be emboldened to use their late indirect way of payments to the great detriment of trade in general and prejudice of the other Plantations under Your Majesty's immediate Government who are willing to comply with Your Royal Commands therein.

This petition was presented to the Council by the Rev. Daniel Greenleaf (H. C. 1699), who was subsequently the minister of Yarmouth, on Cape Cod, but at that time was officiating at the Isles of Shoals. It was read June 6, 1705, and sent to the House, where, on the same day, it was read, and on the eighth the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council for concurrence. It was concurred in on the same day, and consented to by the Governor.

The following is the order in the executive records of the council for the payment of the amount granted by this chapter: —

“ March 8, 1705-6. Pursuant to a Resolve pass’d by the General Assembly at their Session in May last, that there be allowed and paid out of the publick Treasury of this Province, the sum of Fourteen pounds towards the support of the Minister at the Isles of Shoales for this present year if the Province of New Hampshire pay the sum of six pounds at least to that use.

His Excellency acquainting the Council, that the Government of New Hampshire* had granted six pounds for that use.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of fourteen pounds to Mr Daniel Greenleafe present Minister of the s<sup>d</sup> Isles of Shoales.” — Vol. 4, p. 268.

The province treasurer’s account † shows that the allowance granted by this chapter was paid.

That yo<sup>r</sup> Poor Petitioner is one of the Ferrymen at Yorke and now in this time of Warr there are very few Passengers, indeed almost none at all who Travel that way; besides the Soldiers Employed in her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Service, which by Law are to be Transported ferryage-free, which may be no great prejudice to those ferryes which are not exposed, but as to those ferryes which are in frontier places, and especially this at Yorke Yo<sup>r</sup> Poor Petitioner humbly hopes yo<sup>r</sup> Excellency & Hon<sup>ors</sup> will please to Consider the great hardship they lye under yo<sup>r</sup> poor Petitioner being obliged to maintain a Boat & give his Attendance, tho<sup>h</sup> he have no other business but what is upon the public account; an account of what service he has done he has sent by Capt<sup>t</sup> Bean, and to Capt<sup>t</sup> Gooch but never had any allowance, which if it be not granted to him he cannot possibly Subsist.

This petition was read in the House on the eighth of June, and on the ninth the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent up for concurrence. The final paragraph of the chapter shows the action of the Council and the date of their vote; it also shows why the payment of the allowance is not to be found in the treasurer’s account as made to Beal directly — it being treated as a military charge, and settled in the Commissary General’s accounts.

Chap. 8. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 127. It is preserved in archives, vol. 62, p. 493.

The maintenance of a passage by water across Cape Ann by way of Squam River was very early a matter of public interest. The following ordinances seem to have been passed before any action upon the subject was taken by the town:—

“March 13, 1638-9. Mr Endeccott was willed to send 3 to veive Cape Ann, whethr it may not bee cut thorow, & to certify how they find it.”—Mass. Colony Records, vol. 1, p. 253.

“Dec. 10, 1641. It is ordered, that they that cut the beach betwene Cape Ann & Anisquam shall have liberty to take sufficient toale as the Court shall thinke meete for one & twente yeares. Alt: 1642” — Ibid., p. 345.

On the twenty-sixth of July, 1643, the Rev. Richard Blinman,* the first minister of Gloucester, who owned land near the place most convenient to be cut through, was, by vote of the town, granted the right to “cut the beach through, and to mainteine it and hath given him three Accers of upland hee is to have the benefit of it himselfe and his for ever givinge the Inhabitantes of the Towne free passage.” †

From Blinman the right passed by conveyance to William Stevens, ‡ the famous ship-builder, whose daughter Mary became the wife of John Coit, junior, and the mother of Nathaniel, whose name appears in the papers hereafter printed. Nathaniel Coit was not only thus interested in the estate of his grandfather Stevens, but, by marrying the widow of his cousin, Lientenant William Stevens, he bore the relation of stepfather to the minor children of William, who claimed the cut by inheritance both from the father and grandfather.

The cut having become obstructed by the washing in of sand and shingle during recent storms, the inhabitants of the town, who, by the terms of the original grant, were entitled to free passage through it, met as early as June 20, 1704, and passed the following vote:—

“Voated. That the selectmen or the maior part of them are desired and fully Impowored in the towns behalf to petition ye quarter sessions that the cut may be opened it being now so filled up that vessels cannot pass and ye parson that Lays clame to the propriety of it refusing to clear or open the same.” — Gloucester Town Records, vol. 2, p. 124.

No action of the Court of Sessions upon this matter has been discovered. On the other hand it would seem that about this time there were some negotiations between Coit and the representatives of the town for keeping the passage open, and these being only tentative, and the cut still remaining impassable, the inhabitants met again in town meeting on the twenty-fifth of December to establish the rate of commutation of the tolls to be demanded by and paid to Coit. The following is a contemporaneous certified copy of the doings at this meeting:—

“Att a towne meeting of the Inhabetants of glocester december ye 25th 1704

Voated that wheras the Inhabetants of this towne of glocester reserued the priveledg of free passage when they granted the Liberty to m<sup>r</sup> Richard blynnman to cutt the beach thorow where the cutt now is and there was noe way provided for the mentaining the bridge ouer said Cutt on which is the Countrey road nor for turning the said bridge after any vessell or vessells sloops or shallops that pas thorow the same It is now Agreed betwene the towne and Capt nathanaell Coit who now Claimes the propriety of said Cutt by his marriage with the widow and relect of M<sup>r</sup> William Stevens Laste of said glocester deceased as followeth. Archives, vol. 62, p. 496.

This was a recession by the inhabitants from the position they had taken less than eight months before in the following vote, in which they virtually transferred the management of the draw from Coit to the public, and, in place of tolls or equivalent perquisites, gave him only the amount of the penalty to be recovered from any person failing to replace the draw after using it:—

“Att a towne meeting held in glocester may the 15th 1704 an act past at said meeting by the Inhabetants then present That whatever person or parsons that passeth through the cut and shall leave the bridge open and shall not turn the bridge over the cut again every such parson or persons shall pay as a pree to ye proprietor of sd cut six shillings in money fr every time they shall leave the sd bridg and do not turn it over the cut again the said money to be recovered by due proseses of Law.” — Gloucester Town Records, vol. 2, p. 120.

The vote of the twenty-fifth of December, in which it is alleged that Coit assented to the rate of toll proposed, although it covered the matter of managing the draw and of keeping the cut passable after it had once been cleared, did not expressly provide for defraying

* He wrote his name Blinman, but it is variously spelled by others Blynman, Blindman, Blithman, etc.

† Town Records, and Babson's History of Gloucester, p. 7.

‡ By the following entry in the records of the County Court for Essex (“9 mo. 1659”) it would seem that Stevens was charged with failing to comply with the conditions upon which the original grant was made:—

“Mr William Steuens being p<sup>r</sup>sented, for not making a bridg ouer the Cutt at Gloster; the Court doe respitt y<sup>e</sup> same vntill Salem Court next, & till then haue liberty to make the bridge, and yf not made by that time, then to appeare to answer to his said p<sup>r</sup>sentment.”

the cost of the work of clearing out and restoring it in the first instance, which was so great and uncertain an undertaking that the town had shrunk from assuming it under the circumstances. The minors in whose right Coit was acting would not be bound by the engagements of their friends or guardians to do a work not authorized by law nor by the decree of a proper tribunal, and, very naturally, Coit was not inclined to assume the risk on his own responsibility. He claimed, moreover, that the circumstances existing at the time of the original grant had so far changed that he was not obliged to attend to, and maintain, the drawbridge over the widened channel without adequate additional compensation.

The expense of clearing the cut was greatly increased by the storm* of January 15, 1704-5, which enlarged the obstructive mass of sand and shingle.

The state of the controversy between Coit and the town at the time of the assembling of the General Court this year is shown in the papers which follow, beginning with the vote of the town at the March meeting, 1704-5; viz.,— “Att a town meeting in glocester March 19th 1704/5 voated that there shall be a comittie chosen to act in the towns behalf to look after and take care that ye cut so called be opened and cleared and mad pasable for vessels to goe thorow as formerly they have done as soon as may be convenient Capt nathaniel Coit who now clames the proprietye of sd cut by his marriage with the widdow and relect of Mr. William Stevens late of glo; deceased having been often solicited to cleare the same and doth not do it.

Voated in sd meeting that the town makes choice of Capt. Joseph Allen Mr. John Newman and—James Davis to be a comitty to act in the townes behalf in addressing ye generall courte that they would be pleased to grant the town Liberty to clear sd cutt and the Income or benefit of the same to be for the townes use or els that Capt. Coit may be obliged to cleare and mentain the same.

Voated that the towne grants Liberty to ye comittie to agree with Capt Coit for the clearing sd cutt in case he will comply with them upon the propositions that were made formerly december ye 25 1704 Last past.

Voated that there shall be no ship timber masts yeards &c nor any other timber sold of the towns common Land on the easterly side of annisquam river that comes up to ye cutt to be transported or disposed of out of the towne.”—Ibid., p. 135.

The following is the petition or complaint presented by the committee chosen by the inhabitants; viz.,—

Benjamin Church of Hadley is not to be confounded with Colonel Benjamin Church of Little Compton and Bristol. The former was the grandson of Richard and son of Samuel, who came to Hadley from Connecticut.

The attack on Deerfield, in which he received the wound for his losses on account of which allowance was made by this chapter, is described in the note to resolves, 1704-5, chapter 6.

The following is the petition upon which this chapter was founded:—

This petition was read, first, in the House on the ninth of June, when it was probably referred to the appropriate committee, since the resolve was not passed until the fifteenth. On the same day it was concurred in by the Council and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council‡ for the payment of this allowance was passed July 9, 1705. For the record of the payment by the province treasurer see the note to chapter 11, ante.

prisoners, to recede from the position he had held respecting the responsibility of Baptiste* as an English subject, and not a prisoner of war owing allegiance to the king of France. Upon the return of the messengers sent to Canada it became evident that the exclusion of Baptiste from the list of eligible prisoners was the most important, if not the only, obstacle to a full exchange.

But the people of Massachusetts were firm in their conviction that Baptiste's only claim to the protection of France was a pretence, and founded upon his deliberate acts of treason against his fellow-subjects in New England, and that besides this treason he was guilty of piracy and murder; and they had been stirred with indignation by the suspicion that the provincial authorities in their treatment of prisoners had discriminated in his favor. This was one of the grievances formulated by the representatives, December 2, 1703.†

When, therefore, Courtemanche presented to Dudley his instructions‡ from Vaudreuil, making the release of Baptiste an indispensable condition to further progress towards a treaty, and declaring that this condition was an ultimatum, the Governor was not unwilling to have it understood that he considered the project of an exchange at an end.§ Secretly, however, he seems to have set about excogitating a new scheme for accomplishing his end, in such manner as to engage the Legislature to screen him from public censure. This could be done by obtaining from them an assurance that his authority should not be limited even in regard to the exchange of Baptiste, if that could not be avoided. The first step in this scheme, however, was to sound Courtemanche as to how far he would be willing to go in evading the letter of his instructions. The result of Dudley's inquiries and suggestions in this direction appears in the note to chapter 15, post.

What the details of the conferences between him and Courtemanche were has not been discovered. The first result, however, is shown in the following entry in the legislative journals of the Council:—

"June 14, 1705. His Excellency acquainted the Council with the Advancé he had made in his Proposals to Mr Cortes-Manch Commissioner from Mr Vaudreuil Governour of Canada relating to the Exchange of the Prisoners on both Sides at present in the Hands of either Government, & Settling an Agreement for the Reddition of Prisoners that should be taken for the Future, And that the whole Affair stuck at Baptist, Wh<sup>ch</sup> the said Monsr Cortesmanch insisted on as a particular Article in his Instructions, & declined to do any Thing in that Affair without Baptist were included, And desired their Advice therein, And withal desired Elisha Hutchinson, Samuel Sewall, John Foster & Joseph Lynde Esq<sup>s</sup> to communicate the same to the Representatives to have Consideration thereof by them selves without Speaking of the same without Doors." — Vol. VIII., p. 128.

On the next day the message of advice which constitutes this chapter was sent to the Council.

* For an account of Baptiste's capture and imprisonment, see, besides the note to the private act above referred to, note to resolves, 1703-4, chapter 27.

† Mass. Archives, vol. 70, p. 666. They requested that Baptiste "be removed into & kept in, ye Roome there formerly prepared for him," to which the Council made the following statement in reply:—

"Dec. 13, 1703. As to the Keeping of Battiese Prisoner at the Castle, the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Thomas Povey Esq<sup>s</sup> made answer, that he is kept in the same place, where he always has been." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 3, p. 499.

‡ The following is a translation of these instructions from the "Collection de Manuscrits" Relatifs à l'Histoire de la Nouvelle-France, printed by authority of the legislature of Quebec, 1884. The reference in the fifth paragraph to the murder of the Sieur Gourdeault's six men was to the conduct of Colonel Benjamin Church at Passamaquoddy. His version of the affair is given in the second volume of Doctor Dexter's edition of Church's History of the Eastern Expeditions, pp. 153-159.

"Instruction to the Sieur de Courtemanche.

The Sieur de Courtemanche, captain of marines, will forthwith depart from this town with Mr. Livingstone, Mr. Sheldon, John Wells, and eight Frenchmen, to proceed as quickly as possible to Mr. Dudley, governor-general of Boston, to whom he will deliver the letter of the Sieur Marquis de Vaudreuil.

He will demand the return, to the Sieur de Brouillon, at Port Royal, of all French prisoners in New England and will give his word, on behalf of the Sieur Marquis de Vaudreuil, that, as soon as he shall be notified of their arrival by the Sieur de Brouillon, all the English prisoners who are in the hands of the French shall be sent away from Canada, being furnished with provisions necessary for their journey home.

The Sieur de Courtemanche will demand, unconditionally, the return of Baptiste, without which there will be no exchange.

He will demand sureties for the return of the French who were taken prisoners on the coasts of P'Acadie, and who were carried to old England and to Barbadoes.

He will demand justice for the murder of the Sieur Gourdeault's six men, who were killed after being granted quarter; and he will complain of the detention of the Sieur Allain (who went with a passport from the Sieur de Brouillon to make exchanges) which is contrary to law.

The Sieur de Courtemanche, having copies of the letters to Mr. Dudley, from the Sieur Marquis de Vaudreuil will read them, so as to conform to the meaning thereof in communicating the same to Mr. Dudley, in case any accident shall have happened to Mr. Hills and the two Frenchmen who are with him and Mr. Dudley shall not have received the other letters.

He will demand payment of the bills of exchange of Mr. Livingstone as well as of those of which Mr. Hills is the bearer and those which he carries himself.

The said Sieur de Courtemanche having expressed to Mr. Dudley the ultimate decision [les dernières volontés] of the Sieur Marquis de Vaudreuil, he will ask leave to return immediately, and will bring with him Mr. Hills, the two Dubois, and the men he took out with him; and if Mr. Dudley agrees to return all the French prisoners to Port Royal, he shall write to the Sieur de Brouillon or to whomsoever shall be in command in his absence (although the Marquis de Vaudreuil may have already written to him advising him of it) as soon as possible, and forward a list of the prisoners so sent.

For reclaiming all our prisoners the Sieur de Courtemanche will make use of the list of which he has a copy and will also seek information about them from our French who are at Boston." — Vol. II., p. 432.

Upon this petition the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed on the ninth of June and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the fifteenth it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The forty shillings previously paid to Barnard were probably paid upon a debenture, and if so would not appear charged to him in the treasurer's account.

The order in Council* for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed July 9, 1705, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was paid.

Hon. George Sheldon gives the following account of hostilities perpetrated near Hatfield by the enemy under the command of Beaucourt, in which he mentions the killing of “Battis:” —

“ . . . While this army lay on our frontiers its spies and scouts filled the woods, hovered about the towns, and waylaid the roads. July 19th, Kindniss, a friendly Indian, was killed near Hatfield mill. The same day, upon tracks being discovered near this town, ‘Deacon [John] Sheldon with some others, went after ym, & came in sight of ym, & shot at ym, & y<sup>e</sup> y<sup>e</sup> English at a great distance, & then past along on ye west side of ye town, & fir<sup>d</sup> y<sup>r</sup> guns in a Bravado, and went along up to ye Northward, & killed Thomas Russell, July 20, 1704.’ Russell was a Hadley soldier of eighteen, who ‘had rambled from the party he was with.’ About this time, Sergt. John Hawks was fired upon while riding to Hatfield, and wounded in the hand. July 29th, Thomas Battis, who had been sent post to Boston, was killed on his return, east of Hadley. . . .” ‡ — History of Deerfield, etc., in Greenfield Gazette and Courier, No. 36.

Chap. 15. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 131. It has not been found in the archives.

For an account of des Chaufours mentioned in this chapter see the note to private act, number nineteen.

The proposal of Courtemanche, which, together with the concurrent advice of the two branches of the Legislature, constitutes this chapter, was the outcome of the advice of the representatives in chapter 13, ante, by which the Governor was assured of their willingness to cooperate in measures necessary for the liberation of the English captives held by the enemy, even if those measures involved the surrender of Baptiste. The articles of agreement as prepared by Dudley have not been found, but portions of them are retained in the articles substituted by Vaudreuil, and brought by Vetch and William Dudley upon their return from the second mission. These last are printed in the note to chapter 83, post.

That Courtemanche departed from the letter of his instructions is plain, and unless it be believed that he received other secret instructions permitting him to take this liberty it is difficult to understand the relation he bore to his principal, if the proceeding was allowed to pass uncensured. The inclination to effect exchange upon a basis which would be acceptable to Dudley was possibly strengthened by the knowledge of the terms of a cartel recently agreed upon by the English governors of other colonies of England and France.

While Livingston and his companions were away on their mission, tidings were received that a general exchange of prisoners of war had been negotiated between the English government of the Leeward Islands and the French Governor of Martinique. The first report, and its confirmation, appeared as items of news in the News-Letters published between the twelfth and twenty-sixth of March, 1704-5, as follows:—

“The Cartell is settled between Martinico and the Leward Islands man for man, but the Governour of Barbadoes would not settle it till he had Orders from England. Capt. Turell & Perkins both of this place are carried into Martinico. . . Three days before Ball came away, there was a Flag of Truce sent to Martinico with 100 French men to be exchanged.” — No. 47.

“Boston, In our Number 47. We gave you an account of a Flag of Truce sent from the Leward Islands to Martinico, with 100 French Prisoners to be exchanged: And by Norris and Cook this week arrived from Montserat, we are acquainted, that there was an exchange made; several of our Prisoners came home with them, & the Flag of Truce was gone a second time to exchange all that belonged to the Leward Islands, or that was taken bound thither.” — No. 49.

‡ Judd, in his History of Hadley, p. 275, also calls Barnard's companion “Battis,” and says he was of Brookfield, probably on the authority of Rev. Nathan Fiske (Historical Discourse, 1775); but in Temple's History of North Brookfield, p. 526, may be seen an account of him and his family, wherein his name is given variously as Bettis, Bettys, Bettes and Beetes. He was carrying despatches which were taken from him by the enemy and made use of by Vaudreuil. See note to resolves, 1704-5, chapter 71, p. 426.

Upon receiving official notification of the cartel, Dudley communicated the same to the Council. The following is the record of this communication and of the advice of the Council thereupon:—

“April 11, 1705. His Excellency Communicated to the Council a letter from the Honble Col. John Johnson Commander in Chief of the Leeward Careeby, Islands, and a Cartel or Agreement made betwixt Colo Edward Byam of Her Majty's Council of Antegua deputed and sent to Martineco by the sd Colo Johnson and Monst Mithon one of the French Kings Council, Commissary of the Marine and chief Director and delegated for the Intendency of the General Government of the French Islands in America, bearing date the sixth of February 1704/5. new stile for the restitution of prisoners on both sides, depending on each Government.

The second and Third articles whereof are in hæc verba, vizt

That all the English who are at present in Martinique, and who shall be hereafter taken from any vessel, be they Privateers or Merchant-men, and brought into this Island, or other the French Windward Islands, whither they be departing from or coming into the Government of Antigua, and the rest of the Leeward Islands shall be directly sent to the Island of Antigua, without being sent first to any other place without having regard to the quantity or quality, which shall be observed, so there be twenty five in number without being detained more than ten days and twenty days when a lesser number,

If in case some French Prisoners have been taken, & sent by the Government of Antigua to New England, Colo Byam gives his Parole of honour to inquire after them, to the end they may be sent to Martinique.

Advised. That his Excellency order an Advertisement of the sd two articles to be inserted in the publick News Letter, withall directing and requiring all Commanders of Privateers or Merchant Vessels that have or shall import any French prisoners taken in the West Indies into the Provinces of the Massachusetts Bay or New Hampshire respectively, that they immediately render all such prisoners to his Excellency, that he may give the necessary orders concerning them accordingly.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 164.

Agreeably to the above advice the following advertisement had appeared in the News-Letter for the week ending the sixteenth of April:—

“Advertisements.

A Cartel has lately been Settled betwixt Her Majesties Government of the Leeward Careeby Islands, and the French Government of Martinique, for the Restitution of Prisoners on both sides depending on each Government.

And His Excellency our Governour does Direct and Require all Commanders of Privateers or Merchant Vessels that Have or shall Import and bring any French Prisoners taken in the West-Indies, into the Provinces of the Massachusetts-Bay or New-Hampshire respectively under his Command, That they immediately render all such Prisoners to His Excellency, that he may give the necessary Orders concerning them accordingly.” — No. 52.

Exchanges were being made* under this cartel while Courtemanche was in Boston, and reports were also coming in of the escape† of English prisoners from Canada.

Dudley and de Brouillan, for their respective governments, had anticipated the course of these governors of the West-India Islands. In August, 1703, eight days after he had proclaimed war against the Pennecooks and the eastern Indians, the former had first essayed to carry out an agreement made with the latter previous to the declaration, by ordering to be sent to Port Royal some of the French prisoners of war at Boston. ‡ By this agreement an exchange of all prisoners on both sides, with the exception of Baptiste, was contemplated; and the exchange was still continuing while the negotiations with Quebec were pending. It was an agreement similar to this that Dudley had proposed to Vaudreuil in his letter§ of August 21, 1704.

With a knowledge of these facts, doubtless presented to him in the most favorable light, although ignorant of the secret vote of advice of the representatives, Courtemanche seems to have found no insuperable obstacle in his instructions to the ratification, provisionally, and in the manner he proposed, of the terms set forth in this chapter. The acceptance of his proposal by the General Court, by enabling Courtemanche to liberate and take with him to Canada the Sieur des Chauffours, undoubtedly increased the good feeling engendered by closer intercourse between the representatives of the two govern-

Taylor arrived in a Sloop in 22 day from Antigua, who about 3 weeks since went a Flagg of Truce for Martinico, carried with him 64 French Prisoners, and brought back 75 English, besides some concealed which broke Goal . . .” — Boston News-Letter, No. 63.

† “Boston, Last week 4 of our English Prisoners at Mont-Real, viz. Joseph Pettis, John Nimes, Thomas Baker & Martin Kelluck all of West-Hampshire, made their Escape from thence, and came in to Northampton, being 26 days on their March, who were so put to it for Provisions by the way, that they were forced to eat Rattle Snakes.” — Ibid., No. 61. June 11 to 18, 1705.

‡ See note to resolves, 1703-4, chapter 53. Dudley seems to have done his part to effect the proposed exchange, although Vaudreuil alleged that de Brouillan complained to him that for seventeen English prisoners sent from Port Royal only ten French prisoners were returned by Dudley. ments, but it is hardly credible that either side considered the proposal a finality or looked upon it as serving any other purpose than, by misleading the uninitiated into coöperating in the scheme, to secure favors to certain individuals, and to prolong the negotiations. Indeed the concluding words afford opportunity for controversy as to the event which should determine the beginning of "the dispatch of the prisoners from Canada;" that is, whether the exchange should proceed immediately after notice of Courtemanche's signing the tentative treaty or after Vandrenil had signified his assent to the articles.

The following is the petition mentioned in the preamble to this chapter:—

"To his Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq; Cap; Gener; and Govern; in Chief in and over her Majties province of the Massachusetts bay in New England and To the Honble the Council and House of Representatives now in General Court Assembled in & for sd Province May 30th 1705.—/

The Humble Petition of Lieut; Colo; Benjamin Church Cap; of the Company of the Town of Dartmouth.
Sheweth

That when the present Warr first broke out yo; Petitioner received an order from Colo Byfield to raise six men of his Company in Dartmouth aforesd and to meet him with them at Taunton, whereupon yo; Petitioner forthwith sent an order to the Ensign to notify six quarter Listed men, and bring them along with him to Taunton aforesd. where yo; Petitioner met him himself according to Colo Byfields order. but the sd Ensign brought not one man along with him, they all refusing to come, thó warned & notified as the Law directs. only the sd Ensign brought five pounds from one man to hire a man for him and the sd Colo Byfield being very urgent & Pressing to have the men raised immediately, yo; petitioner being likewise busied in hiring men, & having agreed with two men for six pounds apiece, Colo Byfield said he (meaning yo; Petitioner) need not stand so hard with the men for there was an additional Law which made it fifteen pounds fine for every man who was Listed & did not appear being duely Warned &c; whereupon the men fell back and would not go under Ten pounds a man; which yo; Petitioner was forced to comply with and accordingly hired five men, and paid them forty shills apiece in hand, and gave them notes to pay them Eight pounds apiece more, which yo; Petitioner has since paid in money.—

Now So it is, (May it please this great and General Assembly) That yo; Petitioner thinking to reimburse himself prosecuted three of the Delinquents one of whom made his Escape out of the Custody of the Officer, when He was taken in Execution, and fled over the River to Road Island. the other two men being committed Prisoners to the Goal in Bristol staid there some time, and at length were sent for up to the Castle † in Boston to work there, whither being come they (being Quakers) would neither work, nor do any other duty, but continued there living upon their own charges, and the contribution of friends, so long till his Excellency Saw cause to discharge them. And further yo; Petitioner is informed that the Law has provided no Relief for him in this Case; the fines being to be applied to Buy Arms &c; for the Use of the Company. and yo; petitioner having (besides the money he at first disbursed) been at great Charges and trouble in prosecuting those Three men as aforesd.

Yo; Petitioner therefore humbly prays this great and General Assembly would please to take the premisses into their serious Consideration and grant an order that he may be reimbursed the Money he has laid out as aforesd. with his necessary costs and charges expended in this affair out of the Money arrising for fines in sd Company in Dartmouth

And yo; Petitioner (as in duty bound shall ever pray &c.

In the winter or spring of 1675-6 William Waldron* and Henry Lawton inveigled fifteen Indians "about Cape Sables," † according to Hubbard, and perfidiously transported them to Fayal, where he sold them into slavery. Among these captives were the sagamore of the tribe and his squaw. This treacherous and inhuman treatment of the natives brought on the first of a series of armed conflicts with the Eastern Indians, in which the English settlements on the northern and eastern frontiers were repeatedly devastated, and which led to alliances between these savages and the French, ending in their virtual extermination.

The sagamore and his squaw were redeemed from captivity and brought back to New England, July 25, 1676, by Captain Joseph Nash, who was employed for that purpose by Captain Bernard Trott, the latter paying the price of redemption of the Indians and their subsistence and transportation, and defraying all the expenses of the voyage out and back of his servant Joseph Burrell, through whom negotiations for their release were conducted. This benevolent action, of great moment in allaying the resentment of the outraged savages at the eastward, was undertaken at the instance of Governor Leverett, and with the understanding that Trott should be fully requited from the public treasury. Not having received reimbursement of his expenses, Trott, in 1677, ‡ presented to the board of councillors, or assistants, of the colony, the following petition:—

J. C., Suffolk, p. 61.* Upon the written depositions of George and Richard Bucknell, who testified that at the time the Indians were kidnapped Waldron was at Damariscove, and therefore could not have been actually present and aiding in the business, the accused was acquitted.—Suffolk Court Files. During his incarceration previous to his indictment he applied to be speedily brought to trial and to be admitted to bail in the mean time, averring that (when the abduction took place) he was not further east than "Menheginne . . ." which is not so farre Eastward by a hundred and sixty Leagues, as y<sup>e</sup> place is, where y<sup>e</sup> Indians was taken from." His request was refused.—Mass. Archives, vol. 30, p. 213. As the date of the refusal was August 24, 1676, it would seem that he was arrested soon after the alleged offence became known to the authorities.

John Haughton or Houghton, who writes his name "Harton," also of Boston, "Marriner" and John Earthy were arraigned at the same time with Waldron. The former was presented for man-stealing; for that he "being Instigated by the Divill did take into" his "vessell the endeavor [the Indians, as above described] & Carried them away to fyall & there were sold;"—and the latter was bailed to appear at the next Court of Assistants to "Answer wt shall be layd agt him" for his connection with this affair. John Glover, who was also concerned in the affair, he having sold "part of the produce" of the voyage, was discharged by proclamation, "none Appearing Against him;" but Houghton, though acquitted of man-stealing, was convicted as accessory to the crime, "he being ship master" of the Endeavor wherein the Indians "were received on board & carried away to fyall," without objection on his part. For this he was sentenced "to pay a fine of twenty pounds," of which "ten pounds" was subsequently abated by the Court.—Records in the office of the clerk of S. J. C., Suffolk, pp. 61, 62. He also presented a petition to the Governor and Council, November 20, 1676, praying to be admitted to bail, in which he describes himself as being of Boston and with a "wife and two Children," for whose support he asked to be allowed to pursue some employment, or at least to visit them "Twice a weeke" under sufficient recognizance for his appearance when called to answer.—Mass. Archives, vol. 30, p. 227.

"The Winter being now over, the fore-named Agent of Pemaquid, went to a Meeting of the Indians Eastward, to persuade them of the Cuntry's Willingness to continue a Peace with them. They seemed very joyfull thereat, and in the Spring brought some Presents to confirm the Peace, and to that End also delivered up an English Captive Boy to those of Kennibek. But when the Summer came on, that the said Indians had Liberty to travel up and down the Cuntry to visit their Friends as they used to do; they missed those their Friends who had in the Winter perfidiously been carried away, and as is related, they fell into a Rage against the English, making Complaint thereof to the said Agent, Mr. Earthy, Mr. Richard Oliver, and others: They were told, Means should be used for bringing them back again, which had been so transported."—Ibid., pp. 151, 152.

Upon this petition the Council passed an order which would seem not to have been communicated to Trott but a copy whereof is on file subscribed on the petition. It was certified by Major-General Daniel Gookin as follows:—

"In Answer to this petition: the council haue ordered the treasurer By y<sup>r</sup> order Bearing date y<sup>e</sup> 9th: 6: mo: last* to pay the petitioner 56<sup>li</sup> the petitioner may apply himselfe to y<sup>e</sup> Secretary for y<sup>e</sup> copy of the order.

After the lapse of twenty-six years, the debt still remaining unpaid, Trott applied to the Legislature of the province in the following petition:—

Though unable to relieve the petitioner without the concurrence of the Assembly, it is quite likely that the Governor, touched by this appeal or induced by another motive, suggested his applying again to the General Court, which he did in the following petition:—

The Petition of Bernard Trott —

Innbly* sheweth

That sometime in the Yeare 1677. Yo<sup>r</sup> Pet<sup>r</sup> Petitioned to the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> Jn<sup>o</sup> Leverett Esq<sup>r</sup> & the hon<sup>ble</sup> Councill then sitting in Boston, for sixty two pounds ten shillings & Six pence, due to yo<sup>r</sup> Pet<sup>r</sup> for Redeeming two Indians. Viz<sup>t</sup> a Sagamore & his Squaw Stollen away from the Eastward by one Waldron & 13 [†] Indians more, (which made the first Indian Warr in those parts) Carried to ffy [al †] & sold for Slaues. As the hon<sup>ble</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> told yo<sup>r</sup> Pet<sup>r</sup>. Then I yo<sup>r</sup> Pet<sup>r</sup> sent my Serv<sup>t</sup> Samuel-Turell † on that account upon Joseph Nash which he hired & brought home the said two Indians according to Order & Victuals to Boston —. The Said Gov<sup>r</sup> & Councill did then Answer my Petition, and Ordered the Treasurer to pay me fifty six ponnnds-money, which Order yo<sup>r</sup> pet<sup>r</sup> never Received nor the fifty six pounds, which if yo<sup>r</sup> pet<sup>r</sup> had rec<sup>d</sup> said money, it would have bene a great help to him, Especia[ly †] now in his Poverty who is forced to Relye upon Maj<sup>r</sup> W<sup>m</sup> Tailor Esq<sup>r</sup> for his Releife

This Petition was presented but returned with this Answer the last General Court, that they had not seene Cap<sup>t</sup> Hull the Treasurers Books, Yo<sup>r</sup> pet<sup>r</sup> never Exchanged one penny with said Hull — I must owne I never Carried him the Court Order, Supposing that Major Gookin's hand & Order, had bene Sufficient; now I haue the hon<sup>ble</sup> Samnel Sewalls hand, that he hath Searched the Books, and finds as I haue declared. Therefore yo<sup>r</sup> pet<sup>r</sup> Cranes pity from yo<sup>r</sup> hon<sup>ors</sup> that haue done so much for the Country as he hath done —

Yo<sup>r</sup> Pet<sup>r</sup> therefore humbly desires yo<sup>r</sup> Excellency the hon<sup>ble</sup> Councill & Assembly, to take his poore Condition into [†] Consideration, that he may haue an Order for his money, w<sup>ch</sup> he so Disburst for said Indians; which will be a great releife to yo<sup>r</sup> poore Pet<sup>r</sup> now in his poverty —

With this petition, apparently, the former petitions were considered, and Trott filed the following certificate by Samuel Sewall, one of the Council, and son-in-law of John Hull, deceased, the former treasurer of the colony: —

“April 22, 1704

The above petition, and, apparently, the former petitions, except perhaps that of August, 1703, and the petition to Governor Dudley, October 2, 1704, were read in the House on the seventh of November, but no further action appears to have been taken upon either until the first session of the next Legislature, after the petitioner had again reminded the Assembly of his claim and his pressing necessities, thus: —

“To her Mat<sup>ys</sup> Hon<sup>ble</sup> Council and Representatives now met & sitting in General Assembly at Boston this 7th day of June 1705

Gentlemen

Your Poor Servant gives your Honours to understand, That in the Years 1703 and 1704 did give into the Generall Court then sitting two Petitions concerning a Debt due to him from the Countrey of 56 pounds which he paid for the Redemption of two Indians in Fyall, by the Order of John Leverett Esq<sup>r</sup> then Govern<sup>r</sup> in the Year 1677 to which Petitions I Refer, and to yo<sup>r</sup> Honours Justice,

Who's humble Request is That you would be pleased to peruse his said Petitions, and returne him an Answer of them, and to Consider of his Condition, and how Long he hath been out of his Money. In what great want he is at p<sup>re</sup>sent, And that yo<sup>r</sup> Honours would be pleased to Order him his Money, which now in his Necessity will be a great Favour, and be very wellcome Gentlemen to Yo<sup>r</sup>

Humble Servant and Poor requestant

Yo<sup>r</sup> Requestant desires he may have his Papers out of the Court: and if he cannot have all his Money desireth part of it: at p<sup>re</sup>sent.” — Ibid., p. 6.

To this the House “agreed” on the twenty-second, and it having first been consented to by the Governor, the Secretary recorded the vote as it appears in this chapter.

The order in Council ‡ for a warrant to the province treasurer for the allowance granted by this chapter was passed July 9, 1705. For the record of payment see the note to chapter 11, ante.

Chap. 24. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 135. It has not been found in the archives.

The petition upon which the resolve which constitutes this chapter is founded has not been discovered.

The order in Council for the payment of this allowance is as follows:—

“Oct. 11, 1705. Pursuant to a Resolve pass<sup>d</sup> by the General Assembly upon the Twentieth day of June past, that so much be allowed and paid out of the Publick Treasury to Matthew Carey Waiter at the Impost Office, as, with what he hath already received of James Russell Esq<sup>r</sup> Commissioner of Impost will amount to forty shillings ℥ month for his service from the 18th day of November last, unto the day of passing the said Resolve, which makes seven months and two days. And the said Commissioner having certified, that the said Matthew Carey has received of him nine pounds & four pence.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay to the said Matthew Carey, the sum of Five pounds, two shillings and four pence in tull for his service aforesaid.”—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 222.

The province treasurer’s account § shows a payment of £25 3s. 8d. to Matthew Carey and Thomas Sill. The amount of Sill’s portion of this payment under chapter 95, post (£9 10s. 4d.), added to Carey’s allowance of £10 16s. under the same chapter and his balance of £5 2s. 4d., makes a total of £25 3s. 8d. There was, therefore, a deficiency of five shillings in the payment.

to the Council for concurrence. On the twenty-first it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The following order in Council for a warrant to the province treasurer to pay the allowance granted by this chapter shows the amount paid to Bane for the men in his company, as reported by the Commissary-General:—

“June 27, 1705. A Muster Roll of a Scout of Twelve men under the Command of Capt<sup>n</sup> Lewis Bane, containing an account of their pay and subsistence for six days service in May last, amounting to six pounds, eighteen shillings (whereof the s<sup>d</sup> Bane's part by Order of the General Assembly is Forty shillings) Examined by Mr<sup>r</sup> Commissary General, was presented—And

The province treasurer's account* shows that this amount was paid.

Chap. 26. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 135. It is preserved in archives, vol. 71, p. 125.

From the date of the declaration of war † against the Pennecook and Eastern Indians, in August, 1703, the authorities of Massachusetts were on the lookout for more frequent and extensive hostile incursions from Canada. The French, already at war with the English, immediately became the open allies, as they had been all along the secret instigators, of the savages of Maine, who, though heretofore nominally loyal to Great Britain, had been on the best of terms with the French emissaries residing among them.

An intercepted letter, ‡ written early in the spring of 1704, from Governor Vaudrenil, at Quebec, to de Brouillon, the governor of Acadia, gave to the authorities of New England information of the intention of the former to do his best “to ravage the English on the side of Boston.” By this he indicated a purpose to avoid compromising the white inhabitants of New York and their Indian allies, with whom he deemed it politic to have no open rupture. The hostile relations between the New Englanders and their former savage allies at the eastward greatly facilitated his schemes for harassing, devastating or subjugating New England.

There were three grand trails or highways leading from Canada to Massachusetts, which could be travelled without disturbing the settlements of northern and eastern New York. Of these (neither of which was confined to narrow limits) the route most commonly taken had been by way of Norridgewalk, in Maine. The others were the same until they reached the Connecticut—by way of Lake Champlain and the Winooski, French or Onion River, thence across the mountains of Vermont and down the valley of one of the tributaries of the great river. Thence one course lay directly down the river, and the other from either of several points along the Connecticut valley across New Hampshire to and down the valley of the Merrimac and thence up the valley of the Nashaway or of the Concord.

Late in the winter of 1703-4 small parties of the enemy attacked the outlying northern settlements, particularly Exeter and Haverhill, § killing or capturing the inhabitants, plundering their stores, and burning their houses and barns.

Some of these predatory savages were known to be of the Abenakis of Maine but others certainly came under the lead of Frenchmen from Canada.

Since King Philip's war until the attack on Deerfield the western frontiers had been comparatively free from molestation by the Canadians. The Mohegans being as friendly to Massachusetts as to their own white neighbors in Connecticut, and the Iroquois, under the lead of the Mohawks, or Maquas, being amenable to treaty obligations, the authorities of Massachusetts had been chiefly solicitous to maintain friendship with the Eastern Indians. Treaties and truces had been made or renewed with the leading eastern tribes, sometimes under humiliating circumstances, and involving great expense in maintaining forts occupied as, or to defend, trading-posts more or less unprofitable, or for the protection of white settlers against surprises by the treacherous savages.

By this policy of peace and nominal friendship invasion from Canada had been made so hazardous and expensive to the enemy that, even after friendly relations between Massachusetts and the eastern tribes ceased, there had been not less effort to repel incursions on the western frontiers but offensive operations had been conducted according to the old custom by advancing on the eastern lines, and massing the provincial forces in Maine and New Hampshire.

Before the attack on Deerfield || Colonel Partridge had expressed to Governor Winthrop of Connecticut his apprehension that a vigorous and close pursuit of the enemy in the eastern parts of the province would divert them to the western frontier. The expedition led soon afterwards, by Hertel de Rouville, against Deerfield, proved the sagacity of the veteran commander at Hatfield. At the approach of warm weather, preparations to repel the attacks of the enemy at the eastward were so complete, and scouting had been carried on so thoroughly during the winter, that it was scarcely to be doubted that in their next incursion the enemy would avoid the seaboard towns and plantations. This prospect was clear to the settlers ¶ in the valley of the Connecticut and along its southern tributaries,

§ Between the middle of January and the last of February assaults had also been made on Casco, York, and Berwick. During the month of April the enemy committed further depredations at Oyster River, Berwick, and Exeter.

¶ Their apprehensions were quickened by definite reports from New York, such as the following:—

“New-York May 8. [1704] . . . Yesterday from Albany by information from our Indians acquainted, that the French of Canada are sending out 300 men to attack some parts of N. England.”—Boston News-Letter, No. 4.

and it is now certain that such was the aim of Vaudrenil, the commander-in-chief of the Canadian forces, and of Beauharnois, the intendant at Quebec.

The great distance from its base of operations of so considerable a force as served under Colonel Church in the expedition, during the spring and summer, along the coast of Maine and to the Bay of Fundy, was an advantage which was promptly improved by Vaudrenil, in the hope of attaining results as gratifying as those that had attended the destruction of Deerfield. Accordingly, two successive expeditions were planned, the objective point of one being definitely fixed, and that of the other * being subject to change at the discretion of the commander. The former of these consisted of fifty Indians † led by the Sieur de Montigny. ‡

Vaudrenil and Beauharnois, in their joint report to the minister § of marine at Paris, declare the motive of this expedition to have been the avenging the killing of some of "the Indians of Penaské." No other mention of a tribe or nation of Indians under precisely this name has been found. There are, however, circumstances connected with this foray which lead to the belief that the Indians intended were the Pennecooks — a name that, without the supposition of a typographical error, may be taken for the English equivalent of the Indian name as understood by a Frenchman. || From contemporaneous accounts, it appears certain, as the projectors of this expedition professed, that the Frenchmen were sent from Montreal to these Indians, "as well to reassure them in the fear they entertained of the English, as to engage them to continue the war."

The manner in which these objects were accomplished is shown in the several accounts of their brutally murderous attack upon the little village of Pascomuck, then a part of Northampton, but now within the limits of Easthampton.

The News-Letter, which gave the earliest contemporary printed notice of the tragedy, published the following item, which contains the announcement that Captain John Taylor was among the slain: —

"Northampton, May 13. A Company of Indians and French, between day break and Sun-rising, about 60 Set upon a Garrison-house of Benj. Jones's, about two Miles from the body of the Town, and set fire to it ere they were aware of it; Kill'd and carried Captive about 30. Persons. The Town being Alarmed, pursued them, the Enemy finding it, scattered themselves into parties; and so did the English into Ten in a Company, pursuing them; Capt. Taylor was kill'd in the pursuit." — No. 5.

A few weeks later further details were thus furnished by the same paper, as follows: —

"In our News-Letter Numb. 5. We gave an Account of 30 kill'd and Captivated by the Enemy at Northampton, of which number there are since come & brought in alive Eleven Persons." — No. 8.

In 1815 Rev. Solomon Williams, in a Thanksgiving sermon, gives the following interesting sketch of the destruction ¶ of this rural hamlet: —

"On the 13th of May 1704, old style, the Indians attacked the village of Pashomuck. The inhabitants had been settled there only two or three years, the town having granted them their home lots in 1699. The Indians had been to Merrimac river, but met with no success; they then directed their course toward Westfield, but Westfield river was so high, that they could not pass it. Some of the Indians had been at Northampton in a friendly manner the year before, and informed their companions, that there was a small village at Pashomuck, where they might get provisions, for they were almost famished, and intended, as they afterwards declared, to resign themselves up, if they could obtain no food otherwise. In the evening before the 13th of May, the Indians went upon Mount Tom, and observed the situation of the place. As the meadow was then covered with water, they supposed the village might be taken, and that no aid could come seasonably from the town, on account of the intervening flood. The village consisted only of five families, Samuel Jones's, Benoni Jones's, John Searls's, Deacon Benjamin Jones's and Moses Hutchinson's. A little before day-light, the Indians attacked the village. Benoni Jones's house, which stood on the lot where Nathaniel Kentfield afterwards lived, was encompassed with pickets. The Indians procured flax and other combustibles, and set them on fire, which was communicated to the house. A young woman, named Patience Webb, was waked, and looking out of the window was shot through the head. The people surrendered, and all the above families were killed or taken prisoners. Some of the prisoners were afterwards rescued by the people from the town. These, commanded by Capt. Taylor, went round by Pomroy's meadow, and met the Indians near the Mountain, when a skirmish ensued, in which Capt. Taylor was killed. Of the five families before mentioned, the Indians killed the following persons; Samuel Jones and his wife and three children; Benoni Jones and two children, and the young woman before named; John Searls and three children; Deacon Benjamin

* This expedition was led by the Sieur de Beaucourt. See note to resolves, 1704-5, chapter 71.

† That there were Frenchmen in the company is declared by Governor Winthrop, the News-Letter and Penhallow; and Sheldon gives the number as twenty — probably relying upon the memorandum in the book of records for old Hampshire County that the whole number of "French & Indians" was "about 72." Neither Vaudrenil nor Charlevoix mentions any other Frenchman than Montigny, though both say that four or five Frenchmen were sent to "reassure the Indians."

|| Schoolcraft gives pennaqui (crooked) and auke (place) as the roots of the name Pennecook, and gives also the possible alternative, penak and auke, meaning "ground-nut place." — Information Respecting the History, etc., of the Indians, etc., part V., p. 222. Dr. Trumbull gives "pena-ki, 'fall of land,' the descent or downward slope of a mountain, &c." — Conn. Hist. Soc. Coll., vol. II., p. 19.

No other expedition against the Indians in that direction seems more likely to have been the one complained of to Vaudrenil than that led by Captain William Tyng, as described in the notes to resolves, 1703-4, chapter 85, and 1704-5, chapter 71.

¶ A memorandum of the occurrences at Pascomuck on that sad day is entered in the recorder's book for old Hampshire County, but it seems not so full and accurate as the account by Mr. Williams. It is given in full in Hon. George Sheldon's History of Deerfield.

Janes and four children; and Moses Hutchinson and one child. The wife of Benjamin Janes was taken to the top of Pomroy's mountain, and was there knocked in the head and scalped. Our people found her in that situation, and perceiving that she was still alive, brought her home, and she recovered and lived till she was more than eighty years old. The wife of Moses Hutchinson was taken prisoner, but soon made her escape. John Searls' wife was also taken and severely wounded, but was afterwards rescued from the Indians. Benoni Jones' wife, and Elisha, the son of John Searls, were taken prisoners to Canada. Ten Indians went to the lower farms, where there was then but one house, in which Captain Wright lived, at the place afterwards owned by Mr. Elias Lyman. Captain Wright refused to surrender, and shot one of the Indians and broke his arm. They then attempted to burn the house by shooting spiked arrows, dipped in brimstone, upon the roof; but a young man in the house, named Thomas Stebbins, wrapping himself in a feather bed, drew water from the well, and put out the fire."—Historical Sketch of Northampton, pp. 12-14.

The following note is appended to the above account:—

"The season at that time was remarkably backward; for though so late in the year, being the 24th of May, according to the present style, the trees and bushes had not budded; and the year was so far advanced before the flood subsided from the meadow, that many persons doubted whether it was expedient to plant their corn; but notwithstanding, as there was no frost till late in the season, the crop of corn proved to be uncommonly good."—Ibid., p. 14.

Nearly a century earlier, Penhallow had given the event a place in his History of the Indian Wars, as follows:—

"May 13th, an express came from North-Hampton, advising, that about break of day, a company of French and Indians, fell on a fortified house, at Pascomuck, where no watch being kept, the people were alarmed in their beds, by the noise of the enemy's rushing on the house; and before the inhabitants could rise, the Indians had got their guns through the port-holes, and shot those that first appeared, killing some and wounding others. The surprized people made what resistance they could, firing briskly on the enemy; but the house being soon set on fire, they were forced to yield themselves prisoners. The enemy soon drew off, but fearing a pursuit, dismissed one of the wounded, with this caution, that if the English followed them, they would slay the prisoners; but the unfortunate messenger in returning back, was slain by another Indian. On the same morning, another party attacked a farm house, two miles off; but the fury of the dogs so alarmed the inhabitants, that they instantly got up and fired several guns, to very good advantage, which prevented any further attempt. As for those at Pascomuck, they were immediately pursued; [Of the English] three made an escape, eight were rescued, nineteen slain, and three carried to Canada. Next day, Major Whiting pursued them with a number of horses, and came upon their track, but the ways were so impassable, that they sent their horses back with a resolve to follow them on foot, but some proving lame, and others tiring, caused the rest to desist."—Pp. 26, 27.

There is, perhaps, no better illustration of the celerity with which, at that time, considerable bodies of armed men were mustered, equipped, provisioned and moved to points scores of miles distant over the rough roads and through the devious trails of the New-England wilderness, than the narrative of the expedition under the command of Major Whiting affords. It is briefly given in the note to resolves, 1704-5, chapter 53. Wait Winthrop, himself a major-general of Massachusetts, and familiar with examples of rapid marching and quick responses to sudden attacks of the enemy, being at that time on a visit to his brother, the governor of Connecticut, thus wrote to Secretary Addington, enthusiastically expressing his admiration of the conduct of the Connecticut troopers:—

"NEW-LONDON, May 31st, 1704.

... I can not avoyd doing that justice both to the Govern<sup>t</sup> and people as to observe (being at Hart. when the first post came from N. Hampton with the account of wt was don, and thinking it my duty to apply for assistance to be sent forthwith) that the alarm being given all wt employed to forward y<sup>e</sup> matter; and while orders were preparing for Maj<sup>r</sup> Whiting, all the brisk able men as far as Wethersfield, being then in the fields, left their plows and other occasions and came mounted as volunteers with long arms, and marcht away imediately, and were followed by more from as farr as Midleton and Farmington in 3 or 4 hours after, or litle more, when we could hardly hane thought they had yet had notice. I never saw anything more expeditious or don with grater freedom and courage, which, notwithstanding that came not up with the enemy, ought to be taken notice of."—Winthrop Papers, part VI., pp. 127, 128.

Similar rapidity of movement is seen in the performance of the company* at the head of which Captain John Taylor fell mortally wounded. While the enemy were yet at the base of the mountain which overlooked the scene of their carnage that very morning they met this company, which had assembled at Northampton, properly armed and equipped, and, by a long detour, confronted them to delay their retreat until a sufficient force could be got together to destroy them, meanwhile pursuing and harassing them with such energy that they were obliged to abandon some of their captives alive.

The official report from Canada of this barbarous raid and massacre concludes as follows:—

"This he [Montigny] effected this spring, at the head of some fifty of these Indians, having burnt an English fort and taken twenty-three prisoners. Sieur de Montigny distinguished himself particularly on that occasion."—MM. Vaudrevil and Beauharnois to Pontchartrain.—Documents Relating to the Colonial History of the State of New York, vol. IX., p. 762.

Archives, vol. 71, p. 124.

The above petition was read in the House on the eighteenth of June, and on the next day the resolve was reported, passed, and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the twenty-first it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The petitioner was the daughter of Henry Woodward, an early settler in Dorchester, who removed to Northampton in 1659 and became one of the founders of the first church there. She was married to Captain Taylor, December 18, 1662.

The order in Council* for the payment of the allowances granted by this chapter was passed July 9, 1705, and the province treasurer's account† shows that they were paid.

Archives, vol. 71, p. 138.

The above petition was read in the House on the eighth of June. On the twentieth it was read again and the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the next day the proceedings shown in the printed chapter took place.

With this petition was filed the following letter from Lieutenant-Colonel Tyng to his son William, then at Boston as a representative to the General Court from Dunstable, stating the number of snow-shoes or “rackets” which he had on hand at different points for the public service: —

The “scouts” under William Tyng who used the “rackets” or snow-shoes for which the petitioner asked to be compensated were those who went “into the woods” from Dunstable with Captain Tyng in January, 1704–5, an account of which expedition is given in the note to resolves, 1704–5, chapter 98.

The order in Council‡ for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed July 9, 1705.

Jacob Amsden* mentioned in the preamble to this chapter, and who died June 11, 1701, was the son of Isaac of Cambridge, whose widow Frances (Perriman) survived him and became the second wife of Richard Cutter.

By her first husband Mrs. Amsden had, besides Jacob, a son, Isaac, and by her second husband she bore seven children, including a son, Nathaniel; a daughter, Rebecca, who, December 19, 1688, was married to Thomas Fillebrown; a daughter, Hephzibah, who, June 7, 1698, was married to Jabez, son of John Brooks of Woburn; and a daughter, Sarah, who, December 5, 1700, was married to James Locke of Woburn.

The first Isaac Amsden died seized of but twelve acres of land, which the court assigned to his widow.† Upon Jacob's death without issue his real estate descended, subject to the interest of his widow, to his next of kin; the half-brother and sisters aforesaid claiming equally with his brother Isaac, of the whole blood. The widow of Jacob (Susanna, daughter of John Marrett of Cambridge) was appointed administratrix of his estate. Before she had returned an inventory, she joined with her brother-in-law, Isaac, in the following agreement concerning the disposition of the intestate's property, which was duly acknowledged by both parties before the judge and in the presence of the register of probate:—

The appraised value § of the whole of the estate of the deceased was £171 8s. 14d. The income of the estate proving insufficient for the maintenance of the widow, she deemed it equitable that some portion of it should be turned into money for her comfortable support, notwithstanding the agreement she had signed with her husband's brother. She therefore presented to the General Court the petition mentioned in the preamble to this chapter. It ran as follows:—

It does not appear when the above petition was first read in the House, but by June 19, 1705, it seems to have been committed, and though no report of the committee has been found, its purport is seen probably in the following order adopted by the House and sent to the Council for concurrence on that day : —

"Ordered That ye sd widows petiti<sup>on</sup> be Granted, by Giueing her power from this Court to make sail of sd Lands: y<sup>t</sup> she prayes to make sail of & a Bill be Drawn accordingly." — Ibid.

This petition was read, first, in the House on the twenty-first of June, and on the same day the resolve was passed and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the next day it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The advice and consent of the Council for a warrant to the province treasurer to pay this allowance was given August 29, 1706, as follows : —

"Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made ont to the Treasurer at the desire of the select men of Dunstable to pay the above sum of twenty six pounds to Jonathan Tyng Esq<sup>r</sup> for the use aforesaid." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 312.

For some reason not obvious in the record, the hearing ordered by chapter 8, ante, was continued one week from the time originally appointed, as mentioned in the foot-note to that chapter.

The following paper was submitted by Coit, apparently at this hearing : —

"Some years ago there was a Cutt made at Cape Ann for Boats & vessells to pass through, and some Land was given the person who first undertook to cutt & clear the sd passage One Blinman sold the priviledge of sd Cutt to one Stephens, who Improved the same and made it deeper & navigable for larger Vessells; There was a Town order that those P<sup>sons</sup> who were owners of the Land on both sides the Cut, should keep and maintain the same; But no care taken for the Bridge that goes over the same, which must be attended on twice in twenty four hours, & turned for every boat y<sup>t</sup> passes from  $\frac{1}{2}$   $\ddagger$  flood to Ebbing water again, or else passengers cannot get over there was also a Town order that the Townsmen should have the free passage with their Boats in sd Cutt; which was at first intended for small fishing shallops &c. but is now much larger, & consequently the keeping it clear much more chargeable, and sd Cutt being now quite fill'd up, the Town are very urgent to have it clear'd again, which cannot be done without some allowance & Encouragem<sup>t</sup>! — It is therefore humbly proposed to the Consideration of the great and general Assembly that towards the charge of clearing the sd Cutt & making it navigable as before and as an Encouragem<sup>t</sup> to look after and turn the sd Bridge some what

The resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed in response to the following petition: —

"To his Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq<sup>r</sup> Cap<sup>t</sup> General and Govern<sup>r</sup> in Chief in & over her maj<sup>ties</sup> Provinces of the Massachusetts-bay &c. in New England To the Hon<sup>ble</sup> her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Council and House of Representatives now in General Court assembled in and for sd Province May 30th 1705.

The humble Petition of Lewis Bane & Joseph Hill Representatives for the Towns of York & Wells in behalf of them selves and the Rest of the Inhabitants of y<sup>e</sup> province of Main

Sheweth That the Inhabitants of the s<sup>d</sup> Province have been extreemly harrassed during the last long Warr with the Indians insomuch That they were forced to break up and betake themselves to Garrison and when the peace was concluded every one being willing to go and make the best Improvement they could of their Estates, and laid out what they had, and what they could borrow to furnish themselves with Cattel, & other Stock for which several of them are still in debt having not been able during this short peace to recover their fortunes. . And now (may it please y<sup>or</sup> Excellency and Honor<sup>s</sup>) they have been ever since the beginning of this Warr, and still are Exposed to the Incursions, and their Cattel to the Depredations of the Barbarous Enemy; many whereof have been found killed by them, & many more missing. And because of their being continually in such Danger they are forced to live in Garrisons and cannot Improve their Estates, insomuch That they are thereby reduced to very unhappy Circumstances and will be very shortly constrained to desert the province, if they have not some Ease given them & favour shewn them by this great & General Assembly. And there being now Two years Taxes due from the Province, which they are in no ways able to pay, on the contrary are not able to support their Families, especially those who are forced to leave their Houses, and Lands and to live in Garrisons, houses where they are ordered to go, & where they guard the owners of such Houses Estates their own in the mean time going to ruine & they themselves ready to Perish through want if some redress be not made therein

Y<sup>or</sup> Petitioners therefore humbly pray This great and Hon<sup>ble</sup> Assembly would please to take the the<sup>s</sup> premisses into their pious and Charitable Consideration and in regard of their great Poverty would be pleased to Remit them their Taxes, and be pleased to order That those persons who are forced to go to Garrison Houses & so cannot Improve their own Estates, may during the Warr be allowed some liberty and priviledge for pasture, and planting in the grounds belonging to such Houses for their necessary support. As to y<sup>or</sup> Excell<sup>cy</sup> and Honor<sup>s</sup> in y<sup>or</sup> Wisdom shall seem meet. —

And y<sup>or</sup> Petitioners (as in duty bound) shall ever pray &c.

This petition was read in the House on the nineteenth of June and a resolve was forthwith passed thereon "that the arrearages of Taxes due from y<sup>e</sup> Townes of Yorke & Wells be Remitted to them & that they be not Rated in y<sup>e</sup> p<sup>re</sup>sent Tax"† which was sent to the Council, with a supplementary resolve. On the twenty-sixth the Council concurred in the latter resolve, which constitutes this chapter, and the Governor consented thereto.

During the third session of the Legislature of 1704-5, the inhabitants of the town of Wells presented the following petition:—

Moreover, instead of adding to that little w<sup>ch</sup> y<sup>e</sup> former warr had left us; we did, in y<sup>e</sup> short time of peacable intermission, lay out what might be spared from our backs & mouths, in building a meeting House, & rebuilding our old wast places, & setting new ones; as also in erecting mills, w<sup>ch</sup> are now, before they could in any measure repay our disbursements, useless & unprofitable.

May it therefore please this Honour<sup>ble</sup> Assembly, to comiserate y<sup>e</sup> distressed condition of your impoverished & exposed Petitioners; groaning under many heavy burdens, enough to sink us if now we fail of releif; & to remit our above mentioned Taxes, excepting what is granted out of them, to our Minister. Thus humbly praying that y<sup>e</sup> most fav<sup>o</sup>urable construction may be made of our bold importunity, & what ever else may be found aniss herein; while we have not exceeded, but come very short, in representing y<sup>e</sup> hard circumstances of our present calamity; we must leave our very sad case to y<sup>e</sup> all disposing influences of a gracious God, who knows y<sup>e</sup> depths of our straights; & can move your Town of Wells." — Mass. Archives, vol. 3, p. 405.

This petition was read in the Council on the thirty-first and sent to the House, where on the first of November it was read, and on the ninth the following order thereon was adopted and sent to the Council for concurrence: —

"Nov. 9, 1704. Considering the losses & Calamitys of the Town of Wells, Ordered That forty Pounds be abated them of the Eighty Pounds levied on that Town last Year; and the other forty Pounds be Suspended by the Treasurer, untill the next May Session." — Ibid., p. 406.

The words in Italics were cancelled apparently before the vote was sent to the Council. On the first of November a petition asking for similar relief was presented by the inhabitants of the town of York and likewise read and sent to the House, as follows: —

"To His Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq<sup>r</sup> Captain Generall, and Governour in Chief, of Her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Province of the Massachusetts Bay. &c<sup>z</sup> and the Honorable the Council and Representatives in Generall Court Assembled

The Petition of The Inhabitants of the Town of York.

Most humbly Sheweth

That Your Petitioners, being one of the Frontiers of this Province, and as much as any Exposed to the bloody Impressions, of the Barbarous Salvages, are so far Prevented and Restrained following their Labour, for their support and Livelyhood, that for the year past they have not been able to Raise a tenth part, of the bread-Corn necessary for their Subsistence, and are Required notwithstanding not to Qvitt, but maintain their Post, And furthermore are assessed in the last year the sum of Eighty Pounds by this Honourable Court.

Your Petitioners do therefore most humbly & earnestly Pray this Honourable Court, to Take their Distressed Condition into your serious and Compassionate Consideration, and if nothing may be allowed from the Publick for their support yet that the s<sup>d</sup> assessment may be abated, and not Exacted of them, Or at least that they may have Permission to Remove from their hazardous Post, without forfeiting their Interests there, and seek their safety and support in such other Parts of this Province as they shall be Directed to

On the ninth the House passed the following resolve on this petition and sent it to the Council for concurrence: —

"Considering the Distressed Circumstances of the Petitioners.

Resolved That the one halfe of their Rate be abated, and the other halfe being forty Pounds be left to the Consideration of the Gener<sup>l</sup> Court next May." — Ibid., p. 408.

In this as well as the former resolve the words which appear in Italics were apparently cancelled, and on the tenth the Council voted a nonconcurrence in both. The reason for this action may be inferred from the following entries in the legislative journal of the Council, considered in connection with the above votes of the House and the order which constitutes this chapter: —

"Nov. 9, 1704. The several Petitions of the Towns of York, Wells, & Lancaster* for an Abatement of their respective Quota's in the last Province Tax, with the Resolve pass'd thereon by the Representatives, were Read & sent down to the House for further Explanation and Certainty therein." — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 84.

"Nov. 10, 1704. The Petition of the Town of Wells for an Abatement of their Quota to the Province Tax, sent up from the Representatives with the Resolve of that House to abate them one Half thereof was read, & on the Question put for Concurrence, Was carried in the Negative." — Ibid., p. 85.

During the first session of the Assembly, 1705-6, the subject of the pecuniary distress of Wells and York was again brought up, upon the petition of Lewis Bane and Joseph Hill printed in the note to chapter 31, ante. That resolve was passed on the twenty-sixth of June, and on the twenty-seventh the order which constitutes this chapter was passed in the Council and sent to the House for concurrence. It was concurred in on the same day, and consented to by the Governor.

In accordance with the above abatements the following votes of advice and consent were passed for warrants to the province treasurer to pay the ministers of York and Wells, as directed by the order: —

"Feb. 22, 1705-6. Whereas the General Assembly at their Session begun and held at Boston the 30th of May 1705 Ordered an abatement to the Towns of York and Wells respectively of part of their arrearages to the Province Taxes, and that the remainder thereof, viz<sup>t</sup> sixty five pounds from York, and fifty six pounds five shillings from Wells be assessed, collected and paid into the Treasury by two equal paym<sup>ts</sup>, the first at or before the first day of November now past, and the other halfe at or before the first day of November 1706. And Impowred the Govern<sup>r</sup> by and with the Advice and Consent of the Council to issue forth Warrants to the Treasurer to pay to the Ministers for the time being of the s<sup>d</sup> two Towns respectively, for their support and service there, towards their Salaries from the s<sup>d</sup> Towns, the aforesaid sums of sixty five pounds, and Fifty six pounds five shillings, the said Towns to make good the remainder to their Ministers.

* The petition of the inhabitants of Lancaster, and the action of the Legislature in response thereto, are given in the note to resolves, 1704-5, chapter 96.

Advised and Consented That Warrants be made out to the Treasurer to pay unto Mr Samuel Moody Minister of York, the sum of thirty two pounds ten shillings; and to Mr Samuel Emery Minister of Wells the sum of twenty eight pounds, two shillings and six pence in part of the sums above mentioned." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 266.

"March 10, 1706-7. Whereas the General Assembly at their Session begun and held at Boston the 30th of May 1705. Ordered an abatement to the Towns of York and Wells respectively of part of their arrearages to the Province Taxes; and that the remainder thereof, vizt sixty five pounds from York, & fifty six pounds five shillings from Wells be Assessed, collected and paid into the Treasury by two equal paymts, the first at or before the first day of November 1705 and the other halfe at or before the first day of November 1706. and impowred the Govr by and wth the Advice and Consent of the Council to issue forth Warrants to the Treasurer to pay to the Ministers for the time being of the said two Towns respectively for their support and service there, towards their salary's from the sd Towns, the aforesd sums of sixty five pounds, and Fifty six pounds five shillings. The said Towns to make good the remainder to their Ministers.

And whereas by advisement of the Council the 22<sup>d</sup> of February 1705 Warrants issued to the Treasury for payment of the first halfe of the aforesaid sum's respectively, to wit: £32 - 10 - 00 to Mr Moodey Minister of York and £28. 2. 6. to Mr Emmerly Minister of Wells.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the further sum of thirty two pounds, ten shillings to Mr Samuel Moodey Minister of York, and the remaining sum of twenty eight pounds two shillings and six pence to the aforesd Mr Emmerly, which sums complet the above payments." — Ibid., p. 381.

The province treasurer's accounts* show that the amounts of the warrants thus ordered, respectively, were paid.

The order in Council † for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed July 9, 1705, and the province treasurer's account ‡ shows that it was paid.

After the attack on Deerfield, in which so many persons of both sexes and of all ages were taken captive and carried to Canada, Dudley commenced negotiations for the liberation of these captives, as shown in the note to private act, number nineteen. He approached the subject cautiously, as if his main purpose were to obtain a pledge that the Indians should not be permitted to hold or maltreat English prisoners, nor in warfare to practise their customary barbarities towards noncombatants. At the same time he intimated that it would be in his power to retaliate if the outrages he complained of were suffered to continue.

The following are the letters § which in that note are mentioned as having been sent by Dudley to Vandreuil, and to which he had received no reply when Shelden and Wells applied to him for passports to enable them to effect the negotiations in person: —

Sir: —

"Boston, April 10, 1704.

In this present war between my Sovereign Lady and the King of France, I look for every kind of hostility from your nation; but I have always justly expected that there would be no breach of the laws of the Christian religion which has always protected the poor peasant, the women and children from outrage or captivity, whom I find that the people of your government (who have joined the barbarous Indians) have pursued with the utmost cruelty, and you have held in a harsh captivity.

I will say to you that since this last war began, and I took command here for the queen of England, I have had more than two hundred prisoners of war of your nation, whom I have fed better (according to their own statement) than they were fed in France.

I clothed them and sent them back to Europe by the first conveyance, while during that very time you were glorying in shooting at and butchering my poor women and children and in carrying the rest into a miserable captivity, which is now a matter of trade between the Indians and the subjects of your master in your government.

I write you this to tell you that such treatment of Christians will be considered barbarous by all Europe, and that I justly expect that you will reclaim all these Christian captives from the hands of the Indians and that you will restore them to me as I did a little while ago at Port Royal with your people who were of that place, and returned the remainder to Europe whence they came; and this I shall continue to do until I have your reply to this letter.

I shall not lack opportunity to treat your people in a less agreeable way, as I could have done this week when forty* of your men from Port Royal were thrown upon our coast; I have enough Indians to have destroyed them. But I stayed the Indians and [saved] your people, who are now in my hands."—Vol. II., p. 410.

Sir:—

"Boston, August 21, 1704.

I wrote you some time ago with regard to the prisoners who were taken in different parts of Her Majesty's provinces of New England in which I have the honor to command. I am displeas'd to learn that the Indians who are in your service are so strongly the masters that to them are attributed all the cruelties that have been practis'd by your forces. However that may be, I must bear it as I can.

I have now to inform you what I would have done with the subjects of Her Majesty in your hands. I have double the number of yours in my possession to whom I give fresh meat every day and excellent lodging, and I have the right to expect the same treatment for Her Majesty's subjects in your hands.

Last year I made an exchange with the Sieur de Bronillan. I am content to make the same exchange with you; and if I can have assurance that all the prisoners in your hands will be sent home, I will, upon my honor, release the French prisoners who are in my hands.

Some of your countrymen have been sent back to Europe; and to those who remain I have given such treatment as is becoming a Christian and a good servant of my Sovereign Lady the Queen.

On coming to this government I was surpris'd when I learned that in your government in the last war a price was set and paid to the Indians on the head of every Englishman; as if Christians might be considered as so many wild beasts and doomed to destruction accordingly.

I do not believe that any Christian prince in Europe would be willing to confess to having given such orders to his servants abroad. However that may be, if the war continues, I shall be oblig'd to use a method with your people different from that which I have now a desire to take.

I shall expect your answer to this and an honorable treatment of the captives in your hands. I cannot concede that anyone claims that prisoners may be left in the hands of Indians, because I do not permit a savage to tell me that a Christian prisoner is at his disposal."—Ibid., p. 425.

Between the dates of these two letters two hostile incursions from Canada had been made by the French and Indians. In the former of these (on the thirteenth of May), of which an account is given in the note to chapter 26, ante, a few English were added to those already in captivity in Canada. The second incursion (on the thirty first of July), described in the note to resolves, 1704-5, chapter 71, though on a very large scale, was extremely disastrous to the French, and hence did not change the relative number of prisoners held by the belligerents,—the French prisoners taken by the English at the eastward and carried to Boston during the summer having increased their number of captives to a total considerably larger than the whole number of the captive English in Canada. This circumstance, and the demoralization consequent upon the miscarriage of Beaucourt's unfortunate expedition, apparently rendered Vandreuil less reluctant to consider proposals for the exchange of prisoners, and even to express his readiness to make such exchange by way of Albany. There were also some indications of defection on the part of the Indian allies of the French.†

This feeling (which was doubtless in some measure the result of disappointment at Beaucourt's failure to meet expectations founded upon his reputation as a soldier and upon the unusual preparations made to ensure his success) could not have escaped the notice of so sagacious an observer as Vandreuil.‡

While hostilities were actually proceeding it was scarcely possible to communicate either overland or by sea with Canada through messengers from New England. A hostile fleet from Boston was ravaging the coasts of Acadia; and successive bodies of Indians, under the lead of French officers, but not so completely under their control as to insure the safety of any New Englander whom they might encounter, were moving through the wilderness to devastate the frontiers of Massachusetts. At Albany, however, the English and Dutch, though sympathizing with, and constantly advising, their English neighbors, were maintaining, nominally, a strict neutrality, and carrying on trade with both sides.

* See note to resolves, 1703-4, chapter 117.

† On the very day on which Dudley was writing his second letter to Vandreuil Major Whiting, in a letter to Governor Winthrop from which the following is an extract, quoting from Colonel Schuyler's information derived from "three Indians in the Maquaw country," of disaffection among the French Indians, and of Vandreuil's profession of willingness to exchange prisoners, wrote thus:—

"Further he adds that the Coll. in his travell met wth other two French Indians to whom he presented two belts of wampom, requiring or desireing them to lay down the hatchet they had taken up against the Governments of New England, w<sup>ch</sup> they receiv'd & will returne answer in the fall. Agen, one of our owne Indians that was not a little inclin'd to the French intrest, upon his conference wth them did resolve to go to Canada and demand M<sup>r</sup> Williams of them, w<sup>ch</sup> if they refus'd to deliver he would forsake their intrest and take up the hatchet agst them. This Sr is the substance of the intelligence, only that the Governor of Canada is willing to exchange prisoners by the way of Albany or Onondagoes. Thought it my duty to advise you thereof, have therefore sent down to Cap<sup>t</sup> Allyn wth orders to forward it to your Honour."—Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 260.

‡ Hence, probably, the exemption from invasion which the English enjoyed for several months after the repulse of the enemy at Lancaster.

This explains why Dudley had chosen to send the above letters by way of Albany. As time wore on it was thought that English messengers might proceed overland to Canada without molestation, and this sense of security led Shelden and Wells to make the proposal mentioned in the private act referred to in the beginning of this note. The action of the Governor and Council upon this proposal is thus recorded:—

“Dec. 13, 1704. His Excellency acquainted the Council, that he has received no Answer to his letters* sent to the Govern<sup>r</sup> of Quebeck, via Albany relating to the English Prisoners, the one in April and the other in August past, and that it was doubtful whether those Letters found a safe conveyance; as also that John Shelden and John Wells of Deerfield (who both have relations in Captivity there) were now attending him and very urgent to have Licence to Travail thither there being also two French Prisoners used to that Rhode, who have their relations here, that are willing to conduct and Accompany the<sup>sd</sup> Englishmen, with his Excellency's letters, & to see them safely returned at the peril of having their near relations here exposed.

And his Excellency proposed the conveying them by water to Casco, and from thence to take the direct course through the Country to Quebeck, in order to gain the knowledge what number of Prisoners are in that Country, and to make way for their release and Exchange in the Spring.

Which the Council approved and Advised.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 125.

The reasons which induced Dudley to dispense with the services of the two French prisoners who had been selected to accompany these messengers,† and in their stead to nominate Captain John Livingston, and the action of the Council upon this proposition, appear in full in the note to resolves, 1704-5, chapter 25.

Livingston, besides having served the province as leader of a company of volunteers ‡ from Connecticut in the pursuit of Beaumont's retreating army, had, more recently, acceptably represented Connecticut as one of the commissioners § from that colony appointed to cooperate with the Massachusetts commissioners in concluding a treaty with the Iroquois. This honorable appointment he received from his father-in-law, the Governor of Connecticut; and so, while by marriage allied to, and received by the most distinguished families of Boston, he had had opportunity to exhibit his qualities to other leading men of the province in the field and in the Council.

The Governor in his speech at the beginning of the fourth session (December 27, 1704) informed the representatives of his doings in furtherance of this new plan, and of the advice of the Council, as follows:—

“... I have also lately by advice of the Council Determined & made ready an Errand And Letters to M<sup>r</sup> Vodril Governour of Quebeck referring to an Exchange of prisoners to receive ours in their hands & to quit us of the Charge of theirs who will probably be able to give us at their return some account of the posture of the french to Direct us in our future Methods. . . .” — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 23.

The messengers took with them on their journey to Quebec copies of Dudley's previous letters of April and August and also the following, which is not preserved in our state archives but is here translated from the French version in the collection of manuscripts hereinbefore referred to:—

Sir:—

“Boston, December 20, 1704.

The enclosed were sent you some time ago by way of Albany; but fearing lest they may have miscarried I send you now Mr. Livingston and Shelden envoys with John Wells.

Their commission is to carry this letter to you and to inform you that I have in my hands about 150 prisoners, besides those whom I sent to Europe, by their own choice. On the return of my envoys with a list of my prisoners whom you have in your hands, I will willingly have yours conveyed this spring as far as Penobscot, and I believe that it is best that the English prisoners should come there, because the largest number of yours being from Port Royal, they would be nearer their homes if the exchange were made there or near the Bay of Fundy.

If the winter is so severe as to oblige my envoys to stay until the inclemency be past, you could before then, if you think it proper, send me a letter by an Indian, to the fort at Casco Bay, and therein set the time and place where one of my shallops may meet yours to make the exchange. I suppose he will be there before the winter permits yours to come down.

You will have the goodness to allow my envoys to return as soon as it is safe to do so, with your conclusions concerning this business, to the end that I may hold your prisoners ready for delivery on receipt of your answer to what you receive from me, and to grant them the opportunity for the fullest conference with you in order to determine what may be most advantageous. I am with all respect, sir,

Your very humble and very obedient servant,

DUDLEY.

P.S. About ten days ago the Sieur Allain arrived with my lord Cornbury, Her Majesty's governor of New York. He informs me that, being sent by the Sieur Brouillon, he was unhappily taken by the frigate The Jersey and carried directly to York, and that he had lost all the papers he had for me.

Be that as it may, having known him previously, and judging him to be an honest man, I have lodged and provided for him according to his station, and shall send him home by the first opportunity.” — Vol. II, p. 426.

* A proposition by Dudley, subsequent to those letters, to send messengers to Quebec by way of the river St. John failed to receive the approval of the Council, as stated in the note to the private act aforesaid.

† Wells appears to have held only the position of attendant or servant of the others.

‡ See note to resolves, 1704-5, chapter 43.

§ Ibid., chapter 101.

Before the despatches mentioned in the note to the private act aforesaid were received by the Governor he had been informed of the progress of the messengers, as appears by the following item in the News-Letter:—

“Boston, Our Governour has had Letters of the 8th of February, via Albany from the Messengers sent by His Excellency to Quebeck, in order to exchange Prisoners, who were then within a few days of Montreal.”—No. 50. March 26 to April 2, 1705.

They reached Quebec by the twenty-sixth of February, and a month later Vaudreuil prepared the following reply to Dudley:—

Sir:—

“Quebec, March 26, 1705.”

Mr. Livingstone, your envoy, has delivered me the letters which you took the trouble to write me on the tenth of April, the twenty-first of August and tenth* of December of last year.

By your first, sir, you tell me that in this present war you always expected all sorts of hostilities on my part, but that you would never have believed that things could have been carried so far as the cruelties that have been perpetrated by the French and Indians.

With regard to the first article, you are not mistaken; but as to your reproaches concerning the great cruelty which we practise towards your prisoners, they have never gone so far as to assassinate anyone† in cold blood after having promised quarter, as the commander of your fleet on the way to l'Acadie did to the Sieur Gourdault.‡ As for the second article touching the severe treatment of your people in captivity here Mr. Livingstone and those who accompanied him will be able to give you an account of the way in which your people are treated in my government.

In the same letter, sir, you charge that I permit a traffic in your prisoners to be carried on between the French of this government and the Indians; and [aver] that such a proceeding will never be approved by Christians nor by any body else in Europe. Apparently you have not been informed of the obligation to me of nearly all your prisoners for having furnished them the means of escape from the hands of the Indians, and in thus setting an example to the principal officials of this country.

Mr. Livingstone can tell you what he has heard from the prisoners.

If you refer me to the manner in which you have treated our French prisoners, I ought not to expect great exactness in the exchange which you propose. The Sieur de Brouillan, giving me an account of his negotiations with you, told me that for seventeen English which he returned to you, you have given up but ten Frenchmen; besides, that you were unwilling to surrender Baptiste,§ whom you took even before the declaration of war because, under the order which he had from the Sieur de Bronillan, he had seized one of your ships which was trading within our limits without permission. So, since he only did his duty, I am very sorry to say to you that it is useless to talk of exchange if he is not included in it.

In your second [letter] you state that you are surprised to learn that our Indians are so completely the masters that to them are attributed all the cruelties that are committed. You know, as I do, that when they are superior in numbers, they always show their savage nature.

In the same letter, of August 21, you seem to desire an exchange with me as you did with the Sieur de Brouillan, and say that if you could be assured that all the English prisoners would be restored, you would release the French. I have made the same proposition to Mr. Livingstone.

I have no reply to make in regard to the money which you tell me was given to the Indians for English scalps; because if my predecessors allowed it to be done, they only followed the example of yours.

I received, sir, your third [letter] at the time I received the two others above mentioned; not having received any by way of Albany.

I gave such a reception as might be expected of me to a person who comes from you. Mr. Livingstone is a very courteous man; with whom I should soon have agreed in the matter of the exchange if his authority had not been limited. He had decided to go back, but was assured that the thaw would prevent his going through to Boston. I have given him an Englishman to attend him.

I did not expect to learn, by the list of French prisoners that was sent to me, that sixteen inhabitants of Port Royal had been shipped to England or Barbadoes. I could have done the same for the French Islands in America. I am persuaded that you will not have allowed them to disembark without taking sureties for their return. I beg you to point out to me how I can depend on them.

If you were the sole ruler in New England as I am here, I would not have hesitated to accept your word and it would also have been a pleasure to me to return all your prisoners by Mr. Livingstone; but as you have a council, which is often divided in opinion, and where you have nothing more than your vote, you ought not to take it ill that I must have assurances for the return of the prisoners coming to me, the more so because on my side, being the sole master, I am always in a position to keep my word.

I beg you to allow the Englishman whom I send you and my two men to return as soon as may be with the decision which you shall make, to the end that if my conditions suit you I may hold your prisoners in readiness to leave with Mr. Livingstone.

I did not fail to honor the letter of credit which Mr. Livingstone had for his outfit here, in the sum of 2000 French livres, which you will see, sir, by the bills of exchange that he gave me; and I will let him have a larger sum if he needs it.

I am, with all respect, Sir,

Your very humble and very obedient servant,

DE VAUDREUIL.” — “Col-

This letter, as appears on its face, was not intended to be brought back to Dudley by Livingston and his companions; but was intrusted to Mr. Samuel Hill (an English captive who had been taken prisoner at Wells in August, 1703) and two Frenchmen named Dubois, whom M. de Beauharnois, the intendant at Quebec, had deputed to accompany him.

Before Vaudreuil's messengers had been heard from in Boston he despatched to Pontchartrain, the minister of marine at Paris, a letter, of which the following is a summary:—

“Quebec, May 5, 1705.

Mr. Dudley, governor at Boston, has sent Captain Livingston to propose an exchange of prisoners, to which he [Vaudreuil] has consented on condition that the Sieur Baptiste and other inhabitants of l'Acadie, borne on the list which he [Dudley] sends him, shall be sent back to the Sieur de Brouillon at Port Royal; after which he will give up the prisoners from Quebec.

He [Vaudreuil] believes himself compelled to act thus, because the English have detained the Sieur Allain, (whom the Sieur de Brouillon had sent to Boston with some English prisoners to exchange for French) under the pretext that he had been taken by one of the queen's frigates, and that he had no passport.

Nevertheless Mr. Dudley writes that, knowing him to be an honest man, he will return him.

Monsieur de Beauharnois has sent two Frenchmen and one Englishman to Mr. Dudley through the woods to inform him of the arrival of Mr. Livingstone at Quebec, and his plans.” — Ibid., p. 431.

Hill and his companions, in their journey “through the woods,” reached Portsmouth on the eighth of May, as appears by the following item in the News-Letter:—

“Portsmouth, N. Hampshire, May 11. Samuel Hill of Wells (who was taken Captive by the Indians) came hither * on Fryday night, last from Quebeck with two French men sent by the Governour of Canada, who brought Letters from him and Capt. Livingston to His Excellency our Governour; Capt. Livingston arrived there the 26th of February, and designs to be back the 20th. of this Month, with the Governour of Canada's proposals for Exchange of Prisoners: There is 100 of our Captives in the hands of the French, and about 70 Children with the Indians.” — No. 56. May 7 to 14, 1705.

The satisfaction which the prospect of a speedy return of the English captives in Canada diffused throughout the province may be inferred from the following paragraph, written by a contemporary historian:—

“May the 4th, 1705, Capt. Hill, who was formerly taken at Wells and carried to Canada, was from thence sent by Monsieur Vaudriell, to concert the exchange of prisoners, who advised of one hundred and seventeen that were then with him, and about seventy more with the Indians; which unexpected news was very reviving to the dejected spirits of their mournful friends, considering the many deaths they escaped in their captivity.” — Penhallow's Indian Wars, p. 38.

Besides Vaudreuil's reply above printed Hill brought letters, two of them § explaining Livingston's delay, and promising that, on his return, he should be accompanied by M. de Courtemanche, as envoy. All these despatches, as the following entry shows, Dudley promptly communicated to the Council:—

“May 15, 1705. His Excellency communicated to the Council a Letter from M<sup>r</sup> Vaudreuil Gov<sup>r</sup> for the French King at Quebec.

As also two letters from Mess<sup>rs</sup> Livingstone & Shelden Messengers from this Government to Negotiate about the exchange of Prisoners, with the Propositions made in that affair.” — Vol. 4, p. 170.

Sixteen days later (May 31, 1705), the Governor in his opening speech communicated these despatches to the Assembly, as shown in the following extract:—

“I have also Letters referring to the prisoners in the Enemy's hands from Mons<sup>r</sup> Vaudriell Governour of Quebec and Messengers coming with my own to Settle that matt<sup>r</sup> which I shall communicate to you.” — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 28.

No record of further proceedings has been discovered until after the return of Livingston and his associates,† bringing with them a distinguished personage, the Sieur de Courtemanche,‡ who came as the representative of Vaudreuil.

The narrative of the proceedings that related strictly to the exchange of prisoners is continued in the notes to chapters 13 and 15, ante.

Tidings of the arrival of Livingston and his companions at Northampton reached Hartford on the last of May, as appears by the following letter from Richard Lord communicating the news to Livingston's wife:—

“HARTFORD, May 31. 1705.

MADAM, — I this moment received the joyfull news of y<sup>o</sup>r spouse and our friends return from his noble interprise unto the town of North Hampton, with 4 of the captivated, viz<sup>t</sup> 2 of Deacon Shelden his children, one of Mr Williams children, and a young woman, wife to one of the sons of said Shelden; also 2 French gen<sup>l</sup>s, one of them y<sup>e</sup> 2<sup>d</sup> person of honn<sup>r</sup>: in y<sup>e</sup> Govern<sup>t</sup>. We heartly congratulate his safe return so far and pray that the like favor may be shewn him till he shall arrive unto your embraces. Pardon me this scribble,

throp Papers, part V., p. 296.

Some time later, apparently, Mrs. Livingston received the following letter from Rev. John Williams, the captive minister of Deerfield:—

"MADAM, — I should be guilty of ingratitude if I should forget to offer you my thanks for your denyal of yourself the desirable company of your beloved consort for the sake of poor captives; and I assure you I shall never forget your charity herein, & hope that God will safely return him again & make you mutually joyfull & happy. There are hundreds here that are obliged to yourself. I hope to have the honour of kissing your hand & of a personal acknowledgment of your compassionateness herein. I wish you all happiness & am, Madam, Your most humble & obedient Servant,

JOHN WILLIAMS.

Upon the arrival of Livingston at Boston, Dudley wrote to Governor Winthrop, as follows:—

"BOSTON, 4 June 1705.

S<sup>r</sup>, — I have your letter the last post & should have desired the instant advance of the scout, but Captain Livingston is happily arrived this evening & acquaints mee that there is nobody at Coasset. He has brought with him a messenger from Mr Vodril to agree the exchange of prisoners & I hope I shall bring it to pass. I was much troubled at the last clause of your letter referring to your own want of health. I pray God send it you for my short time & for the service of your country.

I am S<sup>r</sup> your very humble servant,

J. DUDLEY." — Ibid., p. 295.

More than two weeks later Livingston thus replied to his father-in-law:—

"For the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Maj<sup>r</sup> Gen<sup>l</sup> J<sup>n</sup>o Winthrope Esq<sup>r</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> of her Maj<sup>ty</sup> Colloney of Coneticut, att New London.

By the terms stipulated between Livingston and Dudley the former was to receive one hundred pounds besides his expense. The cost of subsisting the messengers out and back, and the sums paid for the redemption of the four captives they brought with them on their return, were probably their principal expenses, and it was more convenient to defray the latter by drawing bills of exchange, or by incurring credit with the authorities in Canada.

The messengers' accounts of expenses have not been discovered, but it appears that such accounts were rendered and submitted to the scrutiny of the committee of the Council mentioned in this chapter. The following is the record of the appointment of this committee:—

"June 6, 1705. Elisha Hutchinson, John Foster, John Higginson & Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>s</sup> are appointed a Committee to receive exanine & report the Accounts of Expence of Cpt. Livingstone & Mr Shelden late Messengers to Quebeck & to do it with all Speed." — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 122.

The votes of advice and consent for the payment ordered by this chapter are as follows:—

"June 30, 1705. Pursuant to a Resolve pass'd by the General Assembly at their Session begun May 30th 1705. That the sum of three hundred sixty eight pounds, sixteen shillings and eight pence be paid out of the publick Treasury in full for account of four thousand Livers taken up of M<sup>r</sup> Vandreuil Govern<sup>r</sup> for the French King in Canada, upon the Credit of this Government by Cap<sup>t</sup> Livingstone and M<sup>r</sup> Shelden late Messengers to Quebeck; and for four hundred twenty six Livres more, for which the said Livingston hath also drawn Bills.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of Three hundred sixty eight pounds, sixteen shillings and eight pence to Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>o</sup> Commissary General; he to advance and pay the same to M<sup>r</sup> Courtemanch Commissioner hither from M. Vandreuil, and to take up the Bills for the whole Four thousand four hundred twenty six Livers, endors'd by the s<sup>d</sup> Courtemanch, being already Endorsed by M<sup>r</sup> Vandreuil." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 189.
